letter from a family that wished to enter. He then placed all the pictures in the lobby in one big frame and issued invitations to all the contestants to be present on the opening night of "The Battle of the Sexes." The three winners were then picked and an announcer from the stage introduced them as they made their appearance and presented them with the prizes. The contest filled all of the four thousand seats in the Rochester theatre.

The newspaper next morning displayed pictures of the prize winners.

Saturday Morning Mats for Children Widely Used

Children's Saturday morning matinees of the type sponsored by welfare organizations, are growing in popularity throughout important cities of Central Pennsylvania. They are held with much success each week at the Hamilton Theatre, Lancaster; the Colonel Drake Theatre, Oil City, and several others.

The Victoria, Mahanoy City, holds a "Children's Bargain Hour" each Saturday afternoon between 1.30 and 2.30 o'clock. Children who enter the theatre within that hour are admitted at the reduced rate of 10 cents, but are entitled to remain for the duration of the entire program.

Saturday morning matinees for children, consisting of picture programs selected and sponsored by the Harrisburg Civic Club, a women's welfare organization, with the cooperation of C. Floyd Hopkins, local representative of the Wilmer & Vincent Theatre Company, were inaugurated in the State Theatre, Harrisburg, a W. & V. house, on December 1.

The idea of the Civic Club is to sanction only pictures which it regards as wholesome and proper for juvenile entertainment. The feature film for the first of these morning matinees was "The Phantom City," and the program included also an "Our Gang" comedy and an Aesop's fable picture. There is a reduced price of fifteen cents for children and adults may attend for 25 cents. The first attendance was six hundred, which was gratifying both to the Civic Club committee and the theatre management. The plan has been permanently adopted at the State and greatly increased attendance is expected when parents more generally understand project.

Turns House Management Over to Drama Club

Officials of the Palace Theatre at South Bend, Ind., recently staged a novel stunt when they permitted the house to be operated entirely by students of the High School drama club. The students thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity the routine of presentations and motion pictures offered to participate in the successful management if only for a day and night.

Showmanship

MANAGER W. E. SPRAGG pulled a neat tie-up with a local shoe dealer to exploit "Our Dancing Daughters" playing at the Stadium Theatre, Woonsocket, R. I. The dealer furnished two pairs of shoes of a very small size. One shoe of each pair was effectively displayed in the store window. The other "one of each" pair was on display in the theatre lobby. Tickets bearing copy about the stunt were given to ladies well in advance of picture's opening. Copy on the tickets read, "Ladies—A pair of shoes Free to the first two fortunate who can step into Miss Joan Crawford's shoes. Every lady attending the Stadium Mon-Tues-Wed matinees will receive one of these cards. On Thursday or Friday take this card to the Lafayette Shoe store—give it to the clerk—try on the shoe—wear them—and they are yours."

BY far the most popular method devised by exhibitors to exploit Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" is the co-operative ad page or ad section, according to Warner Bros. The latest example of how successfully such exploitation can be achieved is furnished by Skouras Bros. Midtown Theatre in St. Louis. Last week the St. Louis Star published in behalf of "The Singing Fool" a four-page section abounding in co-operative ads from a score of different music houses, radio dealers and talking machine merchants.

THANKSGIVING DAY the Florida Theatre, Jacksonville, Fla., put on sale "Christmas Cheer Books" of tickets for $2.50 and $5.00. The books are attractively printed in Christmas design envelopes. The tickets will be honored at any show at the Florida and will be sold up to Christmas Day. The idea of giving these books for holiday gifts is being stressed to the public.

THE idea of a phonograph record as a lobby ballyhoo for "Lilac Time" registered so well that First National's exploitation department is out with another similar accessory to be used in exploitation for "The Barker." The Victor Talking Machine Co., has made a record of the barker's spiel in front of his tent show which Milton Sills renders in this talking picture. The record for "The Barker" is of the twelve-inch size and has a playing time of five minutes. They are to be used as exploitation for lobby, street ballyhoo and for unwired houses may be used in lieu of the talking trailer.

LYNN PETERSON, manager of Hamrick's "Music Box" Portland, Ore., with his usual thoughtfulness, invited some sixty inmates of Oregon Institute for the Blind to the "Terror." It was a gala day for them and a boost for sound pictures. Their comments were both interesting and enlightening.

UNIVERSAL EXPLOITEER SLADDIN convinced the proprietor of the largest furniture store in Syracuse that "Lonesome" offered good tie-up possibilities for furniture windows. The window included a fireplace at one end, with the wax figure of a pretty girl sitting before it and a card reading, "Don't be lonesome; get married and let us outfit your new home. See 'Lonesome' at the Empire Theatre, etc."

"COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE" playing at the Rialto Theatre, Denver, Colo., had everything in its favor when its author Judge Ben B. Lindsey made four personal appearances daily during the showings of the picture.

Judge Lindsey, who is a resident of Denver, further co-operated in publicizing the picture by mailing 2500 personal letters to prominent people in the city. And also granted an interview as a basis of a story in the Denver Post.

Makes Rule to Call Only M.Ds. Who Leave Names at Office

H. M. ADDISON, managing director of the Great Lakes theatre in Buffalo, has made a new rule regarding a call service for physicians who attend performances at that house as a result of a recent case wherein his acquiescence to page a doctor at the insistence of a party telephoning the theatre worked out to the embarrassment of the management when the doctor sternly informed Addison that he came to the show to be entertained and not to be interrupted.

The policy which Mr. Addison has established for his theatre and his reasons for so doing are explained in the following extract from his editorial in Movienews, the house organ of the Great Lakes theatre.

"The other night a telephone call came to the theatre for a well-known physician of Buffalo, whose services were needed for an operation. The physician not having informed us that he was in the theatre, we were unable to notify him and as a consequence, he lost the professional service call and, incidentally, a considerable fee.

"Just the next night, another call came from the outside for another physician, the caller saying it was of the utmost importance that the doctor be reached. The show was stopped and the amplifiers used to make the call. This physician came to the telephone, told the caller that he would see them later and then told me that he came to the theatre to be entertained and forget for the moment his work. He rather resented the message, as the case was not one which required immediate attention.

"Caught between two dilemmas, the theatre management will hereafter call no physician who does not desire to be called while in our house. If any physician, however, comes to the theatre and desires to be notified of telephone messages, the management will be glad to take his name, if he steps into the office at the Chippewa street entrance upon arrival, and will notify him if called, an usher taking the row and seat in which he is seated for convenience of notification.

"We trust that this will meet the approval of all physicians and it is hereafter to be the hard and fast rule in the Great Lakes Theatre."

Displays Extra Box Office to Be Used Week of Big Picture

MANAGER JOHN McKENNA, playing "Wings" at the Imperial theatre, Charlotte, N. C., planned for a banner business by building an extra box office in the lobby.

The extra box office was built one week in advance of play date and carried a placard reading, "This box office will be used to help handle the tremendous crowds that will see 'Wings' at this theatre."

A large thirteen-foot balloon on top of the vertical sign on theatre building could be seen for many blocks away. A large banner was suspended from the balloon announcing name of theatre and play dates. The word "Wings" was written on the balloon in very bright and attractive colors.

A plane was hired for a week for the small sum of $25. This plane flew over the city at least twice a day and flew low enough for people to read the title of picture painted underneath its wings.

Sundays always draws huge crowds to the airport where people enjoy airplane rides while hundreds of others go there merely to watch. The hired airplane was in the air this particular day most of the time confining its flying mostly over the flying field.

The aviator who owned the plane furnished gratis two large propellers, one a three-blade affair, that was placed on top of the marquee at one end and the other propeller on the other end of marquee. The latter propeller had a large illuminated cut-out of Bow and Rogers in a circle with the word "Wings" predominating. Around this circle was a row of lamps hooked to the flasher that gave an effect as if the cut-out was a huge wheel in motion.

Playing in conjunction with "Wings" was a song slide number entitled "Memories of France"—a very appropriate one for the feature picture. McKenna went to a local music dealer and got a Gene Austin number on this and used it as a specialty. It was perfect and appeared as if it was a synchronized slide. The comments were most favorable on this number and many people wondered who was singing.

Realism in Lobby Display for "Haunted House"

William Haynes, assistant general manager of Loew's Theatres in Cleveland, created interest that was converted into real business, by exploiting "The Haunted House" at the State Theatre. He surrounded the box office with a clapboard cottage. In the windows appeared spooks and fantastic figures with colored lights behind them. Crowds gathered around this cottage all day long. A similar cottage, smaller in size, was mounted on a truck and paraded the downtown and suburban sections during the busy hours. This traveling cottage was also portraying fantastic shapes in its lighted windows, and with the rider were witches and other fabled characters which drew crowds. The excellent business of the week was held to be largely the result of this conspicuous campaign.

Clever Idea for Store Tie-up With "Home James"

Wherever "Home James" is played there is a chance for a good department store tie-up. In Pittsburgh, A. J. Sharick got two of the leading department stores to distribute coupons to their employees allowing them a slight discount on certain nights.

The Sunday Times published a story in which Laura La Plante requested the management of department stores to have their girl employees see the picture. The story also requested shoppers to write to the paper telling of any department store salesgirl who, because of her personality or affability, should be given a pass.

Telephoto Stunt Scores in Toledo for Talmadge Film

Manager J. H. Merriman of Loew's Valentine Theatre, Toledo, Ohio, developed a valuable publicity angle for his exploitation for "The Woman Disputed" by employing Telephoto, the newest rapid system of sending pictures and messages by wire which first was used for motion picture advertising by Motion Picture News in conjunction with Warner Brothers.

Merriman arranged for Norma Talmadge to send a written message of greeting to the dramatic editor of the Toledo News-Bee. The Telephotogram which is reproduced below was addressed to Dwight North, Dramatic Editor, Toledo News-Bee.

Exchanges Desert Old N. Y. Film Row

ONE by one the large exchanges are deserting the old film row to take up quarters in the new picture center located in the section of 44th and 45th streets on the East side of 9th avenue. The latest company to migrate is Pathe Exchange, Inc., which has signed a ten-year lease for space in the new Film Center Building. Other motion picture exchanges that have been reported to have signed leases for space in this building are, FBO, M-G-M, First National, Universal and Educational.

Two fires helped to liven up matters in the theatre district this past week. Unaware that a two alarm blaze was doing between $50,000 and $100,000 damage next door, some 2,500 persons enjoyed the show at Loew's Greeley Square theatre at 513 Sixth Avenue. The other fire occurred at the Capitol theatre on Broadway, when defective wiring in the electric display above the marquee caused flames to burst forth. Little damage was done, but quite a thrill was supplied a large crowd that gathered.

In addition to the already large number of added attractions for patrons' entertainment that have been instituted at the new Little Carnegie Playhouse on 57th street, the management will, beginning December 10, present Geoffrey Mott-Smith, author of "Pencil Bridge," in a series of illustrated talks on auction bridge which will take place in the Playhouse card room. The author will be introduced by Sidney S. Lenz, the international champion. The lectures will be given at 4 P.M. each Monday and tea will also be served.

According to word received along the row, M. B. Seider, manager of the Regent theatre, at Bay Shore, L. I., will in the near future marry Miss Julia Tannenbaum. Mr. Seider is a brother of Eddie Seider, partner to Al Moley in Theatrical Enterprises, and nephew to the well known Joe Seider.

For a number of years connected with the Brooklyn Strand theatre in the capacity of publicity man, Lee Ferguson severed this connection to become associated with the Playhouse Operating Corp. For a short period of time Mr. Ferguson managed that company's Hollis theatre, but was recently appointed as special exploiter for the Playhouse Corp., with a number of theatres under his wing.

It was good news to learn that the boys on Pathe's sick list are on the mend. Milt Kronacher is again about after an operation for ulcers of the stomach, and John Dacey has bid adieu to the French Hospital where he underwent a leg operation.

The Motion Picture Salesmen's organization conducted a meeting at the Manger Hotel this past week, to nominate officers for the coming year. Their recent 8th annual dinner-dance, held last Saturday at the Hotel Commodore, was a success.

Remodeled Warwic in K. C. Opened

THE Warwic Theatre, one of the larger suburban houses of Kansas City, opened last Friday to a capacity crowd after being closed several months for remodeling, costing $75,000. Members of the South Side Business Men's Association attended in a group. M. E. Leuge, director of the Orpheum theatre orchestra for thirty years, has taken his orchestra to the Warwic, the Orpheum now being a stock company house instead of Orpheum vaudeville. F. W. Werner is manager of the Warwic.

Herman Gould, manager of the Hubble Theatre, Trenton, Mo., heard of a 70-year-old man in Trenton, who never had seen a motion picture show. Gould at once sent him an invitation to attend the theatre, which was accepted, with the result a one column front page story in a Trenton newspaper!

The Phototone Company of Missouri, a distributing branch of the Phototone Company of North Vernon, Ind., has opened offices at 118-20 West Eighteenth Street, Kansas City, Mo.

Two Incorporations Reported for Va.

PLANS to build a theatre seating 2095 persons, to cost about $350,000, at Bristol, Va., are under way by the Bristol Amusement Co., Inc., H. M. Pulford, president. The capital of the company is $150,000.

The Patrician Theatre will be built and the Fellers' Hall will be rebuilt at Martinsburg, W. Va., if the plans of the United Productions Corp. are carried out. The company has been chartered with $500,000 capital.

Harry Greenman, of the Washington, D. C., Fox Theatre, has resigned to go to the Fox Theatre, St. Louis. He has been succeeded at the Fox, Washington, by David Idzal, who will also have charge of the Philadelphia house.

The Hippodrome, here, which has been running Keith-Albee vaudeville, went into stock beginning Monday, Dec. 3. This leaves only one straight vaudeville and picture house here, the New Garden showing Keith-Albee vaudeville with Loew's Century presenting the Loew-Publick stage shows, with their moving picture bills.

The Rialto Theatre, Washington, D. C., has been closed.

Nathan Machat, president of the Motion Picture Guild, operating Little Theatres in Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Detroit, is now at the Sinai Hospital here undergoing treatment.

The Ideal Theatre, Julius Goodman proprietor, a residential theatre here, has had Vitaphone and Movietone mechanism installed and the new policy started Monday, December 3.

E. A. Lake, who managed the Keith-Albee Hippodrome here for several years, has resigned to take over the management of the new Keith Theatre in Rochester, N. Y. He has been succeeded by Nat Keane, formerly associated with Pierce and Scheck.

H. H. Maloney, Jr., from Fort

Worth, Texas, and assistant manager of Loew's Stanley here, and Elizabeth Jarvis Clayton of Baltimore, will be married January 15, at St. Michael's and All Angels' Church.

Emma Snyder, formerly cashier at Loew's Stanley here, has gone to Washington, D. C., to become phone supervisor at the Earle Theatre there. Alice Raines has succeeded Miss Snyder.

Edmund Kane, for a number of years in the show business, is now handling the publicity and advertising for Dr. M. Sayle Taylor's stage show.

Thomas Mohr has been appointed organist at the Astor Theatre by Julius Goodman, manager.

Two New Theatres in Buffalo Section

LOOKING forward to the opening of their new State Theatre in Ithaca, N. Y., about Dec. 10th, are H. L. and Ben Bernstein.

Harry G. Clark is rushing to completion his 750-seat theatre in Ithaca.

Among the exhibitors seen along Film Row last week were Mr. Hager from North Collins and Mr. Vogel of the Roxy Theatre of Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Vogel has built a beautiful theatre where the princess once stood.

Clarence Snyder, booker for Gotham Pictures, wore a glad smile when he stepped into the local office the other day. He boasts a little eight and one-half pound baby girl arrived at his home last Friday morning.

J. Walter Morris, manager of the Happy Hour Theatre on Main St. Buffalo, is on the receiving end of many congratulations, and is deserving of them, having just finished his twelfth year as manager of this theatre.

Florence Hendl of the First Graphic Exchange found a perfectly good husband last week, changing her name to Krug.

National Screen Service Representative made a trip through the Southern tier last week.

Normal Week on 'Frisco Row

SAM PERLIN for many years a familiar figure in the local motion picture industry, passed away very suddenly Nov. 10th, after an illness of but a few hours. Perlin has been associated with Golden State Theatres for some time and at the time of his death was manager of the Parkway Theatre, Oakland.

Manager Mark Cory has returned from Los Angeles, where he went for a conference with E. J. O'Leary, feature sales manager, and Les Weir, western district manager. J. Frank Shea was a recent visitor at the local FBO office.

Al Oxtaby has returned from Fresno where he traveled in the interest of First National Pictures. Sam Dubois of the Rink Theatre, Dos Palos, was a recent visitor on Film Row.

"Pete" Whitelow, who was formerly with First National, has taken a position with United Artists.

Martin Schiff, Universal's traveling auditor, has made a survey of the local office books.

Mr. Bigford has been promoted from booker at United Artists to office manager, replacing Carl Milton, who resigned.

J. J. Patridge, Paramount's manager of the San Francisco office, attended the managers' and district managers' convention in New York, November 11 to 15.

Indiana Reports Manager Changes

GEORGE Gordon, who resigned about four weeks ago as manager of the Palace theatre, South Bend, Ind., has been replaced by C. W. McDaniel, former manager of the Granada theatre here. Leroy Williams, formerly in charge of the Orpheum theatre, will become manager of the Granada. Mr. Gordon has not announced his future plans, but stated he intended motoring to California, where he will spend the winter.

The first motion picture house at Mars Hall, a suburb of Indianapolis, has been opened. It is managed by Louis Cernat.

The Armo theatre, 915 South Michigan street, South Bend, Ind., was opened recently. The theatre will seat about 750 persons.

William C. Sanderson, head of a gravel company at Paducah, Ky., has purchased the old Strand theatre building at Evansville, Ind., which was burned two years ago, the loss being given then as about $10,000. The purchase price was not made public.

3 Ohio Openings One With Sound

REAL NETH opened his Cameo theatre, Columbus, Ohio, with Movietone and Vitaphone, December 2, with "The Jazz Singer" as the initial sound feature. The house, originally known as the Vernon, has been closed for some weeks pending installation of the sound devices, and reopened under the new name. It caters to colored patronage.

The Ogden theatre, at Long and Garfield avenues, Columbus, which was recently completed, has opened with vaudeville and pictures. It is owned and operated by colored persons.

The Ritz theatre, Tiffin, Ohio, opened Thanksgiving Day, with James Werba as manager. Werba, until recently, managed the Grand in that city, and has been succeeded by Dean Metzgar.

Among those visiting Cincinnati exchanges recently were Harry Silver, Hamilton, Ohio; E. Dodge, New Richmond, Ohio, and R. Mitchell, Barbourville, Ky.

Chester Martin, manager of the Orpheum theatre, Cincinnati, after showing a picture of a football game between two local high schools, presented the film to the winning school to be placed in their archives.

John Schwalm, manager of the Rialto theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, was host to local high school students when their annual Hi-Nite was put on with special features.

Atlanta

THE Franklin Theatre, Ft. Valley, Ga., has been taken over by Joe Stonaris, who formerly operated several houses in Florida. This house was, for several years, operated by Walter Brandenburg, who disposed of his interest to A. H. McCarty, who, in turn, sold to Mr. Stonaris.

The Capitol Theatre at Montgomery, Ala., has been taken over by DeWess & Katz, according to information received. The Capitol was operated for several years by Joe Wheeler.

The Grand Theatre, Cedartown, Ga., has been taken over by C. H. Graves. Joe Wheeler is manager. The Grand was damaged by fire some months ago and had not been operated until recently.

C. R. Beacham, special sales representative for First National, was in Atlanta for a brief visit the latter part of the week.

Messrs. DeWess and Katz have taken over operation of the Capitol Theatre at Montgomery, Ala.

E. A. Rambonnet, special sales representative of Arthur C. Bromberg Attractions in the Charlotte territory, has returned to that section after completing about three weeks of special work in Atlanta.

Arthur C. Bromberg, president of Arthur C. Bromberg Attractions, with headquarters in Atlanta, returned to his office the first of the week after spending about ten days in Florida.

Jack Keegan, general booking manager for Vitaphone, spent a week at the company's Atlanta branch.

William G. Minder, southern district manager for Tiffany-Stahl, with headquarters in Atlanta, has been on an extended trip through the Alabama territory.

Exhibitors seen along Atlanta's film row this past week were: J. T. Freeman, Griffin, Ga.; L. B. Harrell, of Lyric and Orpheum, Waycross, Ga.; Cy Colley, Westmont Theatre, Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. I. H. Dietz, Star Theatre, Covington, Ga.; Holt Mitchell, Dixie Theatre, Pelham, Ga.; H. E. Edenfeld, Dreamland Theatre, Augusta, Ga.; Lee Castleberry, Gadsden, Ala.; Herman Silverman, Grand Theatre, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Nathan Morgan, Roy Martin chain, Columbus, Ga.; Carl Cope, Colonial Theatre, Ga.; William R. Griffin, Strand Theatre, Cullman, Ala.

Birmingham

Encouraging news headlines many newspapers throughout the state carry, showing railroad companies are placing orders for steel rails, gondolas and other railroad equipment, and even now some Birmingham steel plants are blowing in furnaces idle for several months, which will make many local people feel that Christmas really means something when they get a couple of paydays together. There are no wild claims of "boom" conditions but most business men feel that, with the resumption of factory work and steel and iron manufacture, Alabama will have turned the corner.

Joe Patton, for the past several weeks acting manager of the Empire Theatre, one of the Marvin Wise chain, has returned to Atlanta and will resume his duties as publicity man for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The Empire, at least temporarily, will be under the personal direction of Frank V. Merritt, general manager of the Marvin Wise Theatres.

C. L. Peavey, Atlanta branch manager for FBO, was a Birmingham visitor the past week.

Willard C. Patterson, district manager for Publix, was also in Birmingham last week.

Damage estimated at several hundred dollars was done by a fire at the Odeon Theatre on Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala., early Wednesday afternoon.

The film was ignited and flames damaged the operating room. Other damage was done by smoke. J. B. Amberson, projectionist, suffered burns about the hands and arms when he attempted to extinguish the blaze.

P. A. Engler, of the Famous and Champion Theatres, went on a fishing trip the past week.

Lee L. Castleberry of the Princess Theatre, Gadsden, dropped in on Birmingham the past week, as did Joe Portera of the Sunshine Theatre, Brookside.

Charlotte

Several Vitaphone installations will be completed in North Carolina within the next thirty days, including the Lyric and Gastonia Theatres at Gastonia, the Broadhurst at High Point, Quarles' Theatre at Burlington, the Wilson at Wilson, and reported for installation not later than January 5 are the Sams Theatres and the Colonial at Winston-Salem.

H. F. Kinney and his architect have been in New York purchasing furnishings and equipment for the new Publix-Saenger Theatre at Winston-Salem, N. C., which is expected to open around Christmas.

M. Buchanan, of Tupelo, Miss., has leased the Carolina Theatre at West Asheville, N. C., from the Continental Trust Company of Charlotte, receiver for Carolina Theatres, Inc. Mr. Buchanan has also purchased the Strand Theatre at Canton, N. C., from R. W. Sherill.

The Lyric Theatre at Beattyville, Ky., is closing down to two nights per week for the next three months.

Leo the Lion, living trade-mark of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, did his clever tricks in person at the Strand and Ben Ali Theatres at Lexington, Ky., last week. The animal is making a tour of the world.

The Paramount Theatre at Columbus, Ky., has closed.

The Orion Theatre at Kuttawa, Ky., has been closed and dismantled.

W. T. Green has purchased the Palace Theatre at Bessemer City, N. C., from Beam & Plummer.

The Best Theatre at Warsaw, N. C., has been sold by R. B. Best to Mary G. Quinn.

R. C. Cawthorne has sold the Central Theatre at Anderson, S. C., to W. S. Finch.

Charles H. Arrington, of the Palace, Lyric and Cameo Theatres at Rocky Mount, N. C., and Rudolph Mason, of Mason's Theatre at Goldsboro, N. C., made a trip to New York last week to inspect several different types of sound reproducing devices.

Ray Gardner, salesman for Fox in this territory for many years, has been seriously ill at the Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte.

Reynolds Wilbanks, manager of the Paramount exchange here, returned early last week from the Paramount convention held in New York.

Orchestraphones were installed last week in the Columbia Theatre at Albermarle, N. C., and the Alameda Theatre at Albermarle, by the National Theatre Supply Company. The Columbia is owned by George Hughes and the Alameda by E. L. Hearne.

Florida

Work is progressing nicely with the installation of the sound equipment in the Tampa and the house announced the starting of sound films for Sunday, Dec. 16th.

Mrs. N. V. Darley, manager of the Royal, Tarpon Springs, spent Sunday in Tampa.

New upholstered seats have been installed in the Strand and beautiful heavy carpet laid in the foyer.

Jesse L. Clark, Florida district manager for Publix, and W. E. Drumbar and W. L. Whitehead plan to leave Jacksonville for Atlantic City to attend a conference of district managers and other executives of the Publix.

E. J. Sparks, head of the Sparks chain of theatres in Florida, is expected to return to Jacksonville about December 12. He is now in Mexico on a hunting trip with friends.

Pittsburgh Theatres Change Policies

TWO prominent East Liberty (Pittsburgh) theatres, the Liberty, owned by the Stanley company and the Cameraphone owned by H. B. Kester, which have been playing week stands have changed to a split week policy, the change having taken place Thanksgiving Week. The Liberty also cut balcony admission rates from forty cents to twenty-five cents.

Earl Lohr, of the Film Distributing Company, had a narrow escape from serious injury recently as the result of an unusual accident. Earl was driving his closed car, when a link from a tire chain on a truck immediately preceding him, snapped off the chain and hurtled back through Earl's windshield, smashing the glass. The chain link hit the back of the car and just missed striking Earl in the face. Lady Luck was riding with him that time!

Recent theatre owner visitors to Pittsburgh's exchange center included: Carl Becker, Butler; Joe Mercer, Warwood; James Retter, California; Tom Rankin, Bridgeville; Mike Marks, Oil City; J. B. Kane, Pitcairn; Bart Dattola and Sam Hyman, New Kensington; Paul Jones, St. Marys.

James Lynch has completed construction of his new theatre building in Bridgeville, and will soon announce his opening date.

Claud Saunders, exploitation manager for Paramount, was a recent visitor to Pittsburgh and conferred with David Brown, accessory sales manager of the local branch.

Louis "Sticks" Padolf, well-known Pittsburgh film salesman, was married on November 13th to Miss Lillian Marietta.

The Stanley Company is rushing to completion their new 3000-seat Enright Theatre in East Liberty, and hope to open the house on Christmas Day.

Another Milwaukee Show Robbed

ANOTHER Milwaukee theatre robbed! This time, however, it was done by experienced safe blowers. Bandits attempted to blow up the Orpheum safe but two charges of "soup" failed to do more than dent the safe door and $8,000 receipts lay safe inside. $80 was taken from the box office, which was locked in a small box. One of the bandits, it is supposed, remained hidden in the theatre after the last performance and let in his associates.

Louis Orloff, formerly manager of the Mirth Theatre, is now managing the Tivoli. He succeeds Ken Butterfield, who is now at the Mirth.

The door curtain at the Whitehouse Theatre was destroyed by fire. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Steve Dorece, manager of the Crown at Racine, recently purchased a new sedan.

Art Schmitz, formerly a sales representative for F.B.O., has been appointed branch manager of F.B.O. to succeed M. H. Hull.

M. P. Kelley, who for the past year has been director of exploitation for Midwesco, has resigned his position to take over the publicity work for Northwest Airways at St. Paul.

The Strand had a small fire, which started in the basement and did some damage before it was halted.

H. W. Foerste is now manager at the Uptown Theatre to succeed Al Kvoel. Mr. Kvoel is now managing director of Midwesco's Milwaukee houses.

Inquiries and Comments

Television Outfits for Amateurs

TELEVISION reception, in its present stage promises to be quite inexpensive although future developments probably will alter this condition as more elaborate apparatus will be required to obtain greater perfection in results.

The present state of the television receiver can be compared with that of the crystal type of receiver which prevailed in the early days of radio broadcasting when it was possible to purchase a satisfactory headphone set for as little as ten or fifteen dollars.

Now, too, it is possible for any interested projectionist to obtain satisfactory television reception at a cost not exceeding twenty-five or thirty dollars. Indeed, C. Francis Jenkins, who is accredited as being the inventor of the motion picture, and who has been actively engaged in solving the problems of successful television, is now offering to send to any interested person, the "makings" of a television outfit for the small price of two and one half dollars.

A Kit for Two and One Half Dollars

This television kit consists of a scanning disc, a shaft and bearings for mounting same, a neon lamp and several other odds and ends together with complete and explicit instructions for assembling the material and attaching it to a simple battery type of radio receiver.

Aside from the material which Mr. Jenkins offers for this price the experimenter will require a small A. C. motor for driving the scanning disc and an ordinary three tube radio receiver, preferably of the resistance coupled type.

With such a simple outfit, Mr. Jenkins claims that fully satisfactory reception (within present limits of the act) can be obtained from most of the stations now broadcasting television programs.

He is even willing, upon application, to suggest a source where radio receivers of the proper type can be obtained at a low price so as to leave no obstacle in the path of the television amateur which might deter him from enjoying this new form of entertainment.

It might reasonably be asked "What is the motive behind this generous offer of a television kit for such a low price?" to which question Mr. Jenkins is frank to reply that it is solely for the purpose of stimulating wide interest in television.

As said before, these outfits together with complete instructions can be obtained from Mr. C. Francis Jenkins by sending two and a half dollars to him, addressing the envelope to:

The C. Francis Jenkins Laboratories,
Washington, D. C.

The Principles of Television

In its simplest form, the television receiver consists of an ordinary radio receiver and amplifier for picking up and then amplifying the signals broadcast by another station; a neon lamp which is connected to the receiver in the same fashion as a pair of headphones or loud speaker; a motor driven scanning disc with lens and a screen.

The projection lens and screen may be dispensed with where the pictures are not to be magnified to proportions greater than those represented by the scanning disc picture. In this case the observer looks directly into the scanning disc when reception is in progress.

The method of operation, for the elements enumerated above, is as follows:

The incoming electrical impulses are intercepted by the antenna and directed to the receiver where they are rectified and magnified in exactly the same fashion as the ordinary radio receiver. These impulses instead of then being passed through a pair of headphones or a loud speaker to make them audible are passed through a neon lamp which is caused to light to different degrees of brightness depending upon the strength of the electrical impulses which follow one another through the lamp.

A motor driven scanning disc, with adjustable speed control, is placed just before the neon lamp for the purpose of rendering the fluctuations of brightness in the neon lamp visible in the form of a complete picture. Herein lies the secret of television and in order to explain this, it is necessary to digress from the subject.

If an ordinary newspaper photograph or magazine photograph be inspected under a magnifying glass, it will be seen to consist of black and white dots patterned after the screen through which the printing plate was photographed. The proportion of the white dots to black dots in any given area of the photograph determines the shading of that particular area. Thus if a black object is to be represented in the photograph, the black dots would far exceed the number and size of the white dots so that the finished appearance would be that of a solidly black object.

Where the spacing between the white and black dots is great, such as in newspaper photographs due to the coarse paper used, the finished picture is not so sharply defined as where the spacing between dots is very small such as in photographs printed on smooth calendered eq. paper.

The number of lines of dots to the inch determine the sharpness of the finished photograph and since this number is low in present television practice, it is impossible to greatly magnify these pictures because the white and black dot structure would show in the same fashion as when a newspaper photograph is inspected under a magnifying glass.

Each complete television picture, analogous to a single frame of a motion picture film, is cut up into many smaller ones and each one of these small pictures is then transmitted separately. They are transmitted and received so rapidly, however, that the last section is presented to the eye before the first section has a chance to fade so that the eye sees all sections of the complete picture at the same time. The next complete picture, transmitted and presented section by section, then follows so rapidly that the illusion of continuous motion is obtained with the result that the picture seen through the scanning disc is a true motion picture.

Similar to Motion Pictures

The persistence of vision effect used in television reception is the same as that which makes ordinary motion pictures possible and the scanning disc used is analogous to the intermittent sprocket and revolving shutter of the motion picture projector.

The scanning disc consists of a disc of metal which has a line of holes cut into it, this line of holes being curved inward toward the center in the form of a spiral.

If one continuous line of holes is used, it will extend all the way around the disc and the end of the line will come about 1 inch or more (up to 6 inches) below the beginning of the line. This line of holes will be similar to one complete turn of a watch spring with the two ends opposite each other but not touching.

The distance between the beginning and end of the line of holes governs the size (height) of the picture. Thus, if the two ends are separated by a distance of 1 inch, the picture will be 1 inch high. Each hole in the disc represents a dot of light in the completed picture, these dots all varying as to brightness. As the disc revolves before the neon lamp, each revolution represents one complete picture, and each hole in the disc corresponds to a fixed point in the picture. These holes, as they move past the neon lamp, permit the light fluctuations in the lamp to pass through the disc.

A similar arrangement is used in transmitting station and at the exact moment that a given light impulse is being trans-

Avalon Theatre, Ottawa, Boasts Developments New to Canada

UNUSUAL in many ways is the Avalon Theatre, Ottawa, which was formally opened November 17 by P. J. Nolan, proprietor, and P. Ambrose Nolan, manager. The Avalon Theatre marks a distinct development in suburban house ideas. Although it is a neighborhood theatre, seating 1,000 persons, the Avalon is:

The first theatre in Eastern Canada to have an exterior and interior atmospheric effect; the first to be built and opened with sound picture facilities actually incorporated in the structure during erection; the first in Canada to make use of the Brenkert Brenograph scenic effect projection; the first to have a double stage, one for the orchestra and the other four feet higher and to the rear, for stage presentations; the first suburban house in the Dominion to have a 28-piece orchestra and a dancing chorus of nine for ballets, together with a uniformed corps of eight ushers who had been drilled by an army sergeant; the first suburban house in Canada to have an opening which was attended by patrons in formal dress, all seats being $1 for the first night with regular prices thereafter—35 cents and 45 cents.

The Ottawa Avalon is looked upon as a "big little theatre" and, because of its many innovations, has attracted wide attention. It had been intended to open with a sound program but the installation could not be made in time. The theatre has been equipped with special Simplex projectors, however; has a battery room, Transvox screen and other facilities all ready for sound pictures. The theatre has a concert grand piano, Wurlitzer organ, dressing rooms, oil heating system, richly furnished foyer with smoking facilities for ladies and gentlemen, 300 lodge seats and many other interesting features. A Spanish atmospheric effect has been employed and the auditorium, which is of stadium type, presents a wonderful garden scene with the ceiling representing the open sky, across which clouds pass. Outside the Spanish mission style has been followed.

Construction Notes and Theatre Openings

It is announced that the old Star Theatre at Payson, Utah, has been completely redecorated and remodelled. New carpets, stage fixtures, screen and loges have been installed as well as two new reflector arcs. The re-opening of the house was held on Armistice night. The theatre's new name will henceforth be The Orpheum. It is one of a chain operated by the C. C. McDermond interests in Southern Utah. Roland Lindsey is resident manager.

Extensive improvements are under way at the Loop Theatre on South St., Paducah, Ky. A new graded floor has replaced the old artificially elevated type and new seats, with plenty of space between the rows, have been installed. The front of the structure is being remodelled, new illumination is supplanting the old, and rest rooms are fast being constructed. A balcony, to increase the seating capacity to more than 500, has been started at the Loop. It is planned to tear out the stage and erect one extending across the entire width of the building. Everything will be in readiness shortly, it is expected.

A theatre with a seating capacity of 350 opened on December 1 in Hummelstown, Dauphin County, Penn. Edward George, of Harrisburg, is in charge. The house, an old one-story hall, was remodelled by him and repainted and refurnished, including the installation of a new heating system. The house will be called The Orpheum. Its only rival in Hummelstown is the Star, operated by Sam Wood and claiming the same seating capacity. The building was leased by Mr. George from Mrs. Adams, of Marysville.

Construction has started on the new theatre being erected by Tommy James at 2002 Market St., St. Louis, on ground owned by the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis. Duffner and Stecker Construction Co. are the contractors. The building will be one-story. 33 by 110 feet and will cost approximately $15,000.

mitted, or televised, in the sending station, that same light impulse is being received and presented to the observer's eye in the receiving station.

This means that the scanning disc in the receiver must be perfectly synchronized with the scanning disc in the sending station so that corresponding holes in the disc will pass before the respective light sources at exactly the same moment.

In this manner, each little section of the picture is received at exactly the same moment that it is transmitted and we, therefore, see what is happening at the moment it happens.

This, in brief, is television. And it is very simple when one understands.

Cutler-Hammer Move to New Atlanta Quarters

The Cutler-Hammer Manufacturing Company, dealers in electric control apparatus, moved their Atlanta office last Saturday, December 1, and are now located at 150 Peters Street, S. W., in the Georgia city.

The new quarters provide warehouse facilities for the carrying in stock of various standard devices for shipment to clients in the Atlanta territory. The South is consuming more electrical power than ever before and it is with this thought in mind that Cutler-Hammer are providing this immediate local shipping service.

A. C. Gibson is in charge of the Atlanta office.

3 New Houses for the West Coast Chain

Three new Wesco theatres—the Redlands, the Riverside and the North Park—will shortly throw open their doors.

The Redlands Theatre, Redlands, Cal., West Coast junior circuit house, will open on December 28; Harry Sugarman is head.

The Riverside Theatre, Riverside, Cal., will open on January 11.

The North Park Theatre, San Diego, will open on January 17; this house was designed especially for talking pictures.

Christmas Greetings from the Kilgen Organization

Two hundred and eighty-eight years ago the music of the Kilgen Organ first told its swelling story of Christmas cheer and good will to men. This Christmas, in thousands of theatres and auditoriums in this and other lands, Kilgen Organs will again repeat to millions of music lovers the old, old story that never dies.

The constant perfecting of the Kilgen Organ through nearly three centuries, and the growth of the Kilgen Organization to world's first place in Organ production and facilities, has been possible only through the appreciation of those who provide this King of Instruments for their audiences. For this appreciation we are very thankful.

And so it is with a heart full of gratitude and good will that the Kilgen Organization extends Christmas Greetings to the theatre-owners of America — to the discriminating organists—and to that vast army of listeners which knows and demands the unequalled Voice of the Silent Drama — The Kilgen Wonder Organ.

- box office Value!

Exhibitors who keep a watchful eye on the "box office," find that Robert Morton music has a definite and permanent place in successful theatre operation, and that it is an investment that pays for itself in increased "box office receipts!"

No other make of organ approaches Robert Morton in Quality, Volume, Distinctness of tone, Orchestral Resources or Variety of Effects. It is the most powerful single factor any Exhibitor can employ to provide a complete Picture Presentation Program.

Yet for all its unquestioned superiority the Robert Morton is among the least expensive theatre Organs to own - not only because it is more durable and costs less for upkeep - but it pays for itself through increased patronage.

Remember "It"? Remember "Red Hair"? Clara Bow starred in them. Elinor Glyn wrote them. Clarence Badger directed them. You cleaned up with them! The same triumphant trio has delivered another box office Bow-nanza—"Three Week Ends". It's what the public ordered, doubled and re-doubled! Clara as the cabaret cutie whose week-end was another girl's lifetime. Clara as the big splash in the millionaire's private swimming pool. Clara in the type of role that has made her the most popular star on the screen! Play her and give your wife a limousine for Christmas! A silent picture that will be the talk of any man's town. The kind of class silent product PARAMOUNT continues to turn out week after week to the delight of all classes of theatres, wired or otherwise.

LINES.

We are attaching herewith a review of BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES. We picked this particular review, not because it is the most favorable - it isn't - but because of the intelligence with which it deals with this particular picture. The constant line at the box office of the Rialto Theatre, New York, since this picture started its run, in a week when the amusement business all along Broadway has been depressed, testifies to the exceptional drawing power of BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES.

There is a tremendous popular interest in this picture -- far greater than even we ourselves anticipated. The picture, for the first time, reveals clearly and in a smoothly running narrative exactly what happened behind the German lines during the war as recorded by the official German war photographers. I cannot imagine an audience that will not be thrilled to the bone by it. It is utterly different from and superior to anything of its kind ever seen and HEARD before.

I rate BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES one of the outstanding attractions of the Paramount current program and one that will get plenty of money for exhibitors.

Sincerely,

They Mean Real Money To

An Important Review

"BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES" DRAWS VIVID WAR PICTURE

By KATHARINE ZIMMERMANN.

Paramount presents official German war film of campaign on Western and Near Eastern fronts, prepared by UFA. At the Paramount.

A WEEK ago, when the laboriously reconstructed version of the Battle of the Somme arrived here from England and dropped anchor at the Cameo, I ventured to remark right out loud that I doubted that these authentic war narratives would find so clamorous a public as they did perhaps six or eight years ago.

And now I take it all back. For there has arrived at the Rialto this week-end as vibrant and thrilling a film as ever held a movie critic barnaced to the press box for two consecutive showings. It is called "Behind the German Lines," and it represents UFA's expression of the war reflected from the other side of the brick wall. Back-boned with flashes of contemporary newsreel, etched in with stretches of official warm film and cemented into one homogeneous whole with vivid, breath catching atmosphere shots, UFA has prepared a picture that deserves more than any of its companion pieces to go down to posterity.

This is the first time that I have seen a war picture which makes an intelligent stab at correlating incidents on the different battle fronts and explaining to spectators just what they were all about. As a rule, they are content with atmosphere shots, men in trenches, high explosives blasting them to smithereens, machine guns raging tanks in action, mining, counter-mining, aerial manoeuvres and the like. But "Behind the German Lines" goes much further than that. By means of a number of ingeniously interspersed relief maps you can follow the whole campaign from the first shot that thundered across the world from Sarajevo on June 25, 1914, to the signing of the Armistice. In newsreel shots you can see the nations mobilizing—Serbia, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Germany, France, Belgium, Great Britain, and later Turkey, Italy and the United States.

There are close-ups of the Czar, the Kaiser and the Crown Prince, the King and Queen, Kitchener, Von Hindenburg, Bethmann-Hollweg, Poincare, Joffre, Woodrow Wilson, Prince Karl of Austria-Hungary, Von Bulow, Von Gluck and a score more figures of international significance, each playing his appointed role in the grim charade that shook the world.

You can hear the Belgian guns thunder a powerful halt. You are shown the German Second Army hurling furiously on toward Paris, the Crown Prince lunging for Calais, the two armies torn from the Western front to stem the wild tide of Russians pouring in from the East. Von Hindenburg's brilliant coup around Przemysl, the first rumble of the Russian revolution, the battles of Verdun, the Aisne, the Marne, the Somme, the deadlocks at Ypres, Mons, Maubeuge, Nieuport, the British guns sweeping the Channel and barking at Gallipoli, Gallieni's taxi army chugging into action, the Germans' desperate threat to neutral vessels cruising into allied waters, America's answer in a frowning line of troopships bending toward France, and the relentless mass move that brought the final curtain down.

"Behind the German Lines" is a picture that must be seen. It is neither heroic nor hysterical. And certainly it is not biased, for while the compilers of this document are frank in admitting their own mistakes and trespasses, they have not a single pointer aimed at such alleged blunders as may have come to pass.

Here is not mere authenticity but drama in its largest sense, beating out the bloodiest carnage in the history of the world in pulsing, international rhythm.

I submit it to your attention as one of the outstanding pictures of its time.

"Trebled Business!"

"Am more than pleased with the remarkable showing made by your serial 'Tarzan.' Each Saturday matinee has shown a surprising increase over the preceding week. In fact, the receipts last Saturday were just three times as much as the first Saturday of the run."

Frank W. Galvin,
Alhambra Theatre,

"Business Increased 78%!"

"Just as soon as Universal is ready to release another 'Tarzan' serial kindly notify me so that I can sign up at once. 'Tarzan' has proven to be a wonderful box-office attraction. My business on the night it is shown has increased 78%."

John B. Dumstre,

"It's a WOW!"

"A moment of your time, please. Kindly tell 'Uncle Carl' to feed us exhibitors more serials like 'Tarzan The Mighty.' It's a WOW! Audience reaction great. A serial like 'Tarzan' is worth its weight in gold!"

A. Lehman,
Canton Theatre,
Canton, Miss.

"Magic in the Title!"

"There is certainly magic in the title 'Tarzan The Mighty.' I put it on on the off day in one of my small towns, where it seemed that it might be necessary to close up on that day, and by exploiting the serial to the limit it looks as if I have got them coming."

G. E. Fuller, The Playhouse,
Fairhope, Ala.

"Tremendous Business!"

"Just a few words giving my opinion of the wonderful serial, 'Tarzan The Mighty,' which I am now running. I ran chapter 8 last Saturday, and did a TREMENDOUS BUSINESS. My patrons say every episode gets better, and they are tickled to death that it has been extended to fifteen episodes. It is the best serial I have ever run."

W. T. McEntyre, Princess Theatre, Enterprise, Ala.

"Realized a Neat Sum!"

"I congratulate Universal on having such a good serial as 'Tarzan.' We opened in two towns, and I must say that it was indeed a great drawing card and we realized a neat sum on it."

A General Motors in Pictures

By William A. Johnston

RUMORS of large consolidations of film companies—theatres as well as producers and distributors—fill the air. Vigorous denials follow printed stories. And the man in the film street is wondering what's what.

The important thing, it seems to us, is not the question of whether one company is to merge with another, or whether one head is conferring with another, or which company is buying the other company's stock. Moves are being made; there's no doubt about that. A story may be right or it may be wrong. The important thing is just what is the definite trend of the industry's forces—and why. That is what the man who owns a theatre wants to know; and so does every employee in the business.

It has always been the habit of the trade to ascribe a major move to the personal ambition or strategy—or both—of some industrial leader. That is scarcely the truth today. The bankers are in the business. It is our belief that recent consolidations have been very largely in their hands, from beginning to end. The man uptown who, in the trade's habitual gossip gets the credit for a big deal, is quite apt to get his orders downtown.

Bankers, it is said, are selfishly interested in consolidations; they make their profits that way. But bankers of repute look further than that. When they distribute stock to the broad public, they are the custodians of these securities. That's their major, and selfish interest. They are just as much concerned about the welfare of these securities as a theatre man about his clientele or a producer about his product.

Bankers are opposed to waste and destructive competition. If consolidations are needed to eliminate these economic evils and put the industry and its securities upon a stable basis, then we are going to have consolidations, perhaps on a large scale.

There is talk of a General Motors of the film industry, maybe two or three.

That does not alarm us. On the contrary.

We know perfectly well that neither theatre nor production nor distribution activities are sound, that something sensible must be done to give the public what its money is worth without the expense that makes red figures.

We have passed through an era of theatre and production inflation. Wild promotion has overseated the centres of population; then followed inflation in theatre presentation, the blind effort to give a two dollar show for sixty cents. Studio expense has passed all bounds of sound business.

Things have got to be mopped up. If consolidations make the right mop, then consolidations are in order and inevitable.

Not mergers. You cannot merge parallel concerns. But you can consolidate activities and make them pay.

And not stock jobbing. A consolidation should aim to stabilize properties and not to inflate stock values.

We are in an era of reconstruction. It was inevitable. When the lines straighten out you will, in our firm opinion, find this industry in better shape than ever before and a better opportunity than ever before for the independent theatre man and the independent producer and for each individual anywhere who doesn't fourflush and who can deliver the goods.

FBO to Make "Rio Rita" as Talkie; Marks Change in Policy

AS an indication of the new policy to be pursued by FBO, Joseph I. Schnitzer, newly elected president of the corporation, has purchased the screen rights to the Ziegfeld musical show, "Rio Rita," and announces that his company will produce the production as an elaborate talkie.

"Rio Rita" will be the first special on FBO's 1929-30 program in affiliation with Radio-Keith-Orpheum. Contracts for the acquisition of the operetta were signed by Mr. Schnitzer and Florenz Ziegfeld. It is promised as the first Ziegfeld show that will be screened with songs and dialogue intact. The original cast, headed by J. Harold Murray, Ethelind Terry and immediately began the selection of locations for the exteriors. Interiors will sing and dance in the various roles.

William LeBaron, vice-president of FBO, will supervise the making of "Rio Rita." Upon his arrival in Hollywood during the week, he immediately began the selection of location for the exteriors. Interiors will be shot at the Hollywood studios of FBO.

Other productions are being lined up by Mr. Schnitzer and will be announced from time to time.

Flu and Seasonal Slump Combine to Cut Into Business
—Loew's State Leads at $27,000

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—With the flu epidemic still running strong and the early indications that the seasonal pre-holiday slump is about here, the Los Angeles first-run houses last week suffered reverses, practically all of them showing totals well below the average.

Loew's State topped the week's receipts with a total of $27,000 with a combination attraction bill featuring "The Air Circus," talking and sound, as the screen offering, and personal appearances of Mildred Harris and Gene Morgan as stars of the stage program.

"Adoration," Billie Dove's new starring vehicle drew $22,000 at the Metropolitan. United Artists grossed $12,000 on the week with "Marriage by Contract" as the attraction.

The leader among the long-run offerings of the town was "The Barker," which, with the aid of a capacity opening performance at five-fifty top, for the first week at the Carthay Circle played to a gross of $17,500, this figure including the opening night take of $4,300. The picture appears to be well liked by picturegoers and with a break in the weather and the flu it undoubtedly will draw well over a sizeable run.

"Noah's Ark," in its sixth week at Grauman's Chinese in Hollywood, was down to $15,000. At Warner Brothers theatre "On Trial" in its fourth week grossed $21,000. "Companionate Marriage," held over for a second week at the Criterion, was credited with a total of $8,500.

Paramount Will Remake "Clarence"

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
Hollywood, Dec. 12.—Booth Tarkington's story, "Clarence," dealing with adolescent love, will be made again into a picture by Paramount. It was originally made by this company years ago with Wallace Reid starring. In the new version, Richard Dix will have the title role.

Selznick Enroute to N. Y. to Sign Stage Talent

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
Hollywood, Dec. 12.—Myron Selznick, one of the coast's leading talent managers, is enroute to New York to sign representation contracts with a number of well known stage players for possible talker picture engagements.

Gus Edwards Will Make 6-Reel Movietone Revue

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
Hollywood, Dec. 12.—Gus Edwards will start preparations for production of an elaborate six reel Movietone Revue feature for M-G-M as soon as he completes his current Movietone short for that organization. Edwards will write original music and lyrics for the production in association with James Brockman, former music publisher.

Present plans call for cast consisting mainly of stage and vaudeville "names" and acts, with picture players spotted in the cast only if they can deliver for dialogue or sketches.

Chevalier Vehicle Will Be All-Dialogue Production

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
Hollywood, Dec. 12.—After ten days in production, shooting on Maurice Chevalier's first Paramount picture was stopped when Adolph Zukor ruled to make it 100 per cent talker. The original intention was to have only a few sequences dialogued and with musical numbers. It has been decided also, to have Chevalier talk and sing in English only, instead of French as originally intended.

Decision Upholding Sunday Shows Will Be Appealed

The Attorney-General's Department of the Province of Quebec, through Premier L. A. Taschereau, has entered an appeal from the judgment by Justice Desaulniers in the Superior Court at Montreal upholding the right of motion picture theatres to give Sunday shows on the ground that a moving picture show was not legally a performance under the terms of the Lord's Day Act.

598 Features Censored in Great Britain

During the first nine months of the present year, there have been censored in Great Britain 598 features (3,000 feet or over), the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., learns. During the first half of this year, 429 of these were censored, while the remaining 169 were censored during the third quarter of the year, as follows: 35, July; 69 August; September, 65.

Nicholas M. Schenck Due in New York Saturday

Nicholas M. Schenck left the West Coast last Tuesday following conferences with production officials there, and is due to arrive in New York Saturday.

M-G-M Buys Phyllis Haver's Contract

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—M-G-M is reported to have paid Cecil B. De Mille $25,000 for the contract he held with Phyllis Haver. Miss Haver signed a term contract with De Mille when the latter was producing for Pathe. After her success in "Chicago," Pathe made arrangements to star her in a series of productions for the current year. Upon Pathe's delay in deciding on continuing the deal for Miss Haver for next year, De Mille negotiated sale of her contract to M-G-M.

Cecil De Mille will not use Phyllis Haver in his first M-G-M special, "Dynamite," as reported by various publications.

Hughes Buys "Front Page" for $125,000

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—Howard Hughes purchased the screen rights to "The Front Page" for $125,000 from Jed Harris, legitimate producer, last week. The picture will be made immediately after completion of "Hell's Angels" and will be synchronized 100 per cent with dialogue. The purchase price is said to include dialogue rights.

While Hughes is already affiliated with United Artists and the production is expected to be released through that concern, there is a strong possibility of its being distributed through Paramount. Caddo Productions, of which Hughes is head, has already made two for Paramount release in Thomas Meighan's "The Racket" and "The Mating Call."

Louis Wolheim will play the managing editor. Lewis Milestone will direct.

Otterson Attempts Answers to Small Exhibitors' Problems

Questions Propounded by Motion Picture News Bring Advice to Theatre Owners Who Cannot Afford Expensive Equipment

AS the result of innumerable requests from small town exhibitors over a period of several weeks for information as to what to do regarding sound installations, MOTION PICTURE NEWS propounded three questions to J. E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, which concern has made most of the theatre installations to date. These questions and their answers as made by Mr. Otterson follow:

Question 1: What advice would you give the small exhibitor who is in a quandary about whether or not to place an order for an installation? What is the small exhibitor, who, obviously, cannot pay more than about $2,000 for an installation, to do?

Answer: I doubt if there is any one answer which will apply equally to the many thousands of small exhibitors because their conditions are so different.

We have furnished regular sound projector equipment to many theatres of less than 800 seats and I think the general experience has been that even theatres of that size, if well located, have had no difficulty in so increasing their income as to make the investment pay. We have used no high pressure salesmanship to induce these theatres to buy. The owners have in every case figured out for themselves that the introduction of our sound system would be a good investment. On the other hand other owners of small houses who are not disposed to make such an initial investment have purchased our non-synchronous music amplifying outfit and are using it with satisfactory results. These exhibitors are getting into the sound picture business by easy stages. Later on if their customers want pictures fully synchronized they are in a position to buy additional equipment which they can utilize in conjunction with what they have already installed.

Small Exhibitors Profiting

Question 2: If it remains for the independent sound equipment manufacturer to make equipment for the small exhibitor, what opportunity is there for the small exhibitor to book sound films made by the big picture concerns? This, in view of the fact that the small exhibitor will need the biggest and best sound productions, just as he has needed the best silent pictures, to hold his patronage.

Answer: I know of no reason why the small exhibitor must depend for his sound equipment on what you term "the independent manufacturer."

When sound pictures became an established commercial success it was inevitable that the large exhibitors should be the first to seek to equip their theatres, but as I have said, there were many small exhibitors whose courage matched their foresight, and they are now profiting from their enterprise in being among the first to put in the equipment.

Small exhibitors who want synchronized sound pictures at once can, however, probably not be satisfied. Our advice to them is to use non-synchronous equipment of proven worth upon which early deliveries can be made. Otherwise they must run the risk of tying up their money in equipment which will not reproduce sound films of the principal producers up to the standard of quality which has been set.

Small House Situation

Question 3: Has your company given serious consideration to the financial limitations of the small exhibitor in the purchase of sound equipment? If so, what solution is regarded as practical? Again, if so, how long will the small exhibitor have to wait before he can obtain an installation?

Answer: This question seems to me a restatement of questions 1 and 2.

We are, indeed, concerned about the position in which the small exhibitor finds himself, for he fills a most important part in the industry, which cannot prosper if he is not prospering. Recognizing his financial limitations we have been careful to advise no one to invest in a synchronous system until he has measured the probability of his getting back his cost in increased box office returns.

Of course, nobody could foresee how the movement for sound in pictures would sweep the country. The manufacture of reliable equipment is a job of extreme complexity. We believe there is no company in the world which could have so quickly stepped up to large scale production in the time that Western Electric has. When in the space of a single week last Spring orders for 600 theatre equipments were heaped upon the only known source of supply, it represented approximately a year's manufacturing capacity and it was inevitable that some would have to wait. Since that time, because of Western Electric's tremendous manufacturing resources we have been able to quadruple production, and next year we are going to turn out a minimum of 250 synchronous equipments monthly. The fact that only a handful of other types of machines are installed in theatres today, in spite of the fact that they have been on the market for months and some for years, is pretty good evidence in support of this statement.

But it is more than a job of manufacture, and paralleling our manufacturing development. We have built up a national servicing organization. We wish it were possible to serve immediately the thousands of theatres who want equipment, but unfortunately that cannot be done. Under the circumstances we are carrying on to perform the great obligation which the industry's needs imposed upon us. We are, first of all, interested in maintaining quality of sound production and reproduction. We shall go on building a greater and greater output and at the same time shall pursue our efforts to simplify the equipment and

Warners Reported Organizing Own Music Publishing Concern

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

WARNER BROS., who are expanding generally in all directions, are now reported to be about to embark in the music publishing field. It is said that a new firm is being organized by them and Al Jolson for the purpose of publishing all Warner theme songs, including those Jolson writes and sings.

This movement on the part of Warners is said to be the result of the success of "Sonny Boy," theme song in "The Singing Fool." This song alone is reported netting a fortune for the publishers, and Warners and Jolson see these profits for themselves on future publications.

As in other new ventures Warners have undertaken, the greatest secrecy is being maintained regarding this one. A. W. Warner when questioned regarding it refused to make any comment or to give out any information. He would neither deny nor affirm it. He simply said: "That is a matter I do not care to discuss, I can give you no information regarding it." Asked as to the authenticity of the story he said, "I refuse to discuss it in any way."

The tendency of several of the leading producing companies has been to effect tieups with publishing companies by which they would share in royalties from the sale of sheet music used in their sound productions, but this is said to be the first time a producing company has definitely decided to enter the music field as a publishing concern.

Paramount-Famous-Lasky is said to have an arrangement on the sale of music with Harms, Inc. M-G-M is said to have a similar tieup with the Robbins Music Company. In fact, it is said, M-G-M has secured a controlling interest in the Robbins Company. Fox, similarly, is said to have an arrangement with De Sylva, Brown and Henderson. A number of other deals between producers and music houses are said to be pending.

John Gilbert Signs New Long-Term Contract with M-G-M

RUMORS to the effect that John Gilbert would align himself with other companies upon the expiration of his contract with M-G-M were definitely set at rest this week when the home office of M-G-M announced that he had been signed to a new long-term contract which would keep him in the M-G-M roster of stars for a lengthy period of time. Both the star and Nicholas M. Schenck, president of M-G-M, express themselves in the announcement as heartily satisfied with the new arrangement.

One of the reports that has persisted in Hollywood and which the signing of Gilbert by Metro proves untrue is the rumor that Gilbert had reached a definite agreement with United Artists whereby his vehicles would be released by that company.

Herman Starr President of First National

Warner Executive Named to Head Company as New Officers Are Elected; Companies Operate Separately

WARNER BROS. are now in control of First National, final details having been concluded at a meeting held Tuesday of this week, and Herman Starr has been elected to the presidency of First National, which will retain its individual identity and function separately from Warners.

As new head of First National Starr replaces Irving D. Rossheim, who resigned together with M. L. Finkelstein, A. H. Blank, John McQuirk, Abe Sablosky, Barney Balaban, E. V. Richards and Albert S. Smith, former officers and directors. Starr, up to his appointment as president was general manager of the Warner home offices in New York and also supervised foreign distribution.

Other new officers named to govern First National in addition to Starr, are: S. P. Friedman and G. E. Quigley, vice-presidents; Warren C. Boothby, treasurer, and Robert Perkins, secretary. The new board of directors of First National has been reduced from fourteen to ten and is now made up as follows; Herman Starr, G. E. Quigley, S. P. Friedman, Warren C. Boothby, Robert Perkins, Spyros Skouras, Harold S. Bareford, R. C. Lieber, Jack Leo, Richard Hoyt and S. W. McDonald.

Irving D. Rossheim, who has been serving as president of First National and head of the Stanley Company of America, has been made a member of the directorate of Warner Bros. Pictures. W. C. Boothby has been serving First National as treasurer and retains his post, as does Ned E. Depinet, who as vice-president has been in charge of First National distribution. Perkins, renamed secretary under the new alignment has been serving in that capacity for some time past.

Among the first announcements made by President Starr was that no radical changes in policy would be effected in the company, nor would there be any shakeup in the personnel. The plan is to operate First National and Warners as separate companies, which, while working individually, will be in the closest cooperation.

While it is likely that some of the First National officials will take up their headquarters at the home office of Warners, the majority of them will remain at the present offices until such time as a new building to be erected by Warners in New York is completed. This building will be located in 44th Street between 8th and 9th Avenues adjoining the present home office of the company. It is scheduled to be finished within six months.

The entire scenario department of First National under the direction of Mrs. Florence Strauss was abolished last Saturday. Jerome Beatty, director of Advertising and publicity, has also tendered his resignation.

To Distribute Reeltone in Southwest Territory

The Four-Square-Distributing-Corporation has been formed by Arthur and Stanley Less, and Charles and Murray Weintraub to distribute Reeltone in Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Mississippi, and also Connecticut.

New Film Firms Seek New York State Charters

Motion picture companies incorporating in New York State at Albany, during the past week included the following: Motion Pictures Synchronization Service, Inc., capitalization not stated, Mollie Segall, Isidor Tankus, Hilda Lifschitz, Brooklyn; W. M. Amusement Co., Inc., $10,000, Lewis Moses, Stapleton; Isidor Welt, West Brighton; Elias Moses, Stapleton; Hugo Amusement Co., Inc., $1,000, Philip Sahn, Mollie Segall, Rubin Heller, New York City; Mornstone Talking Picture Machine Corporation, $40,000, Meyer Britwitz, Herbert S. Cohen, Joseph Kleiner, New York City; Edited Pictures System, Inc., $10,000, Isley Boone, Walter A. Yorke, Rose G. Andrews, New York City.

M-G-M Is Not Renewing Writers' Contracts

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 12.—Waldemar Young and Byron Morgan, two M-G-M first line writers, will leave that organization this month upon expiration of their term contracts with the company. Because of indecision on production plans for next year due to talkfilms, M-G-M does not care to sign new term contracts with the writers.

Young has been with M-G-M for five years, and during that time was recognized as one of the most consistent writers with the organization. Morgan has written a number of original stories for M-G-M during the past two years, including "Rookies," "Gold Braid," "The Camera-man," and "The Smart Set."

Herron Elected Treasurer of Hays Organization

F. L. Herron was elected to succeed J. Homer Platten, resigned, as treasurer of the M. P. P. D. A., at the regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the association held in New York last Wednesday.

Mr. Platten resigned to become Executive Vice-President of the White Rock Mineral Springs Company. F. L. Herron, has been associated with the organization for some time as foreign manager. George Borthwick was elected assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Edward Bowes Ill in N. Y. Hospital

Mrs. Edward Bowes, wife of Major Edward Bowes, managing director of the Capitol Theatre and vice-president of M-G-M, is now convalescing from a serious operation performed at the Harbor Hospital in New York City. Her physician, Dr. Philip Grausman, reports that the operation has been successful and that the patient is making favorable progress. It will be several weeks before she will be entirely recovered.

Academy Clinches Deal For Official Fan Paper

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—Douglas Fairbanks completed negotiations for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences whereby Hollywood Magazine becomes the official fan publication of the Academy, beginning with the issue of January 1. This deal was reported as pending exclusively in Motion Picture News several months ago.

The purpose of the arrangement, according to Fairbanks, is to insure truthful information concerning picture people to fans, and to bring direct contact between the Academy and picture theatre patrons.

Radio Keith Pictures New Name for FBO

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—It now seems definitely assured that FBO will change its name to Radio Keith Pictures. The studio here will also be closed down for the construction of four sound stages, it is said. Upon the reopening of the studio, the FBO stock company of players will be established on a permanent basis for the first time in the history of the company.

Exhibitors Back Cohen Protest Against Reduced Advertising

Prominent Showmen Insist Producers are Hurting Own Product by "Economy Program" for Trade Paper Campaigns

EXHIBITOR dissatisfaction over the manner in which producer-distributor sales campaigns are conducted under the "economy rule" for trade paper campaigns this week found widespread expression in vigorous statements from all parts of the country endorsing the stand taken by Sydney S. Cohen in an interview published in MOTION PICTURE NEWS last week, that producers are hurting the business of their own customers by cutting their advertising efforts to a mere gesture.

That Mr. Cohen accurately estimated the situation regarding the attitude of fellow showmen throughout the country appears to be conclusively proved by the numerous statements echoing the opinion he stated. The declaration that the greatest handicap the theatre business suffers today is a psychological one arising from a "negative attitude" created by the lack of producer advertising support for his product, is the essence of the many expressions of the exhibitor.

"Perhaps exhibitors have lost the enthusiasm they once had for motion pictures," said Sig Samuels, managing director of the Metropolitan Theatre, Atlanta, in commenting on the Cohen interview printed last week. "If that is the case, the producers have themselves to blame, for they have shown less faith in their own product."

"The box office is losing vitality," Mr. Samuels continued, "and when the box offices loses the whole industry is slipping. Exhibitors are taking the loss now, but the time will come when producers will feel the effects of that loss. The industry cannot prosper unless the box-office prospers. If the retailers of a product continue to lose the manufacturers will lose in the long-run."

"For some time now the producers have been showing a lessening confidence in pictures in a manner that was bound to communicate the same feeling to exhibitors: by curtailing adequate merchandising information through the one organized channel that the exhibitors depend upon—the trade press."

Started—Then Stopped

"Producers taught us to expect a steady flow of dependable information through the trade papers, and then they suddenly ceased to give us adequate information. They curtailed their merchandising copy. Some of them sought to supplant trade paper advertising with circulars, but no exhibitor has time to wade through bales of circulars to find the facts he is seeking."

"By reducing his merchandising messages to a minimum the producer sought to save money; it seems to have been a part of the general policy of 'retrenchment' but it was a bad policy. The worst part of the 'economy move' was that it actually deprived the exhibitor of facts that he needed. How can the retailer merchandise to the public any product about which he lacks merchandising information? And who but the manufacturer possesses the information which the exhibitor—the retailer—requires?"

"We do not ask for elaborate year books; we have small patience with extravagant claims that a picture fails to back up; we are rather weary of superlatives. But we do want bedrock information, merchandising copy, actual facts that will give us something to work on when we merchandise pictures to the public. And we want those facts far enough in advance to be of some service."

Louie Charninsky, manager of Pantages Theatre, first run house of Kansas City, takes a similar view in a statement he made to this publication.

"There is no question in my mind," he said, "but that an exhibitor must be sold on a producer's product just the same as the exhibitor in turn must sell the picture to his patrons."

"An exhibitor is only human and cannot be expected to become wildly enthusiastic over something in which the owner displays only apparently mild interest."

Wants Facts

"In trade paper advertising why can't the producer give the exhibitor some technical knowledge of actual facts concerning the picture. The exhibitor needn't be told the picture is a box office 'wow,' because he will find it out in a preview, anyway."

"Personally I gain much valuable advance information on certain types of pictures through trade paper advertising and I will welcome the day when I can believe everything I see in advertising on pictures."

"Not for the world would I attempt to tell a producer how to conduct his business, but I will say that when a producer adequately presents his product to me in advertising of the right type that it gives me added confidence in selling the picture to my patrons," R. R. Biechele, manager and owner of the Osage Theatre, suburban house of Kansas City, Kansas, and president of the M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri, said.

Exhibitors Must Be "Sold"

"After all, we exhibitors are patrons of the producers just the same as the public is patrons of us. We must be 'sold' on a picture if we are to make any profit on it in 're-selling' it to the public. When a producer conducts an elaborate advertising campaign on a picture, or a series of pictures, I am going to concede that he must have something good to offer until I have been convinced to the contrary. I am sorry to say that I have been convinced to the contrary in several cases, but the pictures which had been advertised as 'big' pictures did prove to be good 'program' pictures, so why couldn't they have been advertised as such in the first place? They would have been bought any way, as all exhibitors must have a certain number of 'program' pictures booked to fill in his schedule."

"The show business must have a certain amount of 'glitter' to it; otherwise interest will lag, but that 'glitter' can be applied with no violation of the truth on the part of the exhibitor or the producer. 'Play it up' is the watchword of this business we are in. Unless we 'play it up' how can we expect the public to 'pay up'?"

Effect of Curtailment

"I realize that it may sound like a pure boost for more trade paper advertising to say so, but I honestly believe that the average exhibitor accepts a curtailment of advertising on the part of the producer to mean nothing more or less than an admission by the producer that he hasn't anything very 'hot' to place on the market," A. F. Baker, manager of the Electric theatre, the largest house in Kansas City, Kansas, a city of 125,000 population, said.

"The producer must keep prodding at the exhibitor and the exhibitor must keep prodding at his public if the motion picture industry is to move along with prosperity. The exhibitor must believe and feel confident that the producer really has something good to offer if the theatre owner is, in

Curtailment Affects Selling Ability and Leaves Theatremen Gravely Doubtful of Picture Value

turn, to be expected to make the public believe he has a picture worth paying money to see.

"Right here, however, I wish to say something concerning the type of advertising used by producers. To endeavor to make a theatre owner believe that each picture produced is a 'sure box office hit' is folly of the worst type. It destroys the exhibitors' confidence in everything the producers say concerning pictures. Give the exhibitors some cold facts concerning the technical phases of the picture!

"Let's have truthful advertising—and more of it!"

Milwaukee theatre managers agree that the lack of advertising of the distributors' product in the trade papers leaves them rather at a loss as to the merit of the various films released.

"The Short End"

"We seem to be drawing the short end all around," said George Fischer, manager of two large neighborhood theatres, the Milwaukee and National, in commenting on the new economy program of producers. "We lose incentive through the apparent lack of backing the producer gives his picture in the trade papers, in his cost cutting methods, and yet we pay the same price for pictures that we have in the past."

This view is shared by Earl Rice, manager of the Egyptian theatre, a neighborhood house. "I have always followed the advertisements closely," was Mr. Rice's comment. "In this way I keep informed on coming pictures and can decide in a measure on the pictures I want to try to get for my house."

Harry Wren, manager of the Alhambra, a first-run Milwaukee house, says a picture nationally advertised in the trade papers is the picture that will bring in the biggest results in his theatre. "I have no doubt in my mind that I cannot sell a picture to the public unless I believe in the product I am offering them," is Mr. Wren's opinion.

Loss of Confidence

R. J. Stinnett, manager of the Capital theatre, Dallas, states that lack of merchandising ad copy in trade papers causes a loss of confidence in current productions offered also states that if a picture he has booked has been heavily advertised in trade papers, he will spend twice as much on publicity which means much more business for his theatre and also that he has truthfully presented his claims to the public. Stinnett stated that he saved all ads on pictures he had booked which appeared in trade magazines and used them as copy for his own ads.

Stinnett remarked that a valuable asset to exhibitors in trade paper advertisements would be statements that a certain picture had increased business one-third, one-half, etc., for certain theatres. Then the exhibitor would have a basis to work from. "My knowledge of current pictures naturally comes from the trade magazines as well as my enthusiasm and both are necessarily low when trade paper advertisements are cut down."

Edward Arozamena, general manager of Casino Theatres in Tampa and West Tampa, says: "I would like to see bigger and better ads and more of them. My opinion and desire to play a picture is largely influenced by trade paper advertising and I find impressions created by producer advertising reflected in my own ads to the public."

"In selling our local papers the idea of publicity cooperation with our theatres we find trade paper advertising is a big help. In this connection I would like to add that the greatest help the producer can give an exhibitor in profitably exploiting a picture is to eliminate from trade advertising all exaggerations and in their place concise details regarding production merits and highlights presented in the form of information."

Picture theatre owners and managers of St. Louis and vicinity generally agree in the main with Sidney S. Cohen's indictment of producers and national distributors for their misguided economy in the curtailment of national and regional trade paper advertising.

Aid to Merchandising

"They feel that the proper kind of advertising copy in national and regional trade publications would make it much easier for them to sell their pictures to exhibitors and at the same time give the exhibitors that enthusiasm and confidence in pictures so necessary if they are to be a box office success."

John P. McCarthy, manager of Loew's Regent theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., said:

"Lack of merchandising ad copy in the trade papers is bound to have an adverse

RCA To Make Broadway Shows

Negotiations Now on with Leading Legitimate Producers Whereby Stage Hits Will Be Produced in N. Y. Studios

RCA PHOTOPHONE is in negotiation with leading Broadway producers looking to the production of legitimate Broadway shows in their entirety at the new RCA studios to be opened in New York City immediately after the first of the new year. This announcement was made by E. E. Bucher, vice-president of RCA Photophone, who at the same time said he was not prepared at present to go into further details regarding the matter.

It was intimated by Mr. Bucher that the transactions in negotiation involved some of the biggest producers and also some of the outstanding hits of the Broadway stage. He said he was not in a position at present to divulge either the names of the producers or the stage productions to be made into sound pictures.

The idea is to reproduce the stage show with the original cast as nearly in line with the original production as possible. Experts will make a study of the show, and will eliminate any portions that are not adaptable for sound pictures. When these deductions are made the show will be shot just as it is produced on the stage.

It is figured that this manner of producing will materially reduce production costs, as long periods of rehearsal will not be necessary and many of the original stage sets may be utilized. It is not possible to get the best results shooting in the theatre because of sound and lighting conditions, so the show will merely be transported to the RCA studios.

Early in the Summer a number of the Broadway producers secured an option on Vocafilm, and announced that they would produce their own stage successes by this disc recording method. Legislation was launched with regard to Vocafilm, and that plan was eventually abandoned. This producer group was headed by Al Woods, and included among others William A. Brady, the Shuberts, Hammerstein and others. An official announcement was made from the Shubert office that they were about to proceed, but a temporary injunction halted the plan at that time. The idea was to road-show these productions in the cities where they were not played on the legitimate stage. Doubtless the arrangement with RCA will provide for their showing more in the picture houses than would have been possible under the original plan.

Work on the new RCA studios in New York is being rushed to the earliest possible conclusion, according to Mr. Bucher, and it is now five days ahead of the original schedule. Present plans are to open the studios, which are located on 23d street in the block between Lexington and Third avenues, on January 7. It is not known yet what the first production will be, but if the negotiations now in progress with the Broadway producers are carried to a successful conclusion, it is likely that shooting soon after the studio opens.

Contract Player Ranks Normal; Slash Fails to Arrive

228 Now Engaged at Major Studios Only 75 Less Than Last Year's Total; Same Names Predominate

THAT the many startling changes to take place in the acting end of motion pictures are still in the distant future, is shown in the fact that there are only seventy-five players less under contract at the close of this year than were signed to term agreements in December, 1927. There is a total of 228 players now under contract to the thirteen major studios on the West Coast. Last year's total was approximately seventy-five more.

Furthermore, these contracts are not for one picture only. While the list of names appended here carries many who may have only one or two pictures more to go on their current contracts, their agreements were made on a time basis, ranging in termination from three months to five years.

The contract lists supplied herewith are exclusive of the many additions made by some of the major studios on the East Coast. In that section of the country, undoubtedly many changes in the type of players, the number under contract, may be noticeable. Hollywood's concern is mainly with the West Coast, and here a comparison of the names now engaged with contract lists of last year at this period, show that with very few exceptions, the same names predominate which were featured at the close of 1927.

In addition to the list of players now under contract to each studio, appended here is also a complete list of writers and directors signed for at least a three-month period in various studios. Here too, with few exceptions, the same personalities are still in strong evidence. Fox is the main exception, where a larger list of new players, writers and some directors are noticeable. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Paramount have made many changes, but as pointed out above, these concern mainly the Eastern production.

The seventy-five more or less players who are not under contract this year and were last year, are for the major part, bit and stock players. Most of them were signed at salaries ranging between $50 and $100 weekly.

Players, directors and writers under contract at present and their studios follow:

Paramount

Vitaphone Will Serve Disc Records to RCA Equipped Houses

UNDER a new arrangement just effected Vitaphone pictures will be available in houses equipped with RCA reproducing apparatus. The latter company is soon to place on the market a device exclusively for the reproduction of disc records. It will be installed at a cost said to be between $3,000 and $4,000.

This move practically establishes interchangeability as between Western Electric and RCA, though it is with the understanding, according to Mr. Quigley of Vitaphone that the RCA equipment must reproduce satisfactorily the Vitaphone records. For the present not all RCA equipped houses will be served under a blanket policy, but this doubtless will come when the RCA device proves its quality.

Foreign Sales Movement

Tiffany-Stahl Announces Formation of Distribution Companies in England and France

TWO new foreign companies have been formed for the distribution of Tiffany-Stahl product, one located in England and the other in France. Plans and details of the corporations were worked out by Grant L. Cook, secretary and treasurer of the company, on his recent trip to Europe.

The company formed in England is to distribute all the American made Tiffany-Stahl productions and the British pictures made by the same company. The British company, under the managing directorship of C. F. Bernhard, will produce British pictures, the exact number to be produced as yet being uncertain. The pictures made in Great Britain will be distributed throughout England, the Continent and the United States.

Within the next few weeks, Mr. Bernhard of the British company, expects to make a visit to New York and Hollywood to confer with M. H. Hoffman, Vice President in charge of production, and Mr. Cook, to definitely determine and decide upon the production plans for the British company.

The Tiffany exchanges in England will be located in London, Liverpool, Leeds, Cardiff, Manchester, Glasgow, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Birmingham and Sheffield.

Mr. Cook states that before he left England, arrangements had been made for four British productions, which are to be distributed through America and Canada by the Tiffany organization in the United States.

In forming the French company, Mr. Cook appointed J. Frank Brockliss as the administrateur de laque of the company. Associated with Mr. Brockliss is Philip De Becker. Mr. Brockliss was associated with M-G-M and First National on the Continent.

The French Tiffany company will be the headquarters for all the continental business of the company and a renting organization for France and Belgium is now in the process of formation.

U. A. Sales Convention

Talking Pictures, in Relation to 1929 Analysis of Wired Houses, a Leading Topic of Discussion

THE sales force of United Artists Corporation will hold a national convention at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, December 14 and 15, it was announced this week by Al Lichtman, general sales manager of the company. It will be the first national convention to include district managers, sales managers, salesmen and executives in charge of sales promotion, and about 125 members are expected to be present.

Talking pictures now in production will be emphasized by Lichtman in his discussion of 1929 releases. Individual sales and exploitation campaigns on these films will be arranged at the convention. Lichtman said talking pictures would be studied in relation to his analysis of theatres that will be wired during 1929, that all United Artists Pictures will be made with separate silent versions, even all-talkies.

The keynote of the convention will be the United Artists sales policy that only entertaining pictures will sell, whether silent or talking, that a picture will have to tell its story effectively in 1929, regardless of whether pantomime or scientific devices are the method of expression, Lichtman said yesterday.

Al Lichtman, Cresson E. Smith, Victor M. Shapiro, Paul N. Lazarus, Emil Jansen, Carroll Trowbridge and Henry Ginsberg will go to Chicago from the home office in New York. Paul Burger, now in the field, also will report to Chicago for the convention.

District Managers L. J. Schlaifer, Phil Dunas, Harry Gold, William Rosenthal, Arthur Kane, David Bershon and Haskell Masters will be present.

Branch managers who will be at the convention are H. E. Lotz, J. B. Reilly, Charles Stern, Moe Streimer, Jack Von Tilzer, M. J. Garrity, W. G. Carmichael, C. E. Pappiatt, Jack Bower, Joseph Levy, J. Abrose, J. D. Goldbar, Bert M. Stearn, A. H. Fischer, Oscar Kuschner, C. C. Wallace, Saul Resnick, Harry Stern, Doak Roberts, William E. Truog, Hoyt G. Morrow, Marnie Gottlieb, Guy Gunderson, Frederic Gage, Russell Egner, D. J. McEnerney, Joseph Myers, A. J. Jeffery, S. Jacobs, S. Glazer, M. C. Hill and Joseph Cantor.

Paramount Net Said to Be $9,000,000

A NET of $3,000,000 in the last quarter of the current year and a net of $9,000,000 for entire year are being estimated for Paramount. This would make the equivalent of $4.35 per share on the 2,063,517 shares of common stock outstanding.

Earnings for the first nine months, including undistributed share in the profits of Balaban and Katz, were $5,973,600, equivalent to $2.90 a share on the common. Seasonal advance, plus increased earnings of Publix theaters due to sound films, as well as the percentage system, both from the standpoint of theaters and the distributing company, are ascribed as causes of the expected earnings for the last quarter.

$4,016,461 Fox Net for First 9 Months of '28

FOX FILM CORPORATION'S net income for the first nine months of the current year was $4,016,461, after interest, Federal taxes, etc., or the equivalent of $5.23 per share on the 767,216 shares of combined class "A" and class "B" stocks. The period ended September 29.

The figures compare with the $2,273,454 or $4.54 a share on the 500,000 combined shares of the same period of 1927. The net for the third quarter of 1928 was $1,369,971, after charges, or the equivalent of $1.78 per share on the 767,216 shares of the combined stocks as compared with $1,282,929 or $1.67 per share on the combined shares of the preceding quarter.

Exhibitors Back Cohen Ad Cut Protest

effect upon the average exhibitor. If the exhibitor is effected, it is only natural that the public is effected also. Good ad copy in the trade journals undoubtedly creates enthusiasm among the exhibitors. This enthusiasm they pass on to the public, thereby increasing their box office receipts.

"To improve their service to exhibitors, producers and distributors should write their ad copy to exhibitors and not to the public. It is then up to the exhibitor to take care of his public. Further, I would suggest, that Barnum-like methods and worn-out stock phrases, which do not go over with experienced exhibitors, be eliminated from copy in the trade papers. From the trade paper ads I am led to believe that the producers and distributors are trying to sell to the public, instead of to the exhibitor. Their copy should be original, and written solely to exhibitors."

An independent neighborhood exhibitor of Cincinnati says he keenly feels the handicap saddled on him by the curtailment of trade paper merchandising ideas, which, he believes, indicates the producers' apparent indifference to exhibitors' best interests. The restricted formula of producer service in this regard makes the theatre man's job a difficult one, he says, and results in half-hearted efforts instead of enthusiastic.

Present conditions make it appear that the producer and distributor are not inclined to offer sincere cooperation to their customers, a detriment, he points out, which asserts itself at the box office, and resulting in loss to the exhibitor and the producer as well.

Washington and Idaho T. O. Gather at Spokane

For the purpose of discussing matters of mutual interest, particularly the proposed theatre admission tax in the state of Idaho, the Allied Theatre Owners of Northern Idaho and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Washington gathered in Spokane last week for a joint conference that lasted the better part of two days.

Milburn Kenworthy of Moscow, Idaho, president of that association, brought with him several Idaho exhibitors, while Washington was represented by a group that included President Ray Grombacher of Spokane and James Hone of Seattle.

Commission Points Value of Trade Conferences

Self-Regulation Without Rules Would Be Impossible, Annual Report Points Out

SUCH success as has attended the efforts of the Federal Trade Commission, in Washington, D. C., to have industry regulate itself through trade practice conferences, such as that held by the motion picture industry late in 1927, is due to the fact that the commission is armed with power to enforce the regulations so adopted, it is asserted in the annual report just made public by the Commission.

Other than a brief outline of the resolutions adopted at the motion picture and other trade conferences held during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, the report does not discuss the conferences individually. However, it is pointed out, if an industry is capable of self-regulation the trade practice conference procedure affords the most effective method yet devised to accomplish this end.

That the commission realizes that its power of enforcement is the only reason for compliance with these so-called codes of ethics is indicated by its statement that "self-regulation without rules would be impossible, and rules without some power of enforcement make self-regulation often a mere expensive gesture.

"The fact that some power rests, as it does, in an impartial, disinterested governmental body," the commission asserts, "obviates the necessity of frequent use of such power. This is demonstrated in that of more than 300 rules adopted by industries in trade practice conferences the power of the Federal Trade Commission has not been invoked with reference to a dozen of these."

A complete study is now being made by the commission of the effect of past conferences, the results of which may tend to change the opinion just expressed, but, irrespective of the showing on final analysis, "the fact remains," the commission states, "that the mere probability that any rule may be enforced adds materially to its general observance."

The commission's suit in the Federal Courts in New York for enforcement of its orders against Paramount, issued in July, 1927, still being a pending matter, the report does not comment upon that situation.

Pathe-FBO Distribution

American Firms Negotiate Deal with Franco Films, S. A., to Handle Product in France

PATHE and FBO product will be exploited in France by Franco Films, S. A., in accordance with the terms of a contract consummated recently by the Marquis de la Falaise, representing jointly Pathe International Corporation and FBO Export Corporation. The contract involves the product of the firms for a period of years gives them widespread distribution through the French exchange and theatre combination.

France has just purchased 11 theatres from Gaumont and a deal is now being closed with Metropole for 15 more houses. Paul Kastor, assistant general manager of Franco, has announced that his company is seeking expansion and that it will continue along expensive lines. What is said to be the largest production studio in France has just been completed by the Franco company.

The French company is backed by the Bank Intermediare and DeCapcane, head of the Franco Wyoming Oil Company, whose capital is estimated at 25,000,000 francs, which, it is understood, will be shortly increased to 100,000,000 francs.

Fox Said to Be Seeking Franklin's West Coast Contract

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—William Fox is negotiating to purchase the contract held by Harold Franklin, president and operating head of West Coast Theatres, according to persistent rumors in Los Angeles theatre circles.

Reasons advanced for the report is fact that Franklin's contract gives him full direction of West Coast, without outside dictation from any source. This does not fit into the ideas of Fox, who believes that he should be able to operate his own holdings along lines he feels best suited for the success of the properties. There is absolutely no friction between Fox and Franklin, according to the rumor, but Fox wishes to buy up Franklin's long term contract so that he will be able to have complete charge of the circuit operation in the future.

Quebec Superior Court Dismisses DeForest Petition Against Famous

THE petition of DeForest Phonofilm of Canada, Ltd., in which an interlocutory injunction was sought against Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Ltd., has been dismissed with costs by the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec, District of Montreal. The DeForest Company alleged infringement on some eight DeForest Canadian patents by reason of the use of certain talking motion picture apparatus and combined sound and picture films in the Palace Theatre, Montreal.

Status of Units Uncertain

Allied Will Invade East; May Obtain Myers as Head; Keep Nat'l Body Intact, Says Seider, as Members Balk

EVENTS which within the past few weeks have taken on the appearance of a tug-of-war for membership between the M. P. T. O. A. and its newly revived rival, the Allied States Association, received further impetus this week with the announcement that Allied would invade the East by seeking additional members.

Many other events have occurred, also, to trouble the waters of a hitherto calm exhibitor world. A report sprang up in the Middle West that Abram F. Meyers, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, would take over the leadership of Allied. It was also reported that the M. P. T. O. of Washington would drop out of the M. P. T. O. A. because, it was said, the Coast body was not in sympathy any more with the aims and purposes of the national organization. Maryland exhibitors, it is now rumored, would willingly accept the advances of Messrs. Steffes, Allied president, and Theodore L. Hays, leader in the Northwest exhibitor unit; it is said that several other Allied seaboard states are in the mood to listen to proposals from Allied leaders.

Messrs. Steffes and Hays are seeking permission to place their arguments before the New Jersey Theatre Owners. They believe that New Jersey is one of the four eastern states that they can swerve into the Allied column and that the other three are Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland.

The view of solving any troubles that may now bother the member states of the M. P. T. O. A. by a truly representative and honest election of officers rather than by breaking into a new organization of the-atremen wherein the self-same troubles may exist was offered by Joseph M. Seider, business manager of the M. P. T. O. A.

In announcing their campaign in the east for the capturing of new member states, Messrs. Steffes and Hays are but continuing their activities begun a few months ago, following the revival of the Allied organization at a meeting at Battle Creek, Michigan. Upon their arrival in New York on Monday, they plan to launch activities for membership increase. They will also confer on labor problems.

Col. H. A. Cole, head of the Texas unit of exhibitors, and Glenn Cross, of Michigan, will talk over the situation with Messrs. Steffes and Hays before they inaugurate their stumping tour which has been outlined for New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Maryland and other Eastern states. Maryland exhibitors, it is said, have already requested the Allied leaders to broach their proposition.

While in New York, Messrs. Steffes and Hays will seek to come to terms with the I. A. T. S. E. for the stage hands in their respective territories.

Otterson Answers Sound Questions

Tells Exhibitors How Installation Problems May Possibly Be Solved

wherever possible reduce its cost without any impairment of its quality. When these things shall be an accomplished fact I cannot say because I am no prophet, but I fancy that the solution of the problem of equipment for the small theatre will come out of our experience rather than out of the experience of others.

Tells of Interchangeability

Coincidental with the answering of these questions, and probably inspired by them, Mr. Otterson released a general interview largely covering those questions, and at the same time he took occasion to go further into the question of interchangeability, without rendering a definite answer. Regarding interchangeability Mr. Otterson says:

"The Western Electric system of recording and reproducing sound represents seven years of laboratory development. The fact that it was the first commercially successful system ever developed quite naturally made us jealous of the results which, in conjunction with our licensee producers, we have secured; and in the contracts which we entered into for the use of our equipment in theatres we sought to protect the standard of quality in sound pictures which we had established. Before our system was put on the market there had been many unsuccessful attempts to produce talking pictures, and all had been doomed to failure. Since our system came out there have been a lot more offered for sale. We could not prejudice their quality and, without the opportunity to examine their mechanism, we could not judge whether the makers had infringed any of the patents which we took out to protect our own designs. But it is significant, I think, that the chief argument of these competitive devices which are now advertised is that they are interchangeable

Pa. Supreme Court Reserves Decision In Talkie Censorship Case

APPEALS from the conflicting decisions of two branches of the Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia as to the right of the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors to have supervision over the subject matter of the spoken part of sound pictures, were argued before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in Philadelphia on December 4. The upper court reserved decision. Upon its ultimate ruling will depend whether Governor Fisher will have introduced in the coming session of the State Legislature a law with the administration backing to give the censors supervision over the talkies.

During the appeals from the conflicting decisions of the lower courts, Justice Simpson said: "It's the combination of the words spoken with the pictures that makes the picture objectionable if the words are."

with the Western Electric device.

"This may or may not be true. We have no expectation that our system will be the only one theatres can install, nor are we spending very much time to send out experts to test the results of each new installation of another device as it is made, or even to examine the equipment for patent infringement. Having, a common interest with the producers who have adopted our system, we are asking their judgment of the quality of the reproducing in each instance where they have the opportunity to book a sound picture for showing on other than Western Electric machines. We are inclined to believe that many of the systems now being offered for sale on the basis of studio demonstrations will not stand the test of operation in a theatre.

Inferior Systems Will Fail

"Some of the trade press have expressed surprise because we have not taken a more aggressive attitude in seeking to shut down these shows on other equipment as fast as they have bobbed up in various parts of the country. May I say in reply to that, as I have said before, that our policy in this industry is not one of aggression; we are not trying "to stamp out competition wherever it shows its head"; we are not playing a "dog-in-the-manger" game; we are devoting all of our resources to what we conceive to be our primary job, namely, to manufacture, install, and service with all dispatch the theatres that have shown their confidence in us by ordering our equipment. In the long run inferior systems will fall of their own accord without any pressure from us. Some already have. In the long run, if we find other manufacturers invading the field of our patents, we shall ask the courts to see that our rights are respected, but we are not out trying to pick a quarrel. We are trying, rather, to meet to the best of our ability the obligations to serve the business of talking pictures, in the success of which we, and the great producers who are aligned with us, have such a tremendous stake."

General Pictures Organizes Dep't for Theatre Installations

ASALES force for the distribution of theatre installations in every part of the country has been organized by General Pictures Corporation, owner of the DeForest Phonofilm systems of projection and recording. The department began active work this week and manufacturing facilities for the projector have been arranged on an expanding basis to admit deliveries in short time.

Manufacturing facilities in the Middle West have been acquired by the Corporation and they will be in operation by the first of next year, it is thought. The eastern factory has been increased to a larger capacity, a night shift having been added on December 10. The eastern factory will be devoted to filling orders that have already been received. The factory routine can be trebled within four weeks, it is said.

Installation supervisors are being trained at the eastern factory so that a crew of them will be available for each territory to take care of installations, and to train projectionists in the operation of the machines. There will be no regular servicing of the installations, it is said.

Pathe Sound News to Be Released Weekly

THE Pathe Sound News will be issued weekly, beginning February 3rd. Since its debut on November 11, the sound newsreel has been released bi-monthly. RCA is now preparing additional equipment, including cameras, camions, etc., and they will be ready early in the new year. A complete system of branch offices for sound news gathering will be established throughout the country and in Europe, it is said.

Two Sound Recording Systems Means Wastage, Says Powers

CALLING the examination of two different systems of sound recording and the adoption of either one method of recording or the other as necessities of prime importance, P. A. Powers, of Powers Cinephone, this week characterized the continuance of the two sound recording systems as a wastage of millions of dollars. Standardization, he says, is a matter of common sense.

The present condition in the industry in which studios and exhibitors have the choice of sound-on-film and disc methods is one of duplication of effort, confusion and uncertainty, declares Mr. Powers. "Thousands are being lost by the distributors through double physical handling and the limitations of wired houses," he said. Standardization would eliminate many of the evils, he claimed.

"I am convinced," says Mr. Powers, "that the system of recording sound on the film will be the ultimate standard adopted by the picture producers. Many economic reasons and features of efficiency favor the sound-on-film system. Synchronism cannot be lost in pictures synchronized by the sound track method. They call for single shipments, they save the extra carrying charges called for by the disc system and are saving in valuable storage space.

"From the exhibitor's angle, sound-on-film pictures are easier to handle and more certain of satisfactory showing. They eliminate the uncertainty of the human element required in handling discs, the adjustment and operation of the turntables, replacing of needles, etc. Once the sound-on-film picture is threaded into the machine, its projection and sound reproduction is entirely automatic and perfectly synchronous."

Mr. Powers' company manufactures and distributes sound devices employing both methods of sound recording and reproduction.

Sol Lesser Forms Company to Make Talkies

THE Lesser-Warner Producing Corporation, formed by Sol Lesser, is entering the film business to produce sound and talking pictures for theatres, the home and churches. Mr. Lesser, who is president of the corporation, is re-entering the industry after an absence of several years. Other executives of the organization are: Franklyn Warner, vice-president; Richard F. Bailey, secretary, and Mike Rosenberg, treasurer. Offices of the company will be in New York and Los Angeles and production plants will be located in the former city and in the San Fernando Valley in Cal.

The construction studio in California to cost $500,000, is now being supervised by Mr. Lesser. The plant in New York is expected to be in operation shortly. It will be supervised by Mike Rosenberg, who will have charge of eastern production. Broadway stage players, who will be engaged by the Lesser-Warner Company, will work at the New York plant, it is planned. The Bristol recording and sound device will be used by the company.

Mr. Lesser plans the manufacturing and marketing of a talking picture outfit for home use. A combination phonograph and movie device, records and film which will be sold as one transaction, both pieces to be fitted into a cabinet machine, the operator of which will be able to see the artist in synchronized movement with the sound, it is said. Another innovation Mr. Lesser will offer, will be "picturized" religious entertainments for churches of all denominations.

In the policy of furnishing subjects in sound for the theatres, the company will place a number of legitimate stars who are now appearing in a number of New York plays. For the producing of short subjects, the services of actors in vaudeville and musical comedy, will be placed under contract.

Pathe Begins Synchronizing "Sal" and "Spieler"

MUSICIANS both in the United States and Canada are preparing for a conflict with the talkies.

The union musicians of Springfield, Mo., have announced that they would declare a strike against the Gillioz Theatre unless the large orchestra was reinstated.

In Canada newspaper editors of Canadian dailies have been solicited by Joseph N. Weber, of New York, president of the American Federation of Musicians, to take sides in "the threat to substitute mechanized music in the theatres."

ture is "Singapore Sal," by Charles Weinberg, Billy Stone and Al Koppell, and is published by the Foster Music Company. Jacques Gruenberg is composing a lullaby for one of the sequences. Other music has been composed by Zuro and Francis Grommon.

Carnival and circus music forms the "audible atmosphere" for "The Spieler," "Your Heart Looks Into Mine" is the theme song.

Wilcox to Make "Fog" and "Wolves" into Talkies

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 12.—The first of the two talkers which Herbert Wilcox will make for British and Dominions Film Corporation, Ltd., at the Metropolitan sound studios, will be an adaptation of "Fog," which appeared as a legitimate play in New York last season. The second is "The Wolves," which has run successfully in London as a legitimate attraction. "Fog" is from the pen of John Willard, author of "The Cat and the Canary."

Marshall Neilan will direct both. Recent reports that both productions will be released through World Wide Pictures are denied by Mr. Wilcox, who states that no definite release medium has been arranged as yet.

Sonora-Bristolphone on Air Every Wednesday

An hour of radio entertainment will be given over Station WGBS every Wednesday by the Sonora-Bristolphone Company. Mike Simmons, Sonora-Bristolphone publicist and for two years a movie lecturer over Station WPCB, has contracted for the hour.

The first of the series is set for December 12, with Ernest Maas, production supervisor, and Fredericka Sagor, scenarist, contributing a triologue on "Sound in the Movies."

Harry Revier to Produce 10 Cinephone Subjects

Ten "cineoral" fantasies, with subject matter adapted from literary works of a fantastic character or to be picturizations of well known mythological tales, will be produced by Harry Revier for Powers Cinephone. Stage players with screen experience will make up the cast of the productions, for which theme songs are planned.

Paramount's Sound Picture Schedule

"Whole Shows" and 24 Silent Versions In 1929 Program

FOLLOWING a two-year period of research in the sound picture field Paramount has announced a definite schedule of talking, singing and synchronized pictures for release between Jan. 1 and July 1, 1929.

In a statement by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of the company, accompanying the announcement, is dwelt upon the fact that Paramount has assembled a complete plant for the production of sound pictures, procured the best available technical staff and that after rigid tests had been made of their own stars and players it had been found that a majority of their voices were suitable for recording purposes.

Contracts have also been signed with Jeanne Eagels, Eddie Cantor, O. P. Heggie, Claudette Colbert, Walter Huston, Ruth Chatterton, the Four Marx Brothers and Edward Robinson, all well known players of the legitimate stage. George Abbot, Robert Milton, Joseph Santley, John Cromwell and Edwin Knopf, the Charles Frohman producing company under the direction of Gilbert Miller, have also been enlisted to lend aid to the organization.

To proceed with the Lasky statement:

"Following is the list of talking pictures which will be released starting the first day of the new year. There will be 22 all-star all-talking feature pictures and 17 full length productions which will have talking and singing in addition to a synchronized music score. Approximately 50 short talking features will be distributed during that period.

"This does not mean a cessation of silent picture production. Of the 39 sound pictures 24 will also have silent versions. These, in addition to 3 pictures which will be produced entirely in silent form, make a total of 27 feature length pictures which will be available for those theatres not equipped for sound reproduction.

"We will release a series of four units comprising a full program with one feature and two short feature subjects. The first unit is made up of 'Interference,' a two reel production starring Eddie Cantor in 'That Party in Person' and a one reel featurette in which Ruth Etting, Ziegfeld beauty and Columbia recording artist, sings two popular songs.

"The second unit comprises 'The Doctor's Secret,' a 100 per cent talking picture based on Sir James M. Barrie's famous stage success 'Half an Hour.' Ruth Chatterton, H. B. Warner, John Loder and Robert Edson are featured in this production which was adapted and directed by William C. de Mille. Borah Minnevitich and his Musical Rascals, a hit in the Broadway musical smash of this season, 'Good Boy,' is one of the two short talking features which go with 'The Doctor's Secret,' the other is 'One Word,' a fast moving comedy short feature produced and written by Joseph Santley and acted by a cast of Broadway celebrities.

"Unit No. 3 is made up of 'The Letter,' adaptation of the W. Somerset Maugham success in which Jeanne Eagels is starred. Garrett Fort furnished the adaptation, the story was directed by Jean de Limur, and the production supervised by Monta B. Bill. Eddie Peabody and his banjo appear in one of the short features accompanying 'The Letter,' and the Giersdorf Sisters, well-known musical comedy singing stars, sing some of the song hits of the day in the other.

"The fourth unit comprises 'Night Club,' with a cast of internationally known stars in the cast, including such names as Fanni Brice, Ann Pennington, Bobbe Arnst, Pat Rooney and Pat Rooney, Jr., and many others of equal prominence on the legitimate stage, and two other features, 'The Pusher-In-the-Face,' a two-reel comedy adapted from the story of F. Scott Fitzgerald. Estelle Taylor, Lester Allen, Raymond Hitchcock and other Broadway stars appear in this featurette, which was directed by Robert Florey. 'The Bishop's Candlesticks,' a novelty short feature based on Victor Hugo's 'Les Miserables,' completes this unit. Walter Huston, of 'The Barker,' and 'Elmer the Great,' plays the featured role.

"We are putting forth these units to demonstrate again Paramount's ability to produce a 'Whole Show' program.

"In addition to the foregoing we will produce 17 all-star, all-talking feature length productions as follows:

"The Canary Murder Case,' a Malcolm St. Clair production of the mystery melodrama by S. S. Van Dine. The cast includes William Powell, Louise Brooks, James Hall, Jean Arthur and others. There also will be a silent version of this picture.

"The Wolf of Wall Street,' starring George Bancroft with Bacalanova, Nancy Carroll and an all-star cast. Rowland V. Lee, the producer, has also made a silent version of this picture based on a story of the stock market.

"The Dummy,' first big all-talking comedy melodrama from the stage play by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford. Ruth Chatterton, Frederic March, John Cromwell, ZaSu Pitts, Jack Oakie, Fred Kohler, and Mickey Bennett appear in the cast which was directed by Robert Milton.

"A Genius is Born,' a drama directed by Louis Gasnier and Edwin Knopf and featuring O. P. Heggie. 'The Hole in the Wall,' a picturization of the play by Fred Jackson. Claudette Colbert and Edward Robinson head the cast which was directed by Robert Florey.

"Close Harmony,' starring Charles Rogers. A story of show business written by Elsie Janis and Gene Markey and directed by Edward Sutherland.

"Nothing But the Truth,' the first Richard Dix all-talking picture. A picturization of the comedy stage play in which William Collier starred.

"The Studio Murder,' a mystery melodrama from the Edingtons story in Photoplay.

"Gentlemen of the Press,' an adaptation of the stage play of newspaper men now playing a Broadway run. Walter Huston has the star role in the picture supervised by Monta Bell.

"The Woman Who Needed Killing,' with Bacalanova in the featured role. It is an adaptation of the Cosmopolitan story by Margaret Lawrence.

"Through the Night,' an adventure romance of the railroad. An all-star cast will enact this story.

"The Long War,' starring the first all-talking picture of the World War, directed by Monta Bell. The story is by William Wellman. A silent version will be produced.

"The Wild Party,' Clara Bow's first all-talking picture. Warner Fabian, author of 'Flaming Youth,' wrote this story and the dialogue was prepared by John V. A. Weaver. A silent version will be produced.

"Darkened Rooms,' a Cosmopolitan Magazine serial story by Sir Phillip Gibbs, directed by Josef von Sternberg. William Powell heads a big cast of stellar players.

"Here Comes the Band Wagon,' starring Gary Cooper and Fay Wray in a drama of Circus life. H. L. Gates wrote the original which is running serially in a popular magazine. A silent version will also be produced.

"The Saturday Night Kid,' Clara Bow's second all-talking picture, with an all-star supporting cast. The title and story are tentative. The second Bow picture also will have a silent version.

"An Adolphe Menjou starring picture with a featured supporting cast. Story as yet untitled; it will also be made in silent form.

"A second all-talking picture starring George Bancroft which will also have a silent version.

"The seventeen talking and singing feature productions all will be made with silent versions. They are as follows:

"Anne Nichols' 'Abie's Irish Rose,' with talking, singing and music score.

"The Showman's Ancestral,' with Gary Cooper and Nancy Carroll, directed by Richard Wallace; containing one reel of dialogue and vocal numbers by Nancy Carroll.

"Innocents of Paris,' first American picture starring Chevalier in a drama of Parisian life; incorporating talking sequences and songs by Chevalier.

"The Carnation Kid,' an Al Christie production starring Douglas MacLean. Directed by E. Mason Hopper with talking all the way through.

"Redskin,' starring Richard Dix in a Victor Schenck production. It has a synchronized music score and technicolor through most of the picture.

"Wolf Song,' featuring Gary Cooper, Lupe Velez and Louis Wolheim. A Victor Fleming production based on the novel by Harvey Ferguson. Lupe Velez sings and a special music score has been arranged.

"Behind the German Lines,' official picture of the World War from the German side, filmed by Ufa. Produced with sound effects and music score.

"Black Eagles,' a drama of the Russian revolution starring George Bancroft. Synchronized with music score and sound effects.

"River Boat,' a story of love and adventure starring Charles Rogers. Produced with music score and effects.

"Homecoming,' a Ufa production, with Dita Parlo and Einar Hanson, made by Erich Pommer. Synchronized music score and effects.

"Two Shall Meet,' an adaptation of the Owen Davis play with Charles Rogers in the starring role. Special music score effects.

"Looping the Loop,' a sensation in Europe. Werner Krauss is featured with a supporting cast of well-known names, music score and sound effects.

"The Man I Love,' a story by Herman Mankiewicz, with Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll in the leading roles. Produced with sound sequences and music score.

"Ellis Island,' an epic of the immigrant, starring Emil Jannings. Produced with music score and sound effects. Title and story may be changed later.

"Richard Dix will make a second story with music score and effects. Story and title to be announced at a later date. Douglas MacLean is also scheduled to make another production probably with talking in the major sequences.

"There will be but three completely silent pictures. 'Marquis Preferred,' starring Adolphe Menjou, is the first, and the others will be based on Zane Grey stories.

"The Christie Film Company will produce 13 two-reel short feature with sound sequences and special music scores. Stories, casts and directors have already been announced.

"There will be 28 Paramount talking acts, comprising 15 two-reel and 13 one-reel subjects. Stars of the calibre of Eddie Cantor, Ruth Etting, Walter Huston, etc., and producers and directors in the class of George Abbott will appear in and produce these short features.

"Alfred Weiss will make six song cartoons and James A. Fitzpatrick Productions will produce a series of one-reel musical numbers under the brand name 'Famous Composers.'

"Last but not by any means least, Paramount News will come to the exhibitor in sound as well as in silent form, starting in the very near future. The sound trucks and staffs are ready and will soon function.

Subtitle—From "A Man's Man" for M-G-M, titles by Joe Farnham:

"Fine welcome! Like a couple of warts on a piano player's finger!"

"A paper once said I'd be an artist and I've gotten as far as drawing sodas!"

Sound Transmitted Over Telephoto Incorporated into M-G-M Film

THE voice and features of William Haines, speaking the words, "Is That So?" into a microphone in Los Angeles, were transmitted by telephoto process to New York and the reproduction of words and actions were incorporated by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer into its Haines picture, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," now running at the Astor.

The stunt was pulled off by M-G-M officials in cooperation with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the reception of the actor's voice took only seven minutes from the coast to New York.

It was estimated by the director of the picture, Jack Conway, that the film now appearing at the Astor could be improved by the addition of one more talking sequence. Hence the telephotoing of the short sentence, which was photographed in Los Angeles on sound strips or Movietone light record, the strips being reassembled on their reception in New York and then placed into the picture.

M-G-M is Working at Fullest Capacity on Sound Schedule

LESS than six months following the finish of construction on the six sound stages at their studio in Culver City, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are now swinging into capacity production on their sound and talking picture schedule.

Two productions have been fully synchronized at the present time and more than a dozen short subjects made on the West Coast are now being released in addition to the large number made in the East. Virtually every feature produced by the Culver City plant will contain dialogue or natural sound synchronization, it is said. A number of all dialogue films are now in production.

"Broadway Melody" is the first M-G-M all-talkie that will be presented to the public. Now finished, it is said to be the first original musical comedy score to make its appearance in film form. Technicolor, as well as sound, are included in the scenes. "Dynamite" will be the second all-talkie of the company and will be directed by Cecil B. DeMille. Another of the talkies scheduled for production is "The Trial of Mary Dugan." Bayard Veiller, author of the play, is personally directing the screening of his work.

Willard Mack, dramatist and actor, is directing his own play, "Hunted," as a 100 per cent talkie. He will star in it himself. Sam Wood is busy on an all-talking picture of college, title of which has not yet been revealed. It will have sound effects with cheering and shouting during the progress of a football game. Musical synchronization and sound effects will be features of Greta Garbo's new starring vehicle, which will have Javanese native dancing and singing. Marion Davies is making her talking debut in "The Five O'Clock Girl," which Al Green will direct. "The Pagan," being screened by W. S. Van Dyke, will have talking as well as natural sound effects and a synchronized musical score.

"A Man's Man," featuring William Haines, which has been finished, and another Haines vehicle, "The Duke Steps Out," now in the making, will both contain dialogue and sound effects. The sequel to "Our Dancing Daughters," entitled "Our Modern Maids," will have dialogue and sound and a synchronized musical score. So will "Hallelujah." "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" will have talking and sound effects, as will also "The Green Ghost" and "The Flying Fleet."

"The Bellamy Trial," a talking and sound picture, and "Confession," "Casino Gardens," "Phipps," shorts, complete the recorded dramas. Gus Edwards' several Colortone reviews in sound are also among the M-G-M sound shorts.

Assembles Principals for "Coquette" Cast

Mary Pickford has chosen her supporting cast for "Coquette," her next production for United Artists in which she will play the title role and talk. The role of Michael will be played by Johnny Mack Brown;

John Sampols will be Dr. Besant; John Gales, Stanley Wentworth; George Irving, Mr. Wentworth; William Janney, Jimmy Besant; Louise Beavers, Julia. Each of the players with the exception of Brown has had wide stage experience and Miss Pickford herself was a Belasco star before her entry into the films.

Goulding Completes First Talk Film for Pathe

Dialogue sequences for his forthcoming production for Pathe have been completed by Edmund Goulding, director who was signed recently by Pathe as an executive of the sound division supervised by Benjamin Glazer.

In a series of voice tests conducted by Goulding, Carol Lombard and other players have emerged as promising talent for dialogue films. Goulding's experience with talking films is extended, he having conducted Movietone tests for Fox. Only recently he wrote and directed talk sequences for "The Bellamy Trial."

"Melophone" Is Seattle's Newest Sound Device

The "Melophone," newest instrument in the sound field, was introduced to Seattle showmen last week by George Endert, former Paramount manager, and William Drummond, former film representative, who together have perfected the instrument and are distributing it to the small town houses that cannot afford expensive equipment and film rental for sound pictures. They have opened offices of the Melophone Talking Picture Company of America in the Securities Building, Seattle.

George Jessel Completes "Lucky Boy"

"Lucky Boy," George Jessel's first singing and talking feature screen vehicle, has been completed in New York by Tiffany-Stahl under the supervision of Rudolph Flothow. Jessel sings five songs and talks practically through the entire length of the picture, it is said. L. Wolf Gilbert and Abel Baer wrote "My Mother's Eyes" as the theme song. The musical score is now being written by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld.

"Say It With Music" Will Be Made in Hollywood

"Say It With Music," the forthcoming United Artists vehicle for Harry Richman, on which production has been postponed until the early summer, will be made in Hollywood and not in New York. Production is scheduled to begin after the current stage run in New York of "George White's Scandals," in which Richman stars.

Synchronized "Captain Swagger" at Strand

Pathe's synchronized version of "Captain Swagger" is going into the Mark Strand, New York, on December 22 as the feature attraction for Christmas week. The film stars Rod La Rocque and has Sue Carol in the girl role. Musical and sound recording was supervised by Josiah Zuro.

Dec. 29th

World Wide
Pictures Inc.

1 Talkie, 9 Silents Set by Educational

A TALKIE and nine silent short subjects, not including the eight issues of the Kinograms news-reel, are scheduled for release during January by Educational.

The sound short is "The Old Barn" and is the second of the Mack Sennett comedies in sound and dialogue that this company is releasing. The silent pictures include five two-reelers, four one-reelers or novelties.

Lupino Lane stars in "Only Me," in which every principal character is portrayed by the comedian himself. Reed Howes is seen in "The Air Derby," the third of the two-reel aviation subjects which the company is releasing under the classification of "Russ Farrell, Aviator" films. Jerry Drew is featured in "Beauties Beware" and Wallace Lupino is the stellar player in "Husbands Must Pay." George Davis is seen in a new Mermaid comedy, "Going Places."

The first of the two-reel comedies is "What a Trip," the second "Dumb—and How." Vernon Dent is featured in the first and Eva Thatcher and others in the second. "Walking Fish" is the title of a new "Our World Today" Magazine issue. A new and untitled Hodge-Podge reel completes the shorts.

Arrangements are being made by General Pictures Corporation for a plan which will admit the production abroad of pictures suitable to the American market by use of the DeForest system of recording. For this purpose an executive of General Pictures sailed for Europe last week. British Talking Pictures, Ltd., owner of the Phonofilm device for England, has already made several shorts and features under this policy and General Pictures intends to release these pictures in America in the near future.

The DeForest Phonofilm recording apparatus is said to be installed in studios in Australia, Spain and Argentina. Installations of the apparatus will be extended to other countries.

Rayart Roadshows Ready for Unwired Houses

Filmtone, in conjunction with Rayart Pictures Corporation, is planning to send out a large number of road show organizations within the next two weeks with a unit attraction to be shown in houses that are not wired for sound films.

Five talking and singing novelty acts have been completed to be shown with the first Rayart dialogue feature, "Should a Girl Marry?" These will make up an entire evening's program. The five acts are, "The Overture of 1812," by the Filmtone Harmonists; Val and Ernie Stanton, "The Two English Boys from America;" "The Dancing Colleens," with Erin Tap Dancers;" "At the Night Club," with Shaw's Hawaiians, and The Radio Franks, singing popular songs.

Universal Talkie Program Now Under Way

DIALOGUE and sound sequences are being made at the Universal City studio for 22 Universal features of which the silent scenes have been completed. The two new sound-proof stages at the Universal plant were formally inaugurated by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, and initial work was immediately started on the $5,000,000 talking program which the company has announced. The Movietone process is being employed.

The stages are being used both day and night, a double shift working to complete the program as quickly as possible. During the day sequences are recorded for "The Cohens and the Kellys in Atlantic City" and "Give and Take" and at night the stages are occupied by "The Port of Dreams" and "The Last Warning" units.

Additional films which will be synchronized before the end of the year include "The Shakedown," "It Can Be Done," "Red Hot Speed," "The Girl on the Barge," "Man, Woman and Wife," "Clear the Decks," and "His Lucky Day." It is planned to make English, French and German dialogue versions of "Erik the Great."

The production staff of Universal will be concentrated on Movietone work for the next few weeks. Nine 100 per cent dialogue films will go into production shortly as well as a program of short subjects. Three of the features, "Broadway," "The Shannons of Broadway," and "The Climax," will have dialogue from the stage productions from which they are adapted. Additional all-talkies will be "A Bargain in the Kremlin," to star Joseph Schildkraut; "The Minstrel Show," to star Eddie Leonard; "The King of Jazz," to star Paul Whiteman; "Collegiate," with the same cast as the "Collegians" shorts; and "The Play Goes On." Talking vehicles are also being prepared for Benny Rubin and Pat Rooney, who will each star in a series.

Musical scores and theme songs for various features are being written by Joseph Cherniavsky, musical director for Universal.

When the Movietone productions have been completed, Universal will then adhere to the regular schedule of production which calls for about 75 per cent sound pictures and the rest silent. All talking pictures will have silent versions, it is announced.

Columbia Launching Program of Six Talkies

TALKING picture plans, comprising six productions to be made from well known stories or stage plays, are being launched this week by Columbia Pictures. The six will join "Submarine," the company's only sound picture now before the public. Like "Submarine" they will have full sound effects and musical scores as well as dialogue.

The productions are "The Younger Generation," "The Donovan Affair," "The Fall of Eve," "Father Love," "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," and "A Broadway Hooper." Of these "The Younger Generation" and "The Lone Wolf's Daughter" have already been completed. The remainder are either in work or in preparation.

"The Younger Generation" is derived from the stage play by Fannie Hurst, "It is to Laugh." Its cast includes Jean Hersholt, Lina Basquette, Rosa Rosanova and Ricardo Cortez.

Bert Lytell, who is now acting on the stage and who played a part in "On Trial," the Vitaphoned stage play, will talk in "The Lone Wolf's Daughter." This adaptation of a Louis Joseph Vance story will have Gertrude Olmstead opposite the star.

"The Donovan Affair," adapted for the screen from the stage play of that name, will present Jack Holt for the first time in a speaking screen role. Johnnie Grey is now working on the dialogue and screen continuity. Frank Capra will soon begin directing.

Another stage play, this time by John Emerson and Anita Loos, is "The Fall of Eve," in which Columbia will offer sophisticated dialogue in a setting of the French farce type. The cast for this production has not yet been announced.

Two prominent male stars will be announced shortly for the chief roles in "Father Love."

"The Broadway Hooper," the last of the Columbia talk films, will have music sound and talk effects interpreting a story of vaudeville and backstage life.

New Sound Device Being Marketed in Portland

Art Kolstad and associates interested in the Kolstadphone, his sound invention, are reported as having made fast progress during the past week and are now marketing the device. Installations have already been made in Hood River and at the Sellwood and Oregon Theatres in Portland, Ore.

"Response Meter" Tried Out at Preview

CHECKING up on audience reaction by means of "response meter" is a new method of gauging the strength of a picture. Sound engineers from the Paramount studio tried out the device at a preview or "prehearing" of "The Dummy," an all-talkie. They installed microphones throughout the theatre where the showing was being held, the microphone being connected to a sensitive meter in the projection room. The response of the fans to various scenes was indicated by the meter and in this manner Paramount editors and cutters were able to determine what situations procured the loudest response and the longest.

Her newest picture—Fannie Brice, stage comedienne whose "My Man," her first screen effort, will make its debut with laughter and music at the Warner Theatre in New York next week

A famous playwright His "Letter" made into a talkie by Jeanne Eagels, his "Sacred Flame" playing in N. Y., W. Somerset Maugham has been engaged by Pathe to write the story for Ina Claire's first talkie vehicle

He's a busy young man—What with producing four different comedy brands for FBO, Larry Darmour can say very little time is his own. The series include "Racing Blood," "Barney Google," "Mickey McGuire" and "Toots and Casper"

A former vaudevillian—Johnny Burke, Mack Sennett's new funster, is an effective performer both in pantomime and the spoken word in "The Lion's Roar," the Sennett talkie and current release from Educational

Paramount players on dedicatory program of new radio station—When the Los Angeles Evening News station went on the air for the first time James Hall, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Nancy Carroll and Baclanova, Paramount stars, were on hand for the occasion

The Seiders return from Europe—Accompanied by Mrs. Seider, Joseph M. Seider, the genial business manager of the M. P. T. O. A., returned last week on the Saturnia

An enjoinable pair—Lois Wilson and Hugh Allan present their youthful personalities in "Object—Alimony," a new Columbia film. Its title is the gold-digger's creed short and sweet

Tabulation Gives Talkies Slight Lead

Los Angeles Patrons Indicate Preference In Theatre Canvass

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—A small majority of film house patrons prefer talkers to silent pictures, according to a canvass taken by the drama department of "The Los Angeles Evening Herald." That publication distributed 259 questionnaires, asking eleven questions regarding talking and silent films. The result was 141 preferred talking pictures to 104 who would rather see silent versions. Fourteen people failed to answer the questions or qualify their opinion so that the Herald could tabulate.

The complete questionnaire and results are:

	Yes.	No.
1. Do you prefer talking pictures?	141	104
2. Do you want silent films eliminated?	38	215
3. Do you prefer orchestral music to a synchronized score?	192	57
4. Would you limit sound in pictures to sound effect and music?	60	173
5. Do you object to part-talkies?	153	98
6. Is your interest increasing in talking pictures?	165	77
7. Is your interest waning as the novelty wears off?	50	190
8. Are talkies a good enough substitute to lessen your going to stage plays?	31	223
9. The average number of talking pictures seen is 6.6.
10. Voting for the most popular talking picture actors runs: Conrad Nagel 94; Al Jolson, 39; Lionel Barrymore, 23.
11. Voting for the most popular talking picture actress runs: May McAvoy, 32; Dolores Costello, 39; Lois Wilson, 22.

The Next Wampas Frolic

The next Wampas frolic will be held in Los Angeles and not in San Francisco as has been reported elsewhere. The first meeting of the Wampas Frolic Committee held last week determined that much with the actual place for the frolic to be set later. At present, indications are that it will be held in the Shrine Auditorium, with the presentation of the thirteen Wampas

Carl Laemmle, Jr., an Associate Producer

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—Robert E. Welsh, general manager of Universal City, announces the promotion of Carl Laemmle, Jr., to the position of associate producer at the studio. During the past year Junior Laemmle, as production supervisor, has to his credit "Erik the Great," "The Last Warning," "Lonesome," "We Americans" and "The Collegians," among others. He is undoubtedly the youngest associate producer in the industry, being but twenty-one.

Junior's first assignment as associate producer will be the first million dollar all-talkie made by the industry, "Broadway." Paul Fejos is directing.

Baby Stars being the usual starring feature.

Caddo Planning 5 Features

Howard Hughes, head of Caddo Productions, is now planning five pictures to be made next year. If "Hell's Angels" is completed early in the year, work on the first of the five will be started immediately after the aviation epic is wound up. Otherwise they will be placed into production while "Hell's Angels" winds its merry way into millions. It is now working on its third, over two million dollars having been spent to date.

Lewis Milestone, Louis Wolheim and Ben Lyon are still under contract to Hughes. He plans to add more people to his contract list shortly after the first of the new year.

Synchronizing "Life" for T-S

Ricardo Cortez and James Flood leave for New York shortly to synchronize the silent version of "Life," made in the Tiffany-Stahl studios in Hollywood. Until Tiffany-Stahl's equipment arrives, which is scheduled for January, all the product of that firm will be synchronized in New York.

Sylvia Beecher Cast

Sylvia Beecher will play the feminine lead opposite Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris." Miss Beecher was in stock to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer last year and appeared with Tim McCoy. During the past few months she has gained a reputation on the legitimate stage in Los Angeles.

Stuart-Carol Teamed Again

Nick Stuart and Sue Carol will be seen together again in "The Girl Who Couldn't Stop" which Lew Seiler will direct for Fox. The story is an original by Bertram Milhauser and Beulah Marie Dix.

Marion Nixon a Pathe Star

Marion Nixon is to be placed under a long term contract by Pathe. She has been under option since the making of "Geraldine" and the option will be taken up this week.

Ned Sparks in Paramount Talkie

Ned Sparks leaves for New York this week to appear in Paramount's motion picture version of "Nothing But the Truth," starring William Collier. Sparks appeared with Collier in the original legitimate stage version of the play. Monta Bell will direct the talker adaptation.

Pathe Extends Contract

Although he had not appeared in one picture during a three month optional contract period, Stanley Smith was signed for another year by Pathe to appear in talk films. Smith is appearing locally in a stage production, and was signed to a three-month optional contract by Pathe after passing voice and screen test, with long term contract following.

Paramount Exercises Options

Paramount exercised options on contracts of Florence Ryerson and Viola Brothers Shore, scenario writers.

Contract of William N. Robson, co-author of "Genius," and one of the Yale group from Prof. Baker's dramatic class, was also extended for another year.

Montagu Love Gets Role

Tiffany-Stahl has signed Montagu Love to be featured in two talkers to be produced shortly after the first of the year. The silent versions will be made at the local studios, with talking sequences being produced in the East.

Enroute to N. Y. for Stories

E. S. Gelsey, Pathe studios story editor, is enroute to New York to look over the play and story market for possible material for Pathe's next season program. Gelsey returns to the coast the first of the year.

Claim Advance Product Is Shown by Producers To Tide Over Flops

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, December 12.—Previews of forthcoming releases are being used by producers to bolster up grosses in neighborhood theatres throughout Southern California on their own product already released. This is another phase of "preview abuses" pointed out by local exhibitors.

They claim producers do not seek houses for preview purposes with the legitimate desire to secure audience reaction. In substantiation of this exhibitors state that in nine cases out of ten, a preview is held in a theatre playing a release from the company desiring to preview. The added business brought by the preview is naturally credited to the gross made by the feature booked into the house through regular channels.

The exhibitors' attitude is that producers only hurt themselves by not shopping for various types of audiences to secure preview reaction. Rarely will they submit a preview of a film to a house playing another company's picture at the time.

Meanwhile the "fake preview" evil continues unabated in Los Angeles and environs. This consists of independently made productions, some even eight years old, which have no release medium in this territory. Independent exhibitors pay rentals of from $5 to $10 a night for such features and advertise them only as "previews." There are a number of such productions which have been sold for "preview" purposes several hundred times to various theatres during the past few years.

Many Film Stars Respond to Call of Footlights

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 12.—The invasion of motion pictures by stage players as a result of talkies now seems to have resulted in a policy of reciprocity with a large number of screen players being made offers from the legitimate stage. Many film names have already invaded vaudeville, but the entrance of screen personalities to the legitimate field has never been emphasized as much as recently.

The film colony members made their first attack on Hollywood and Los Angeles theatres and now are reaching out to New York's best theatres as well. During the past week Montagu Love and Ben Lyon received offers from various legitimate producers. Love's was to join the cast of the new Earl Carroll show co-starring Fanny Brice and Leon Errol.

Film names which have appeared during recent weeks in Los Angeles legitimate houses include Patsy Ruth Miller, Alice Joyce, Owen Moore, Lawrence Grant, Lois Wilson, Albert Gran, Virginia Valli, Lila Lee, Helen Ferguson, Mae Busch, Barbara Leonard, Barbara Luddy, Duane Thompson, Pauline Garon, Leatrice Joy, Mike Donlin, Natalie Warfield, Violet Palmer, Sylvia Beecher and many others.

Dotty Jottings

By Jerry Hoffman

THE award for the prettiest electrical display at Hollywood openings goes to the Carthay Circle for the stunts pulled with the premiere of "The Barker" . . . and if there isn't an award there should be one . . . for rarely has any one seen anything as beautiful and effective. . . In addition to the usual display of sun-ares in all colors . . . a new stunt was a long pipe line, which sent jets and columns of steam into the air . . . while searchlights of red, blue, yellow, green, lavender . . . colors too many to think of played on the vapor . . . and as the steam rose the colors dissolved into each other . . . surrounding the theatre and streets about it with myriads of rainbows. . .

AND Hollywood is becoming more New Yorkish at openings . . . last year one took his life into his hands by wearing a derby at an opening . . . this year the derbies and even canes . . . are permitted . . . but it remained for Jack Warner and Darryl Zanuck to attempt the silk opera hats . . . the "go-to-you-come-from-you" kind . . . and now Jack, Darryl, Ben Lyon, Joseph M. Schenck, Ben Bard, Dave Butler, and even a few writers dare wear them . . . "all were valiant." . .

ONE of those fan stories which is often in print but rarely happens . . . Lou Ayres, a 19-year-old kid, played in the Montmartre and also sang to dance numbers . . . Paul Bern heard him and asked him to come to the Pathe studio for a test . . . Edmund Goulding made the test with the boy, and gave him Jeannette Loff to work opposite . . . and now Lou Ayres has a five-year contract for singing and talking "talkies" with Pathe. . .

IN mentioning "The Barker" opening I neglected the thousands who swoop down on film players in the intermission period and after the exit for autographs . . . one kid marched up to a red-headed player with a Clara Bow doll and asked the star to autograph the doll . . . the sorrel-top said, "Do you want me to write my name?" . . . the youngster said, "Of course" . . . I wonder how the kid felt when she read . . . "Alice White" . . .

CAROL LOMBARD joins the gang of ex-Mack Sennett bathing beauties to become dramatic . . . she'll be Cecil B. de Mille's leading lady in "Dynamite" . . . Clara Bow's next, "A Wild Party," will be all-talker, and Clara has only to be herself to be marvellous . . . that kid is one person who doesn't have to worry, because she's always herself . . . Martha Franklin is making talk sequences in "The Younger Generation" for Columbia . . . Senora Lueva tops the Quillan family of nine . . . by appearing in Paramount's "The Wolf-Song," with six of her eighteen children and four of her score or more grandchildren. . . Earl Snell is finishing "Companionate Troubles" in scenario form for Universal . . . which William J. Craft will direct . . . probably with Reginald Denney. . .

LUPINO LANE is going to give Hollywood a taste of old English Christmas pantomime . . . and for that purpose has leased the Hollywood Music Box . . . and a forthcoming fan magazine story, to which I look forward with great expectation, is "The Love Life of Rex, the Devil Horse" . . . whoa! . . .

Hollywood Notes

Visitor

Walter Hutchinson, foreign representative for Fox, arrived in Hollywood for a month's stay this week. Hutchinson is branch manager in charge of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales for Fox. He will gather material for distribution exploitation abroad during his visit.

M-G-M Engages Writer

Edwin Justice Mayer has been signed by M-G-M to write dialogue for one feature production. Upon completion of this work, Mayer will go East for the opening of new play which he authored.

New Title for "Heat"

M-G-M is looking for a new release title for "Heat," which Sidney Franklin recently directed with Greta Garbo starred.

Perez Dialoguing "Changeling"

Upon finishing titles for silent version of First National's "The Changeling," Paul Perez has been assigned to write the dialogue for this production's sound sequences.

Adapting "The Genius"

Doris Anderson is writing adaptation and dialogue for Paramount's "A Genius Is Born," which Louis Gasnier and Edward Knopf will direct. B. P. Fineman will produce.

Bobby Clark in Accident

Bobby Clark of Clark and McCullough was temporarily laid up last week as the result of being struck on the head with a windmill paddle at Fox Hills. He and his partner were working in a Movietone short when the accident occurred.

"Dancing Daughters" Sequel

"Our Modern Maidens" will be the title of M-G-M's sequel to "Our Dancing Daughters" instead of "The Brass Band." The picture will serve as Joan Crawford's first starring vehicle.

The title "The Brass Band" is being kept by M-G-M for another production which will be made in musical comedy style.

Little Billy in Talkie

Little Billy, vaudeville and musical comedy star, will make the first all-talking picture in which a midget appears. It will be a two-reel Vitaphone subject called "The Flaming Youth."

Oakie's Option Renewed

Jack Oakie's option has been taken up by Paramount. One of his most important roles on the new schedule will be the lead in "Burlesque."

Russian Stories on U. A. Program

"The Shot," by Alexander Pushkin, and "Taras Bulba," by Nikolai Gogol, are two productions that will be included on United Artists' program for next year. Both are foreign stories and will be directed by Lewis Milestone. Both stories are being adapted from the Russian classics.

Three Week Ends

A Glynnish Bow Tied Deftly—Makes a Pleasing Tid-Bit

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A PLEASING little morsel, sort of light on the story but easy on the eyes is this vehicle for the "it" girl. Conceived by Elinor Glyn, the film presents the romance of a fiery cabaret dancer, neatly spiced with humorous incident, and covered over with a typical Glynnish coating. The usual heavy sex element of the Glyn creations is missing on this occasion, but Clara Bow, with the assistance of a capable cast of players, has turned out a snappy enough number to tease the palates of fans. There is no question, regarding this one being a decided box-office benefit.

The kernel of this concoction of tried-and-true ingredients is the extremely edible Clara Bow, who jaunts through one of her typical roles, flapperish and tigerish. She has a flaming personality, this baby, and an adept foil in Neil Hamilton, the young man whom she snares. As for the plot—what matters it? It is only necessary to report that it is redolent of Madame's usual line of chatter and, that it contains a saucy, pert touch.

Yes, like the well-known brand of cigarettes, these Glyn-Bow stories satisfy, and the latest is no exception. All hands should enjoy it.

Drawing Power: For all theatres, the picture just the sort of entertainment for all sorts of audiences. Exploitation Angles: Exploit star and author to the limit.

THEME: Comedy drama of young cabaret dancer who captures her man.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Released, December, 1928. Length, 5,962 feet. Author, Elinor Glyn. Director, Clarence Badger.

Revenge

Unusual Story, Well Set

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

DOLORES DEL RIO is starred in this tale of Gypsy life and lore, which tells an unusual story if not a particularly appealing one. Miss Del Rio is the Gypsy girl of passion, untamable and one of many moods, but eventually she is tamed by a Gypsy bandit in a manner not calculated to win much sympathy for either.

Were it not for some unusual photography the production would be somewhat flat. It has some beautiful scenic shots and is attractive throughout for its beautiful settings. Perhaps it is natural for these Gypsies to be over-emphatic in their expressions of emotions, but it does seem in the more dramatic sequences as though Edwin Carewe, who is responsible for the production, permitted entirely too much overacting. The various characters register their emotions too emphatically for it to be convincing. Miss Del Rio is one of the main offenders in this direction.

The story is laid in the Carpathian Mountains and tells the tale of the temperamental girl bear tamer, who rousing the ire of the band chief, suffers the Gypsy shame of having her hair cut off by him. She swears revenge, but is made captive by him, suffers further humiliations and eventually falls in love with him. It is quite implausible in many of its details. The synchronized score is effective and the sound effects well executed. There is no dialogue in the story.

Drawing Power: Must depend principally upon the title and star. The story is rather weak, though well set and has splendid photography.

Exploitation Angles: Play up the star, the unusual story and the wonderful scenic shots.

THEME: Gypsy drama in which untamable girl of many moods is finally conquered by the handsome young leader of the outlaw band.

Produced and distributed by United Artists. Length, 6541 feet. Released Nov. 3, 1928. An Edwin Carewe production. Screen play by Fenis Fox.

"Wives Don't Weaken"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

AN entirely competent vehicle for the talents of Jerry Drew is this new Ideal comedy, with its easy flow of gags and breezy, dapper action from its star. Estelle Bradley plays in the leading feminine role.

Jerry has a yen for girls. He considers himself a right smart looking fellow, equipped with all the necessary masculine charms with which to captivate his lady friends. An entirely likable chap his maneuvers among the fair ones does not please the jealous boy friends of his many loves. In other words, Drew is a Lothario, gay and rollicking.

On board ship, in a stateroom with friend wife, he proceeds to get himself into one whirl of trouble after another, and in the course of his adventures is found several times in the arms of the fair Estelle, which fact is not appreciated by her bulky husband.

Things clip along snappily, lots of pretty girls making their entrances and exists, and Drew is the center of feminine attention and the object of laughter. He has an ease to his play acting and a gentleness in his pantomime. His silk hat type of fun is good for a bounteous supply of laughter in this subject.

Show Folks

Not Much Strength in Story

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THE Hollywood scribes have fastened upon another theme—that of the hooper and his woes—and will soon exhaust whatever possibilities it may have. Numerous recent offerings have dealt with life as it is lived behind the footlights and this Pathe release is just another account in the same vein. Its faults outnumber its virtues, particularly shabby is the tissue-paper story.

The dialogue sequences are good and the sound effects and musical score boost it. Eddie Quillan displays a warm and youthful sincerity; he is a hooper. Opposite him is Lina Basquette; she does not shine brightly in her many scenes, except in one instance wherein she shows her talent for dancing. Robert Armstrong is most subdued as a semi-villain; he hides his vigorous masculinity behind a mask of restraint. These three make up the trio who bear the brunt of the talking scenes, although Bessie Barriscale (returning to the screen after a long absence) speaks effectively in a short sequence.

These good attributes prop the story up, and needs propping inasmuch as it is mighty slim and well nigh transparent. The only drawback with Quillan is that he appears too youthful and Armstrong seems not exactly suited for his role of lounge lizard. The plight of the hooper, who through a swelled head and obstinacy, is driving away the girl he loves, does not grip the onlooker and the scenes of misunderstanding are lukewarm in spots.

It is a pretentious offering, which does not fulfill the possibilities it holds out. It has been produced with taste.

Drawing Power: A fair bet, because it is the first vehicle of a new star and because of the constant stream of "show folk" stories.

Exploitation Angles: Play up Eddie Quillan, Pathe's new star; Lina Basquette, ex-Follies girl; Robert Armstrong, stage star, and Bessie Barriscale, who is making a comeback. Its theme of dancing entertainers admits of theatrical tie-ups.

THEME: Drama of a young hooper, who suffers from an enlarged head. His piggishness almost drives his girl away from him, but when he is going on in "big time" in a single, she helps him out when he is threatened with failure. They become reunited, the girl forsaking the big theatrical producer after her.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Released, October 21, 1928. Length, 6 reels. Story, Philip Dunning. Adaptation, Jack Jungmeyer and Geo. Dromgold. Director, Paul L. Stein.

Eddie	Eddie Quillan

The Barker

Entertaining and Well Acted

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THIS one ranks well up at the head of the list with the best of the talkies made to date. It holds the interest and is thoroughly entertaining from start to finish. The directing is exceptionally good and the acting about all that could be desired. George Fitzmaurice injected some splendid subtle touches and enough good comedy relief to add materially to the worth of the picture.

The Barker as a stage play was a decided hit. It is as good as a picture as it was as a legitimate drama and it follows the original play very closely. It is hard to signal out anyone particularly as doing better work than anyone else. Milton Sills does splendidly as the Barker. In the more dramatic moments he was particularly effective.

Dorothy Mackaill has rarely been seen to as good advantage as in this role of the carnival girl and young Doug Fairbanks was perfectly cast as the sap lover of this hard-boiled girl. Surely no one did more effective work than Betty Compton as the dancer in love with the Barker.

As entertainment it is splendid with many stirring climaxes and a number of spectacular and thrilling shots. The picture seems destined to take its place among the very best of the year and it is doubtless in for a long run at the Central Theatre in New York.

Drawing Power: It is a picture that has every ingredient to make it a big box-office success for those houses equipped to handle talkies. Exploitation Angles: Adapted from one of the season's most successful stage plays; the carnival shots; the splendid acting and directing, and the many thrills.

THEME: Carnival Barker in love with dancing girl is ambitious to have his son become a lawyer. The youth on his vacation hops a freight, joins the carnival and weds a dancing girl, but eventually fulfills the ambition his father had for him.

Produced and distributed by First National. A George Fitzmaurice production. From the stage play by Kenyon Nicholson. Released Dec. 30, 1928. Length 7,137 feet.

Craig's Wife

A Splendid Entertainment

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS picturization of George Kelly's great play is one of the best pictures Pathe has ever released. It is adult entertainment, finely etched and unrelenting in its adherence to logic. Human nature is reflected in the persons of Craig's selfish helpmate and her good-natured husband. Men and women and all married folk should enjoy the various situations in this pictured play, so thoroughly are they pictured and directed.

One of the reasons that this production satisfies is that it possesses story value. The character of Craig's wife, around whom lives of kin and friend revolve while she sits selfishly in their midst, is deeply introspective. The delineation of Irene Rich in this difficult role is fine screen acting. That of Warner Baxter is smooth and polished. The work of the cast is uniformly good even down to a small servant role played by Ethel Wales.

William de Mille was confronted with a tough task when he started out to turn the play, equipped with its scintillating dialogue, into a shadow and light creation. But he has done sympathetically by it, intelligence being manifested in the sturdy bite and clash of the scenes.

All in all, the spectator carries away with him a sense of having witnessed a slice of life, touched with some bitterness and semi-tragedy, but life pure and simple. When Mrs. Craig's world comes tumbling down about her ears and when she is left all alone in her great big house, one has the satisfaction of knowing that this story has not been "dumbed up." Sad ending and everything, it may repel a few who feebly demand all their screen romance to be bliss and joy, but it will draw the majority of patrons because of its sincerity and convincing realism.

Drawing Power: A fine film and one which should satisfy all types of patrons.

Exploitation Angles: Mention the name of George Kelly, whose "Showoff" has also been filmed. Play up the cast and dwell on the forceful characterizations.

THEME: Drama of the breach in the Craigs married life, how the husband was driven away by his wife's coldness and selfishness and how she, left alone and friendless, learned the bitter sting of self-centeredness.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Released, September 16, 1928. Length, 6670 feet. Adaptation, Clara Beranger, from play by George Kelly. Director, William de Mille.

"What a Trip"

(Educational—One Reel)

VERNON DENT, the versatile comedian-heavy, who turned out some fine work in Mack Sennett productions over a period of years, has been wisely signed up by Educational, and is now being featured on his own in a series of single-reel Cameo comics. Dent's individuality of characterization and screen personality, have secured him a strong place with the fans, and his new appearance should meet with success.

Vernon in this subject sets out on a day's fishing, accompanied by his wife and youngster, and right off the bat things begin to happen. They get aboard a launch that is to take them to a fishing barge, and Vernon cautions the boy about getting his tackle caught on the pier. His own line has become caught in the meantime and when the launch starts, he is yanked into the water. A number of good laughs are offered on the way to the fishing boat by Jack Richardson, in a full-dress drunk characterization, who is also in the party. The real fun of the piece is the action presented on the fishing barge, where laugh gags are plenty, and climaxed by a free-for-all fish-flogging battle. Director Francis J. Martin. A snappy enough single-reeler to top off any program.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Only Me"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THERE are 24 principal roles in this comedy and each and every one of them is played by Lupino Lane. The comedian surely must have worked in Herculean fashion to turn out this vehicle, and to his credit it may be said, that he lends a dash of individuality to the various parts he essays and they are quite distinct. The film has its slapstick moods, but the final result is a comedy into which has gone considerable of brains and talent. It is a genuinely good piece of work on the part of the ex-Follies comic.

As a drunk, Lane staggers his way into a theatre, where to his intense surprise, everyone looks like him. These include the ticket taker, stage attendant, audience, orchestra leader, actors, etc., all of whom are played by Lane. The comedian shows convincingly that he has a different brand of humor to offer than most of his rivals have. The idea of a one-man show is not exactly new, but seldom, we'll bet, has it been done with the finesse and ability of the English comic. A criticism might be advanced that there are far too many closeups, but when you remember that there are some two dozen characters and that there is no better medium than the close-up with which to capture distinct mannerisms this criticism can be easily dispensed with.

"The Death's Head"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THE usual outdoor atmosphere is to be seen in this featurette starring the athletic Westerner, Bob Curwood. The story for this one is not so bad, carrying a little romance, hard-riding and fighting. It will please audiences that cater to this sort of film.

Curwood as Bob Perry, has just realized his dreams of owning a homestead, when he finds a message on his door warning him to sell out at a small figure to the unscrupulous Ace Dugan. Bob dashes after the messenger, and is amazed to overtake a girl who has fallen from her horse and fainted. While he is getting water, she disappears.

Next day Bob goes to Dugan's place, refuses his offer and a fight follows. Bound and gagged, Bob is surprised to be released by the girl he had chased, who tells him to get the sheriff. Sheriff and posse finally run down the Dugan gang, and the mystified Bob learns that the girl is a Government agent.

"Pathe Review No. 49"

(Pathe—One Reel)

A SCREEN interview with the celebrated novelist, Sir Phillip Gibbs, is presented as the high-light of a very entertaining Pathe Review educational subject numbered 49. Other sequences appearing in this reel are: "Woof! Woof! From London," depicting the latest in dog fashions in England; "Cliff Farmers of the Faroe Islands," adventuring with Danish sons of Vikings in the North Atlantic and "Where Pirate Chiefs Hid Their Gold," an attractive Pathe-color visualization of Rio del Dulce, lair of the bold corsairs of the old Spanish Main.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Flying Hoofs"

(Pathe—One Reel)

THIS rates as an average Aesop Film Fable release, containing several clever bits of animation that will draw forth the giggles. Most of the pen situations of this one have been seen before in one form or another, but will still entertain.

Waffles, the cat has invented a mechanical steed and enters it in the race. At the flash of the gun, Waffles gets off to a bad start, but soon leads the field, when the other horses stop to dance to the band music. Racing on to the judge's stand, Waffles is unable to halt his metal steed. A crash follows, and the stand, horse, judge and Waffles are sent sky-high.—GEO. J. REDDY.

First-Hand Information from News Correspondents

Store Trade Cuts Broadway Grosses

Pre-Xmas Shopping Makes Considerable Dent in Attendance

A GENERAL prosperity which was shared by practically all Broadway houses over the Thanksgiving period was somewhat dissipated last week by reason of a horde of Manhattanites being considerably more occupied with pre-Xmas shopping than anything else. Several theatres made a very good showing but others couldn't call last week anything but a large-sized pain and reports up and down the street indicate that those affected were off anywhere from 10 to 20 per cent. This week some exceptionally strong bills are in evidence, long run specials of the $2 grade having dropped into the popular class for what will probably mean a two-weeks' stand, and the outlook is exceedingly brighter for an evening up on last week's dip.

The week's new arrival was "The Barker" at the Central and it appears that this one has gotten off to a good start. "Lilac Time," which preceded this is currently in at the Strand.

Columbia's "Submarine," after a good run at the Embassy went into the Capitol and caught the fancy of the fans at this theatre. Business was good all week. A synchronized musical score has been added, also sound effects and some singing which serves to enhance an already strong production.

After a very fair week with an all-sound program the big Roxy took one right on the chin with "Riley the Cop" (Fox). The picture was rated below Roxy calibre and lack of punch in title also did its share in chalking up a rather poor week's showing. The Paramount was below average, too, with "Someone to Love" (Par.) about the same as several preceding weeks. A Clara Bow picture is in the current week and advance reports indicate that attendance will show considerable improvement.

One of the bright spots along the street was at the Rialto where Germany's newsreel alibi of the Great War is on exhibition. The film was made by Ufa and claims are that the majority of war scenes are official. A brisk trade kept up all week and about the only way to figure this one is that it has a distinct appeal to the vast German-American element in this city. Applause always being in evidence when von Hindenberg's picture was flashed in both peace and war-time scenes. At the Rivoli "Woman Disputed" called it a run and "Revenge" is now running there. The former made a very creditable showing for the month.

The Strand also had a good week with "Caught in the Fog," a Warner dialogue picture and this house can share in the good news of the week. The good business will probably continue with "Lilac Time" current.

Most of the specials showed a drop in attendance, some slipping considerably more than others. "The Singing Fool" at the Winter Garden and "Interference" at the Criterion were up among the leaders, but little difference being reported at these houses. Warner's "On Trial" at Warner's had a fair week and about the same can be said for "Four Devils" at the Gaiety. "Jimmy Valentine" at the Astor did very well and Tiffany's "Marriage by Contract" also managed to make very creditable returns at the Colony. "Somme" completed its second week at the Cameo.

"Home Towners" Scores Heavily in Albany Showing

ALBANY.—Another all-talkie scored heavily in Albany during the past week when the "Hometowners" at the Mark Strand Theatre packed the house to its utmost capacity each night with many obliged to stand during practically the entire second show. The picture proved one of the most satisfactory both from the standpoint of the patron and the box office, of any that has played at the theatre in recent months. Starting off with a capacity house on Monday night, and followed by the sort of newspaper criticism that sends crowds flocking to the ticket office, the picture could perhaps have been held for a second week. The feature was also assisted by two Vitaphone acts and a Movietone.

The Leland, in Albany, came within a ace of establishing a new house record for the year with "Submarine." This picture was well exploited and ran to capacity houses and more throughout the week. The Clinton Square Theatre in Albany appears to be doing very well with its double first run features, using "Virgin Lips" and "Domestic Meddlers" last week to full houses.

The Mark Ritz might have done better perhaps than it did last week with "Varsity," which proved a very fair drawing card, although it was somewhat panned by newspaper critics.

Neighborhood houses in Albany reported good business all throughout the whole of the week.

Kansas City Business Reported Little Above Normal

KANSAS CITY.—The average attendance at first-run houses of Kansas City proved a duplication of the previous week, which was slightly better than normal. A steady flow of out-of-town Christmas shoppers may have been responsible for well-filled houses, but the line-up of pictures was also strong.

At the Mainstreet Theatre "Annapolis" drew well all week, the matinee attendance being better than the previous week, but the night attendance showed a slight decrease, serving to balance matters. At the Pantages Theatre "Companionate Marriage," starring Betty Bronson, packed them in all week. The subject of companionate marriage has received much publicity in Kansas City, so the picture served as an unusual attraction for the younger, as well as the older, generations.

At the Newman "On Trial," which was advertised much more than the average picture, drew big all week, the matinee business being of the capacity calibre, while the nightly attendance saw comfortably-filled houses. Lon Chaney in "West of the Zanzibar" at Loew's Midland held up well all week, the matinee business being slightly better than the nightly attendance, which was good.

"Land of the Silver Fox," starring Rin Tin Tin, at the Royal did not quite measure up to the previous week's attendance, but the box office mark was good enough to cause no worry.

"A Reno Divorce" at the Globe played to average attendance, as did "The Baby Cyclone" at the Uptown.

Aside from additional newspaper advertising, and bill-board posters used by the Newman, the remainder of the theatres did nothing unusual in the way of exploitation.

Famous Canadian Now Controls 152 Theatres

FAMOUS Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, now owns or controls 152 theatres in Canada, according to an announcement on December 7. The annual report of the company for the fiscal year, which closes the end of August, showed that the company then had 146 theatres in the Dominion, as compared with 126 one year previously.

The total seating capacity of the 152 theatres is given as 163,121. There are about 950 theatres in the Dominion all told.

Loop Theatres Set Fast Pace for Week

December Proving Banner Month for Chicago Palaces

CHICAGO—December, which is a bad month for many of the smaller theatres in Chicago, is proving a banner month for the big de luxe houses, and this past week the Chicago set a strong pace in the loop with Sousa and his Military Band as the big attraction, and on the screen, in sound, "The Haunted House."

With two more weeks to go "The Singing Fool" continues to smash attendance records at McVicker's Theatre, where it has proved the sensation of local theatrical history. At the Roosevelt "White Shadows" run is continuing, and business is reported satisfactory. "The Awakening" is drawing to the end of its engagement at United Artists Theatre, where it has proved a popular attraction. "Someone to Love" on the screen, with a stage show headed by Brooke Johns, proved a good drawing program at the Oriental.

Big theatres outside the loop are also doing a satisfactory business. "Annapolis" in sound was the screen feature at both the Granada and Marbro, and the talking picture, "Mother Knows Best," held the screen at the Uptown, Paradise and Tivoli, all of these houses offering big stage shows in addition to the feature picture and headlining popular stage band leaders.

"Masks of the Devil," Fox Movietone and Vitaphone, with Del Lampe and his orchestra, feature in the stage bill, did good business at the Capitol, while "The Home Towners," that excellent talking picture, brought good crowds to the Avalon.

Indianapolis Downtown Houses Improve

Indianapolis.—Downtown movie business picked up last week over the previous week's box office receipts. Thanksgiving week was off because of holiday activities and bad weather. The past week brought good show weather.

"Manhattan Cocktail," at the Indiana topped the week's business. The Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll picture was a popular film.

"The Air Circus" at the Apollo also had a good week's business. "Lonesome" at the Circle, "West of Zanzibar" at Palace and neighborhood houses had average business.

Freezing Weather Crimps Portland Receipts

Portland, Ore.—As the thermometer took a drop and freezing weather crept in during the past week, box office receipts likewise registered considerably lower, in spite of the fact that several stellar attractions were held over for extra weeks, and managers kept their heating plants working on an almost 24-hour basis, and advertised that their pleasure houses were semi-tropical.

Rud LaRocque, Jeanette Loff and Mary Carr furnished the comedy at Tehbets Oriental, and brought out some good houses, in "Love Over-night." On the stage Bert and Betty Stone proved to be a pair of clever dancers. Josef Srodka and the Oriental Symphony orchestra were acceptable.

"Driftwood" with Don Alvarado and Marceline Day, registered well, accompanied by five acts, two of which were of headline caliber. The Capital played to fairly good business with "Modern Daughters."

Lon Chaney always draws well here regardless of his vehicle and the melodrama "West of Zanzibar" brought out some good houses. Musical effects were enjoyed but synchronization could have been eliminated. Max Bradfield and his musical band helped considerably.

Portland Theatre reverted to Publix ownership, and yet continued Fanchon & Marco stage events with "Happy" Idea featuring Ted Doner. The work of all principals in "Varsity" including Chester Conklin, Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian was enjoyed and should have drawn better at box office.

At the Music Box, "The Terror" held over for third week with continued good business, and every offering either comedy, melodrama or whatnot offered at Hamrick's Theatre seems to click.

The "Blue Mouse" showed "The Midnight Taxi" for a second week, with splendid night audiences, but fair matinees, though 25c top at latter. "Dawn" was given first showing at Helig Theatre for five day run, but did not catch on as expected.

Robert McWade, guest star at "Duffwin" continued to third week in "New Brooms" which received good patronage. By coincidence in addition to taking lead here, McWade will be one of principals in "The Home Towners" this coming week at Music Box, and will be heard via Vitaphone at latter house.

The Rivoli had Jack Holt in Zane Grey's "The Water Hole." Peoples Theatre, "The Port of Missing Girls." Critics were unanimous in praise of Vilma Banky in "The Awakening" at United Artists, but from a box office standpoint left much to be desired.

"White Shadows" Boosts Pittsburgh Business

Pittsburgh.—Loew's Penn had another exceptional week's business. S. R. O. at practically all performances. "White Shadows in the South Seas" was the screen attraction. This is one of those freak films which seems to please some folks and displease others; nevertheless, it seems to get the business. The Publix stage unit, "Volcano," was good entertainment as usual.

Corinne Griffith in "Outcast" did rather well at the Stanley, where a nice week's business was recorded. The film proved a little better than average entertainment. "Women They Talk About" did fair for the week at the Grand.

"The Sawdust Paradise," with Esther Ralston more lovely than ever, did well at Loew's Al-dine. "Flying Romeos" and six acts of Keith

"Show People" Leads Baltimore First Run Theatres

BALTIMORE.—Head and shoulders over every other first-run picture in town during the week beginning Monday, December 3, was "Show People," co-starring Marion Davies and William Haines, at Loew's Century with a Loew-Publix stage act headed by Ted Claire and his syncopators.

Throughout the week this theatre was jammed practically to capacity and it was aided to a great extent by the large advertising and publicity space given to it in Hearst's News and Sunday American here.

Next in line for big business came "West of Zanzibar," starring Lon Chaney and featuring Lionel Barrymore, Warner Baxter and Mary Nolan. This was offered at Loew's Stanley and business for the week was very good.

"The Singing Fool," with Al Jolson, was shown for its ninth and last week at Warner's Metropolitan and business for the six days was very good. This picture broke all house records even topping that made by "The Jazz Singer," which was held for the same number of weeks.

"The Station Master," the foreign production starring Ivan Moskvine, offered at the Lit-time did but fair for the week at the Davis. Mary Astor, in "Romance of the Underworld," rather a pleasing film, did not fare so well at the Olympic.

"The Home Towners" at the Regent had the town singing its praises, and got a big week's business. "Wings," in its second run at the Cameraphone, played to disappointing business. "The Floating College" at the Alhambra did not draw.

Split week at the Liberty. First half, "The First Kiss"; last half, "Land of the Silver Fox." Business poor all week.

Clara Bow Beats Talkies in Tampa Showing

Tampa.—Clara Bow has the distinction of holding the box office record for the silent drama in Tampa, and last week, at the same admission scale, she ran ahead of the talkies. Her opening Sunday, at the Tampa, in "Three Week-Ends," was big. While it was not up to her record, still it was crowding it, and the business held up very good for the entire four days. "Manhattan Cocktail," featured by this house for the last half, did nicely, pulling about the average business.

"The Home Towners," an all talkie, two Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News, gave the Victory an excellent program, but for some unknown reason the combination failed to click and business was not up to expectations. Advertising was doubled and sold the show to Tampa. Receipts mounted every day of the run and the week went over to very good returns.

Adolphe Menjou, well liked in Tampa, pulled two days of good business for the Strand in his latest picture, "His Private Life." Reginald Denny, in "The Night Bird," opened Tuesday to just fair business. On the same bill was a comedy, "Hat's Off," that was about the funniest thing seen here in moons and deserves special mention. It helped on the draw and the second and third day of the run showed up better at the box-office. "The Haunted House" closed the week to average business.

The Franklin had nothing very startling in the way of drawing cards in this week's line-up of second runs, and business was just fair. Pictures used were, "Three Bad Men," "Fast and Furious" and "Hot News."

tle Theatre by the Motion Picture Guild, proved a poor business getter up to Friday and Saturday when business went up to very good.

The new policy of presenting a musical comedy tab interspersed with vaudeville acts by the Lewis Mack Players as a stock company was begun at the Hippodrome with the feature film "The Apache." Business was good; people seeming to like the new arrangement.

Due to some extent to the overflow of the Century, downstairs, Loew's Valencia, upstairs in the same building, did a very good business for the week with "His Private Life." This proved an enjoyable attraction and drew a great many Menjou fans.

"Romance of the Underworld," proved a good pulling attraction at the Rivoli.

"Me, Gangster," did not pull so well at the New Theatre, but did a fairly good business on the entire week.

At the Keith-Albee New Garden, with Jack Major as the featured headliner, "How to Handle Women" was the feature film with Glenn Tryon and Marion Nixon. This gave that theatre a good week.

Cleveland Holds Off Pre-Holiday Slump

Theatres at High Average; Jolson's Strong 5th Week

CLEVELAND.—The annual pre-holiday bug-a-boo is postponing its visit this year, and although Christmas is only two weeks away, the first-run theatre business is maintaining its high average.

"The Singing Fool" did very well during its fifth week at the Stillman. Not so well as Thanksgiving week, however. It will play a sixth week at the Stillman, and possibly a seventh week.

"The Awakening," Vilma Banky's first starring vehicle, proved a great success at the Allen last week, where a box office line was steadily maintained. Reviewers have called this picture "a box-office high light," and have called Miss Banky "very nearly perfect." Louis Wolheim also came in for praise from local critics. From all sides came recommendations for this attraction.

"The Air Circus," a highly entertaining, bright, cheerful play, with just enough thrills in it to give it spice, did average business last week at the Palace.

"Three Week Ends," the attraction at the State Theatre, drew large crowds from among those who like their tales with the Elvenglyn sex appeal. It proved to be a box-office picture. Clara Bow, true to type, always gets what she's after—this time it's wealth for her poor suitor. The answer to the quality of this production is that the public liked it and patronized it.

"Romance of the Underworld" did fairly well at the Hippodrome. An entertaining picture, well made, it was nevertheless not sufficiently outstanding to compete with great success against other and outside activities.

"Freedom of the Press" did very well the first half of the week at Keith's East 105th Street. Preceded by a locally-made prologue showing the working of a local newspaper office, and based on the Mellert murder of nearby Canton, it aroused great interest. It was interesting both because of its subject matter and its presentation.

"Sally's Shoulders" broke just about even at Keith's 105th Street the last half of the week.

"The Haunted House," amusing thriller, succeeded in attracting considerable business last week to the Cameo, where this picture was presented for its second downtown run.

"Show People" and "Wind" divided the week's honors at the Park Theatre. Business for the week was very good. Interest in "Show People" was keenly demonstrated by good attendance. "Wind" also drew pretty well, although its theme is not in tune with the holiday attitude.

Neighborhood houses are complaining. Business is way off from last week at this time. Few neighborhood houses have sound installation, and most of the movie business here is directed toward those houses which are presenting sound and talking pictures.

Weather Helps Results in S. F. Houses

SAN FRANCISCO.—Business, generally, in San Francisco during the past week was considered but fairly good. One reason being that the films were not as high grade as the people desire in this city. Cloudy weather drove the "beach fiends" to the theatres, and had it not been for the weather box office reports, with probably one exception, would have been still worse.

The leading picture of the week, as it has been for the past four weeks, was "The Singing Fool," at the Embassy. This picture is beginning its fifth week, and the crowds continue to fill the sidewalks, waiting to enter.

"Abie's Irish Rose," in its second week at the California Theatre, did but a fairly good business there. Not what was expected. The idea of jealousy and hatred between the Jew and Irish, both of whom are very friendly to each other in this section, is one of the reasons so many speak against, and naturally, keeps others from seeing this film.

"Lilac Time," at the St. Francis Theatre, was well thought of by the many who saw it. During the time of its showing the St. Francis and California were both of the West Coast chain, and as the California had previously played it, some did not think it would do as well as desired. However, it did better.

"Romance of the Underworld," on the screen at the Loew's Warfield Theatre, did well. The picture itself was not desirably considered. In fact, many thought it was too crude. The appearance of Armida in person on the stage and the "Nite Club" presentation were very popular. "Manhattan Cocktail," shown at the Granada, also was considered too crude, but the Publix Review, "Harem Scarem," helped.

The Pantages Theatre drew but fair business with "Submarine," together with a vaudeville show. Fairly good business was reported at the Union Square Theatre, where "Sea Prowlers" and the comedy, "Standing Pat," was shown with Nat Holt's musical comedy and presentation.

Seattle First Run Houses Only Fair Over Thanksgiving Holiday

SEATTLE.—Local first run houses didn't fare particularly well last week, depending upon the Thanksgiving holiday to put them over for an average week, and nothing more.

The Seattle Theatre played "Me, Gangster" and it was considered one of the weakest films of this type yet released. Most audiences were rather unfavorable. The bill was strengthened by Fanchon-Marco's very acceptable "Oriental Idea" on the stage, which pleased everyone. Just a fair week.

At the Fifth Avenue, the popular John Gilbert disappointed his many admirers with "Masks of the Devil," which was generally disliked by the local audiences, and considered his poorest picture to date. Business was off on this one. A bad musical presentation act did not help matters.

The Music Box, after eight weeks of prosperity with "The Singing Fool," opened up with "On Trial" after a heavy advance campaign. Business, though good, was not what it should have been, and it looks like two more weeks will finish this film. Vitaphone and Movietone shorts were well received, and the feature was liked by those who saw it.

At the Blue Mouse Theatre, "The Woman Disputed" seemed to please all the Norma Talmadge fans, who considered this her best film in recent seasons. Business was quite good for the first week, aided by Vitaphone shorts, and the picture continues on its run.

Two moderately good program releases of a different type were shown at the Coliseum and Embassy Theatres, where "Plastered in Paris" and "Domestic Meddlers" were the screen attractions. Both films did a fairly strong business, the latter being aided by a local stage revue.

At the vaudeville houses, "Sal of Singapore" graced the Orpheum screen and "The Apache" played at Pantages. Both were films of similar type, neither particularly strong. The Orpheum business was good, but Pantages on the stage featured a side-show monstrosity act which aroused public disgust and detracted from business.

Ottawa Holds Own Against Some Keen Competition

OTTAWA.—Exhibitors of Ottawa, Ontario, had all sorts of competition during the week of December 3 but held their own in the matter of receipts and, for one thing, Christmas shopping had not yet started to cut into the business. Counter-attractions included the annual Winter Fair, the annual radio show and several important hockey games.

The outstanding hit of the week was "The Woman Disputed," with Norma Talmadge, at the Regent Theatre. This was a real film story and patrons said it compared with "Seventh Heaven" and "The Patriot." It was a case of try-to-get-in at the evening shows and matinees were also heavy.

A fair attraction was the new version of "The Whip" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. Crowds were slightly above average, the production was well liked but there was no great excitement over it.

"The Haunted House" at the Centre Theatre was seen by good crowds but this type of feature is not popular in Ottawa and it was evident that quite a number of regular patrons side-stepped it.

A double bill at the Imperial Theatre provided plenty of entertainment and steady business was registered throughout the week. The attractions comprised "Take Me Home" with Bebe Daniels and a re-issue of "Grandma's Boy."

The new Avalon Theatre presented the second run of two extraordinary features, playing "The Big Parade" during the first half and "The Patriot" for the last three days. Matinees were light but there was a good increase in evening patronage.

The Fern Theatre enjoyed capacity business with "Across to Singapore" during the first three days and the patronage repeated with "Phantom of the Turf" during the last half.

The Columbia was also jammed every night, first with "Sailors' Wives" and then with "Across the Atlantic" during the last half. The Rex was a popular neighborhood spot with "Fleetwing" and "The Million Dollar Mystery" for three days each. Business was good, generally speaking, all around.

"Mother Knows Best" Scores at the Des Moines

Des Moines.—"Mother Knows Best" showing at the Des Moines was a picture which proved satisfactory to all types of audiences and business was entirely satisfactory. People liked it. They were also much interested in the newsreel talkies of King George.

At the Capitol "The Mask of the Devil" was favorably commented upon for the unusual treatment, but it was a picture which audiences did not seem to care for. Paul Spor came back as director of the stage band with all his old time pep but devotion to the master of ceremonies does not seem to hold at such a pitch as with the first season. The stage show was a good one but did not draw big enough to counteract hesitation because of the feature.

At the Strand "Caught in the Fog" was shown the end of the week and it drew good business. Cold weather in general may be said to have had some effect on business as it generally keeps some away, while drawing others in. The 'flu has also been counting against the box office.

Average Week for Theatres in St. Louis

Jolson, Bow and Gilbert Star at Downtown Houses

ST. LOUIS.—"Some One to Love," the screen attraction at the Missouri Theatre, Grand Boulevard and Lucas avenue, was a nice enough picture of its particular type, but, frankly, it must not be credited with pulling in the thousands who visited the box office during the week's run, as that would be very unfair to Eddie Peabody, who was making his first appearance as master of ceremonies for this house. In fact, Eddie was the whole works, and the rest of the program was sort of incidental. So, for that reason, the pulling power of "Some One to Love" was very hard to judge.

"The Masks of the Devil," starring John Gilbert, held the screen at Loew's State Theatre, and from observations apparently had a satisfactory week.

Clara Bow in "Three Week Ends," helped Ed Lowry entertain the customers at the Ambassador Theatre. Clara is rather popular in St. Louis, especially with the flappers.

The St. Louis Theatre at Grand and Delmar Boulevards offered on its screen "Freedom of the Press." It proved fairly interesting and attractive.

Al Jolson and Sonny Boy continued to bring 'em in at 75 cents and $1 per head with "The Singing Fool" at the Midtown Theatre on Olive street west of Grand Boulevard. The picture continued to draw big crowds.

At the Grand Central, "On Trial," the best all-talking picture to play St. Louis to date, was held over for another week. But it hasn't the pulling powers of Jolson.

Married," a film which did about the average business for that theatre. The Hennepin-Orpheum found William Boyd in "Power" just a fair drawing card, and "The Power of the Press" at Pantages fell in about the same class.

"The Woman Disputed" was good enough to stay a whole week at the Granada, Minneapolis' atmospheric neighborhood theatre. Other outlying houses enjoyed fairly good business, showing such pictures as "The Wedding March," "Ramona," "Beggars of Life," "Sawdust Paradise" and "Hangman's House."

The competition was chiefly provided by "Good News," the musical comedy which did a fine week's business at the Metropolitan, and "Abie's Irish Rose" which was presented by the Bainbridge Players at the Shubert with great success.

Sound Equipment Brings Harrisburg Capacity

Harrisburg, Pa.—Use of full sound equipment for the first time in the Colonial Theatre, Harrisburg, which has just been equipped with Vitaphone and Movietone, resulted in overflowing audiences each night of the week, the principal attraction being "Mother Knows Best." The novelty of the talkies and the popularity of the piece combined to bring business said to rate with the largest the theatre has done in a single week this year.

At Loew's Regent, which has been a sound house for several months, the feature offering was "Lion and the Mouse," starring Lionel Barrymore and May McAvoy, and here, too, the crowds were up to capacity. The excellent speaking voice of Barrymore added much to the effectiveness of the Vitaphoned stage production.

Buddy Rogers is fast becoming a favorite in Harrisburg and he drew well at the Victoria in "Some One to Love" in which the co-star was the youthful Mary Brian. The State the first half of the week did quite gratifying business with a half movie, half vaudeville bill, the film feature of which was Pola Negri in "Loves of an Actress," while the last three days the screen offering was Fred Thomson in "Kit Carson."

The State also added to the net total of the week's receipts by putting on the second of the weekly children's Saturday morning matinees sponsored by a women's welfare organization of the city. The Broad Street theatre accomplished fair results, financially speaking, by showing Pauline Garon in "The Heart of Broadway," while the screen feature at the Grand was Buzz Barton as "The Fighting Red-head." The Russell continued its policy of showing a double bill, the features of which were "Stormy Waters," which Malcolm MacGregor and Eve Southern, and "Burnt Fingers," starring George O'Hara and Eileen Percy. The Capitol thrilled fair sized audiences with "Chinatown Charley."

Salt Lake Business Good in Face of Illness

SALT LAKE CITY.—The Salt Lake first-run theatres averaged very good this past week, considering the prevalence of illness which has been broadcast. Some special productions and very attractive bills aided in abating the lull in business.

Three "Wings" Showings Hurt Buffalo

Buffalo.—Experience of Shea-Publix here in exhibiting "Wings" simultaneously at three neighborhood houses was reported as unsatisfactory. The picture was first roadshowed and then played two-weeks at Shea's Hippodrome where it established a record. Simultaneously showings at North Park, Baily, and Kensington were reported to have started strong but to have fallen off in the middle of the week.

At the Baily "The Singing Fool" starring Al Jolson, was shown and the lobby was jammed every night with great crowds on the sidewalks in front.

"The Home Towners" playing at the Great Lakes kept all the patrons continually laughing during the performance. It was a great success. At the Lafayette "Oh Kay" starring Colleen Moore brought fair business which practically set a new record for the first few days.

High attendance were reached at the Buffalo playing Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge" the house was filled to capacity. "Manhattan Cocktail" at the Hippodrome with Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll playing the leading roles proved to be a bigger success than was expected.

Counter Attractions Hit Minneapolis Receipts

Minneapolis.—The movies had some rather stiff competition this past week, but at least two attractions managed to make a good showing at the box offices. At the Minnesota "White Shadows in the South Seas" brought in the crowds in fine fashion, and at the State "Mother Knows Best" proved very popular, although business did not warrant its being held over for a second week.

The Strand showed Pola Negri in "The Woman from Moscow" with only fair results, and the Lyric had the comedy picture "Just

Cincinnati Business Reported in Pre-Holiday Slump

CINCINNATI.—Many of the houses here are experiencing more or less of a pre-holiday slump, although in no individual case is the decline such as is causing any particular worry.

"Abie's Irish Rose," ended an extended engagement at the Lyric in a blaze of glory. The house has established a record with this picture both from a standpoint of length of run and attendance. There was no appreciable let-up in attendance during the engagement, and the last week was nearly as big as the opening.

The Albee presenting Irene Franklin, a favorite in Cincinnati, as the headliner of the flesh-and-blood portion of the program, and also showing "Manhattan Cocktail" on the screen, did a satisfactory business, which, however, cannot be put down as the best week of the season by any means when everything is considered.

"The Terror," in the second week at the Capitol, played to good returns during the entire run. This is the first 100 per cent talking picture to be shown in Cincinnati, and received considerable word-of-mouth advertising.

Keith's with a holdover of "Tempest," with sound, duplicated the business done for the first week, which as a whole might be called nominal. Lillian Gish in "Wind" proved a good draw at the Strand.

The Palace presenting "The Woman from Moscow" on the screen, and a very good vaudeville bill, had a big week, which is generally the rule at this house.

Neighborhood houses report that business is not up to the usual standard, while legitimate houses are likewise suffering from lack of patronage.

MANAGERS ROUND TABLE CLUB CLEARING HOUSE FOR BOX OFFICE PROBLEMS and THEATRE OPERATION

By Charles E. Lewis

of the Alfred Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises, New England

Bergmann's Views on "Sound"

W. H. Bergmann, of the Columbus Theatre in Columbus, Nebr., comes forward with a few short lines about "Sound." Taking just two sentences from his letter we quote: "At present the only house on our circuit using sound is the World Theatre in Omaha. In our outstate houses we feel that 'sound' is not necessary at present owing to our vaudeville and circuit-stock policy. . . . I think the time will come when every theatre will have a 'talkie' of some kind, but at present I do not think sound would sufficiently increase our business to warrant the expenditure."

Well, at any rate, he don't mince words. But, whether long or short, we always welcome expressions about "sound."

J. R. Moss Makes a Good Tie-up

J. R. Moss, who just joined the ever-swelling ranks of the CLUB describes a most effective tie-up with the Zenith Radio Co. through which he placed thirty-one radios in that many theatres for broadcasting the returns on Election Day.

Quoting this stunt from Mr. Moss' letter: "I made a tie-up with the Zenith Radio Co. here and had a Zenith radio installed in 31 theatres. Nineteen in Lubliner & Trinz theatres, seven on the Lynch circuit and one on the Balaban & Katz circuit. . . . I had the radios installed one week before Election Day. . . . connected them all up two days before. . . . and as a result of my tie-up the Zenith people ran an ad, 150 on 3, in the four largest papers in Chicago. The ad. gave the complete list of theatres and their addresses, rebroadcasting the results."

In conclusion, Mr. Moss tells me that as a result of this tie-up business increased over any other Tuesday or Election Day in the history of the circuit. The copy of the ad. he sent me bears out his enthusiastic description of this great tie-up and before closing this item we would call attention to the fact that such tie-ups can be effected without waiting for Election Day to roll around. Work it out for some special occasion with your local radio dealers or direct with the manufacturers.

We are glad to welcome Mr. Moss into the CLUB, and we also know that all the other members will be looking forward to hearing from him again and often through the CLUB pages.

Special Use for House Organs

Manager Julius Chalif sent me a copy of his latest program, which shows that for a special picture he alters the layout to the extent of utilizing the entire inside portion for the special display, but without loss of his regular program copy which he moves for this special occasion to the rear page. His idea about changing the color of the program every week is not a bad suggestion and gets away, to a certain extent, and for his type of program, from the monotony that a same colored program might provoke.

The Club Creates a Brotherhood

Lloyd Townsend, of the New Piedmont Theatre in Oakland, Cal., writes us the letter which we reproduce below and which called attention to the great brotherhood of managers. Read the letter and then think it over. You will probably realize that what we told you over six months ago was true; That it don't pay to hide yourself away and keep all your doings a deep dark secret. Come out into the light and "tell the world" what you are doing. You can't express yourself through a better medium than the CLUB and the NEWS.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I am attaching hereto a copy of the Movie News, a magazine that has a circulation of 50,000 and is published in Oakland. My reason for sending you this is to have you see the publicity given my wedding Saturday evening, November 3rd, 1928. Advertising space in this magazine sells for $3.50 per inch. The merchants who worked with the theatre know this, so you can imagine how they appreciate their names mentioned as being donors of wedding gifts, at no cost to them. There is no cost to the theatre for having their program in this magazine, so we all saved money.

I wish to thank the Manager's Round Table Club for this splendid idea, and especially to Brother Chapin of the Lyric Theatre, Jackson, Tenn., for his kind suggestions in his letter to me.

Thanking you again and with best wishes to the club, I remain,

Very truly yours,

LLOYD TOWNSEND.

The stunt referred to in Mr. Townsend's letter was the staging of a real wedding on the stage of his theatre with wedding presents being donated by various merchants.

Lost—One "Good" Manager

In response to a recent request we are taking this means of offering as a reward (?) one fur-lined tooth-brush to anybody who can furnish us with information (good, bad or indifferent) regarding a certain theatre man known in the middle west as "Ducky" Harris, and who hails (if that's the right word) from Chillicothe, Ohio. When last seen he was munching a thick sandwich and drinking some ambre colored liquid (probably tea?) on a boat headin' for Sandusky from Peelee Island, Canada.

All such information will be treated confidential except the portion that will be published in the NEWS for the enlightenment of some eight CLUB members who have requested this idea.

So, get busy Sherlock Holmes, and see what you can unearth about "Ducky."

A Welcome to Two Foreign Members

The Managers' Round Table Club takes great pleasure in welcoming into the CLUB two members who hail from a distant land. Manager Ernst R. Lim, of the Royal Standard Bioscope in Samarinda, Dutch East Indies, and Manager J. H. Stodel, of the Bijou Theatre in Johannesburg, South Africa. Mr. Lim's letter is so interesting that we are holding it for publication next week. Don't miss reading it if you want a new slant on theatre management and exploitation.

Xmas Kiddie Shows

THE wonderful response to our Kiddie Show suggestion is the finest proof we can offer as to the co-operative spirit of the Club. Up to this writing we have received word that almost 50 members will put this idea over, and successfully, because they have tackled it the right way.

I am still waiting to hear from any other members who have not sent me word about the Kiddie Show.

Noir. Still we continue to publish the interesting letters and stories on the subject of "sound pictures". You cannot afford to miss a single one of them if you are really interested. (C.L.)

Here is a letter from Harry Aumack, manager of the Strand theatre, Clayton, N. J.—another exhibitor who thinks that sound pictures are here to stay.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

Last week I received a letter from you requesting a letter or article as to just how I feel about sound and talking pictures.

Despite the belief of many people that talking movies are merely a novelty and will go into discard within a year or so I disagree with that belief in every respect and surely think that sound films are here to stay, but have no idea as to the success that awaits dialogue and sound in films, but will agree that noise of some sort is a permanent fixture as far as the movie industry is concerned.

Numerous experiments and many improvements are to be made on the sound pictures. Spoken words and sound effects have opened new fields which were never dreamed of before. Talkies are a novelty now but by the time the public has tired of them as a novelty the directors and producers will have improved them to such an extent that the people will go to the theatres because of their entertainment values.

Naturally we must expect that the sound pictures will be crude at first, because the directors and producers have rushed into the production of them too fast to expect any other result. But I look for surprising improvements within the next six months. I am not so sure that the dialogue will be a success but am strongly in favor of sound effects.

I sincerely hope that this article points out plainly that my opinion has not been formed merely because of the sensational "hits" made by practically every spoken picture released to date.

I truly hope that this article is quite satisfactory and I will remain a steady reader of the Round Table news with the hope that many other exhibitors will grasp the benefits offered by the interesting news columns of the Round Table Club.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) Harry Aumack,

"Some One to Love" were received at the Capitol Theatre by crowded houses. In addition to the picture presentation an annual stage offering was shown in the form of Fanchon and Marco's "Midget Follies" idea, which proved a big drawing card. Oliver Alberti as master of ceremonies and Phil Kalar were also featured successfully.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's synchronized attraction, "White Shadows in the South Seas," was well attended at the Pantages. A good deal of exploitation was given this production.

Paul Lukas, Nancy Carroll and Richard Arlen, in "Manhattan Cocktail," with sound and dialogue, drew good-sized houses to the Victory the greater part of the week. Vitaphone shorts were also presented.

"Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith, drew well at the Paramount-Empress Theatre.

Patsy Ruth Miller and Lawrence Gray, in "Marriage by Contract," brought satisfactory results to the American.

A good many fans of Rex, the king of wild horses, enjoyed the performance of "Wild Beauty" at the Gem Theatre, which was fairly crowded throughout the week.

Dolores Costello, in "Glorious Betsy," filled the Rialto Theatre during a second-run showing of several days' duration. "The Scarlet Lady" and "The Gold Claim," at the State, drew crowded houses also.

The Isis Theatre, a second and third-run house, is enjoying very good business.

Milwaukee Reports Dull Trade Last Week

MILWAUKEE.—Milwaukeeans last week did not seem much interested in the downtown theatres. Business was very dull for no apparent reason, for pictures offered were all good attractions and well exploited, the weather was conducive to good business, clear and quite cold, yet at most of the houses, business dropped off to an appreciable extent. The exception to this was the Majestic which opened the week with Bristolphone sound, offering "White Shadows of the South Seas" as the feature. Business here was very good throughout the week and the picture is being held over for another week at least.

"Nothing to Wear" at the Merrill was accorded very slim patronage. "The Patriot" at the Wisconsin drew fair attendance. "Mother Knows Best" finished an extended run at the Strand, and here, too, things were not very lively. "The Hometowners" at the Garden was moderately successful. "Caught in the Fog" at the Alhambra shared the fate of the other houses and drew only fair business. The vaudeville houses were more successful in keeping filled. At the Riverside "Avalanche" was offered as the feature and "Outcast" at the Orpheum.

Business in the neighborhood houses was apparently far better than that in the downtown theatres. "Four Sons" did very good business at the Uptown, Modjeska and Garfield. "Beggars of Life" was only a fair drawing card at the Oriental and Tower. "Take Me Home" at the National and Downer was very well received. The Egyptian did very well with "Loves of an Actress."

Pathe Buys Wilson Story

"The Flying Fool," an original story by Carey Wilson, has been purchased by Pathe as a William Boyd starring vehicle that will follow "High Voltage" into work.

Holds Small Town Trade

Olympia, Wash., Showman Acts to Stem Flow of Trade to Theatres in Nearby Cities

HOW a theatre manager by entering into the spirit of the community, soon becomes its very hub, and builds patronage, is revealed in the recent activities of a West Coast Theatres manager, A. C. Raleigh of Olympia, Washington.

The theatre manager who perhaps has the most unhappy situation of any in the business is the man who is in a small town that is within driving distance of larger cities. He faces a problem that came with the automobile and has remained.

The shows in the smaller town may be just as good—but it is the part of human nature to want to go to the "big city," and Raleigh set about to overcome that natural desire.

Olympia, the state capital, has a population of 12,000 and a drawing population of 22,500 from Shelton, McCleary, Tenino, Yelm and other villages within a radius of 20 miles. The chief industry is lumber. Raleigh discovered that the people of Olympia were not dependable theatregoers, as they made weekly trips to the nearby cities of Seattle and Tacoma and invariably would get their entertainment there.

The first move was to change bookings to play simultaneously with Seattle, or nearly so. That helped. Then Raleigh set about determinedly to organize the community—and to develop a "home town pride" spirit. He started a widespread campaign consisting of small space in each of the weekly newspapers; distribution of programs by mail, stores and newspapers and on all four incoming highways he has 24 sheet stands.

Organizes Merchants

Raleigh organized the merchants to present a Fashion Show on two successive nights. This created much good will—and brought capacity business. The show will be repeated in March.

Apples are extensively raised in this part of the country. But there has been little market for them, due to lack of concentrated selling effort. At the solicitation of Raleigh, the Chamber of Commerce staged Olympia's first "Apple Week." An exhibit was given, a slogan coined for Olympia apples, and prizes given the best displays. Incidentally the only merchant mentioned on window cards was the Liberty Theatre, and the farmers are delighted to find a concentrated effort being made to popularize their product. The theatre is being given 90 per cent of the credit for the entire affair, and Raleigh noticed more farmers coming to the show houses.

The various different classes of merchants are holding merchandise shows at the theatre, and combining them with exhibits on the mezzanine. For instance, the first merchants to do this were the furniture dealers. They had displays on the mezzanine, and at their expense brought down two vaudeville acts from Seattle. Grocery men, department stores and others will follow and each will stage its own stage show—at its expense. With the merchants competing against each other to stage the best shows, there is bound to be a favorable reaction at the box office.

Plans New Street Lighting

The downtown district of Olympia is poorly lighted at night. Raleigh is now engaged in trying to get the merchants to install an overhead lighting system in the vicinity of West Coast's two theatres. Estimates are now being received and it looks as though it will go through.

A campaign is now under way to use the slogan "Shop in Olympia" in all advertising in the city. An advertising Club is being formed, to include the "live" element in the city. The motive of this campaign is obvious.

The above are a few of the activities started by Raleigh since coming into Olympia. All are aimed at building up community prestige, which will in turn build theatre patronage.

Raleigh is an able cartoonist, and he swung his ability into play during the Apple Week campaign, drawing a cartoon which was used in one of the local newspapers.

He is joining wholeheartedly into the life of the community—gradually creating a spirit of community pride. That's progressive work and while it is hard work, it is about the only way to overcome the problem of keeping the home folks home, instead of having them go to the "big city" to get their merchandise, and that includes their entertainment.

Announce Change for West Coast Theatre Managers

The following changes in managers in the Los Angeles Division of West Coast Theatres are announced by Harold B. Franklin, president:

G. H. Christoffers is transferred from the Strand Theatre, Pasadena, to the Westlake Theatre, Los Angeles.

F. J. Menniley has been appointed manager of the Strand Theatre, Pasadena.

Fred Rapport has been appointed manager of the Florence, Pasadena.

The new San Francisco divisional office of the company is now located in Loew's Warfield Theatre Building. Division Manager A. M. Bowles, with his staff, moved into his new quarters this month.

HARRY E. HUFFMAN, manager of the Aladdin Theatre of Denver, has a good publicity stunt in awarding a silver loving cup to the winner of the Denver University-Colorado University football game each year on Thanksgiving evening. The game is always played in Denver on Thanksgiving and during the intermission between the two evening performances the cup is presented to the winner. Last year the cup was won by Denver University and this year it passed to Colorado. The winner of the cup three times becomes its permanent owner. The stunt has attracted plenty of attention among the student bodies of the two universities and consequently a lot of good publicity for the enterprising Harry Huffman.

MANAGER BOLIVAR HYDE, JR., is responsible for one of the most lavish aviation lobby displays used in connection with "Wings" playing at the Alabama Theatre, Birmingham, Ala. The lobby contained a Curtiss airplane motor, a fuselage and propellers. The motor was set on a wooden block while smaller parts were on exhibit in a show case. Lettered cards alongside of the displays gave a brief explanation of the particular display that was of interest to the many on-lookers. An excellent tie-up was affected with the Birmingham Post and the giant airplane "Niagara," which was on a goodwill tour of the country.

EXTENDING a special invitation to World War and Spanish American War veterans, and boy scouts, the Akron (Ohio) Times-Press and Manager Broxon, of the Colonial Theatre, ran a drum contest in connection with exhibition of "Drums of Love." Through the newspaper, announcement was made that anybody who could play a drum was eligible to enter the contest, which would be held on the stage of the Colonial Theatre.

THE St. Louis Theatre, St. Louis, received much valuable newspaper publicity through a tie-up with the St. Louis Star's annual Santa Claus drive now under way. On the morning of Saturday, December 1, children of St. Louis were guests at a special show in the St. Louis at which the Star's Santa Claus motion pictures were shown. A number of vaudeville casts from the St. Louis were included on the bill.

LAUDING the work done in preventing accidents and promoting welfare of company employees, representatives of the California Accident Commission placed the stamp of approval on the efforts of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky medical department and safety committee, especially in San Francisco.

MANAGER CHARLES STRAW of the Capitol Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, is already considering arrangements for a dog sled race under the auspices of the theatre. Last winter at Port Arthur, Ontario, where he was the manager of two theatres, he had such a race with 45 entries and had all the civic leaders as officials.

Election of "Miss Sunshine" to Be Annual Event in St. Louis

THE selection of a "Miss Sunshine" of St. Louis inaugurated at the tenth annual Film Ball given on November 21 at Arcadia Dance Hall was so successful that announcement has been made that event will become an annual feature.

The contest was conducted under the auspices of the Film Exchange Employes Local Union No. 16,169 with the cooperation of the St. Louis Star, an afternoon newspaper, and numerous theatres in the St. Paul District.

Miss Norine Putney of 3131 Thomas Street, St. Louis, red headed, pretty and petite was selected by five judges as their unanimous choice for "Miss Sunshine" at the contest this year. Miss Putney was entered from the Novelty Theatre on Easton Avenue near Grand Boulevard, one of the St. Louis Amusement Company's chain of houses. The four other prize winners were: Helen Mathus (Miss Arsenal Theatre); Alice Burns (Miss Ashland Theatre); Helen Downey (Miss Mikado Theatre) and May Dahlberg (Miss Powhattan Theatre) Miss Putney wins in addition to the title a De Soto Six automobile and a trip to Cuba while Miss Mathus the runner up for the championship will receive a sight-seeing trip to Hollywood.

Dealers Stay Sold on Tie-Up After Successful Stunt

SHOWMEN who have developed local merchant cooperation to a high point of efficiency place great value on the success of a tie-up with dealers who have not previously associated themselves or their businesses with theatre exploitation, because it is almost a rule that the dealer "stays sold" on tie-ups after he has had one profitable experience in that direction. So much depends upon future exploitation efforts along this line that many showmen keep away from potential tie-ups with hitherto untried sources for merchant-theatre cooperation until they are sure they have the material and the plan that will work out successfully for the merchant. In tie-ups "first impressions" are lasting and if the first try fails the dealer is likely to become very shy of any similar propositions. On the other hand if the first tie-up is a success it is comparatively easy to effect cooperative stunts wherever the opportunity presents.

A recent instance serves again to emphasize the repeat value of a successful merchant tie-up in a report from Charlotte, N. C., concerning the campaign in that city for "Revenge." This Dolores Del Rio vehicle like "Ramona" has a theme song which has been published as sheet music and recorded for phonograph reproduction.

After the success Charlotte music dealers had on "Ramona" tie-ups it was an easy matter for Manager Warren Irvin to get window displays for "Revenge" when he presented the picture at the Publix Carolina theatre.

Fifteen excellent windows were secured including music dealers, radio and phonograph shops, furniture stores and ten-cent stores.

Large photos, display boards, sheet music and records featuring the song "Revenge" were used in these windows as well as neatly lettered cards giving title of picture, star, theatre and play dates.

The song "Revenge" was featured on two radio concerts by the theatre organist, Mr. Harry Waters well in advance of play dates.

Stage Rehearsal Presented as Epilogue to "Show Folks"

WHEN "Show Folks" played the Orpheum Theatre in Denver, Manager Louis Hellborn staged a novel presentation that registered as unusual entertainment.

The audience was given an opportunity to see a little of life back stage. Hellborn outlines his stunt as follows:

"Immediately after the close of the picture we had Al Abbot of the bill come out dressed as a stage manager, making an announcement to the effect that as the audience had seen the picture of stage life they would undoubtedly like to see what actually took place at a Monday morning rehearsal.

Abbot then called to the stage crew to open the traveler and the shadow-box picture sheet was cleared in view of the audience, and stage set for the first act.

The regular rehearsal routine then proceeded, such as acts arriving, greeting each other, rehearsal with orchestra, complaints about billing, position on bill, dressing rooms, hammering and interruptions while rehearsing and giving cues, etc. Several girls in practice clothes were limbering up, a Fire Warden was cautioning people about smoking, stage hands were testing colors in borders, towers, etc., and other miscellaneous routine to create atmosphere. Several gags were used. In the meantime the set was made, the rigging was ready for the first act, and at the command of the stage manager the traveler was closed and the overture started. There was also a lot of incidental talk between the artists, stagehands, and musicians."

Urges "Safety-Mindedness" for Theatre Staffs

"Safety in the Theatre" was the subject of an important address which was delivered by Arthur Gaboury of Montreal, secretary-general of the Province of Quebec Safety League, before a large gathering of members of the Province of Quebec Theatre Owners Association at the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, December 7.

Mr. Gaboury, in making a plea for "safety-mindedness," declared that the manager of a theatre held the same responsibility as the captain of an ocean liner. He referred to the mechanical safeguards which had been provided in Montreal theatres in the past year but urged the exhibitors to add a well-trained personnel to the safety equipment. The employee should be prepared to face a panic-stricken crowd at any moment. Ushers should know their duty, the musicians should also be able to do their part and the operator in the booth also has his role to play. Safety was more a matter of the mind than of the pocketbook. It was a question of education, he believed, more than one of costly physical equipment.

The manager, above all, was the right man in the right place when an emergency arose, Mr. Gaboury said. The manager could do the job better than any fireman, policeman or safety specialist stationed in the theatre during performances.

Female Assistant Managers Making Good at Loew's

The possibility of girls replacing men as assistant managers of theatres, an experiment a month ago, now seems a reality, with three young ladies filling those positions with satisfaction to the Loew Circuit officials at the present time.

Chelli Janis, the present assistant at Loew's Plaza Theatre in Corona, was formerly assistant to Louis Klein, production manager for Horace Liveright, and prior to that a play broker. Alice E. Josephs, began with the Loew Circuit several years ago as head usher at the State Theatre, was promoted to cashier and now is assistant at Loew's Prospect in Flushing. Phyllis Page, the present assistant manager of Loew's Brevoort in Brooklyn, is a native of Youngstown, Ohio, and prior to her present post was an actress, having small parts in the musical comedy "Irene."

Radio Station Sponsors Special Saturday Mats

EVERY Saturday morning the radio station KSL of Salt Lake City in conjunction with Pantages Theatre there, puts on a special matinee for children. Motion pictures and a vaudeville performance in which the children themselves take part are features of the special shows.

"Uncle Roscoe" and "Big Brother" of station KSL conduct this children's period, at which about $150 worth of prizes are given away each week, it is stated.

About one thousand bars of candy are also given to the children each week. This arrangement is in the form of a tieup with the radio station, the Pantages Theatre and various local merchants.

Special Columbia Meet Held in Chi.

GENERAL SALES MANAGER CECIL MABERRY and District Manager Fred Knispel of Columbia Pictures, held a special meeting of branch managers in Chicago last Sunday, to discuss sales plans. Those in attendance included Branch Managers H. A. Young, Detroit; Ben Marcus, Minneapolis; Claude McKean, St. Louis; W. A. Rand, Omaha; Ralph Peckham, Des Moines; Bill Weinshenker, Milwaukee; Jimmy Sharkey, Pittsburgh; also Home Office Representative Charles Schwerin and Special Representative Oscar Blum. The Chicago office was represented by Country Sales Manager Bill Brumberg and Salesman Oscar Florine, Adolph Rosecan and Jack Cohen.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Selig of the Gem and Kozy Theatres, left last week for a ten day trip to New York City.

Simansky & Miller are completing the installation of Vitaphone equipment at their Forest Theatre and expect to have it in operation shortly.

Manager Frascini has completed extensive improvements in his Lincoln Theatre at Lincoln, Illinois, and it is reported has expended about $60,000 in the work. New items of equipment include an organ, seats and complete Western Electric wiring for sound pictures.

Henri Ellman has sold out his interest in Columbia Pictures local branch and has formed a partnership with Jerry Abrams for the sale and distribution of Biophone in the states of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Reports from Moline are to the effect that theatre business is showing a decidedly better trend, increase in factory employment having helped the theatres greatly.

Frank Welter, Wisconsin exhibitor, who has theatres in Wausau and Rhinelander, was in Chicago for several days investigating sound equipment.

B. Hoffman of the Bijou and Rivoli Theatres, Monmouth, Illinois, is reported to be negotiating for two houses in Iowa, which are served out of Des Moines. Mr. Hoffman is already operating a pair of theatres in Fairfield, Iowa, as well as his Illinois houses.

J. E. Edwards of the Aledo Theatre, Aledo, Illinois, reports that he has installed a new boiler and furnace in his theatre and will remodel the house throughout, next spring.

Carl Harthill, a film row veteran of many years standing, has resigned from Columbia Pictures to become connected with the theatrical sales department of the Penn Crockery Company. Booker Charles Lindau is also leaving Columbia to take a position with the Penn Crockery Company, Harold Wise replacing him as booker. An addition to the Columbia sales staff is Oscar Florine, who is now covering the north side territory.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Tracy of the Grand Theatre, Lowell, Indiana, were in Chicago last week, purchasing new equipment to replace that which was damaged by fire. They were compelled to close down for several days but are again operating.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Cross of Battle Creek, Michigan, were visiting Chicago last week. Mr. Cross is a director of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan and called on Jack Miller of the Exhibitors Association of Chicago, while in this city.

Simon Simansky and Aaron Saperstein of the West Town Theatres, were both ill this past week, being confined to their homes with the flu. Mr. Simansky was able to return to his office, but was not entirely recovered.

Sound Debut in Ottawa Dec. 29

OTTAWA is to have its first sound program on December 29 when the Regent Theatre will offer "Street Angel" and other Movietone subjects. Manager Ray Tubman has been busy with the reconstruction of the theatre for a number of weeks and the actual equipment is now being installed. Incidentally, in the remodelling of the Regent, Manager Tubman has established a spacious office on the second floor of the theatre building.

On top of all the various censor boards in Canada, now comes the proposal at Ottawa, the capital, for the establishment of a Canadian board of censors for the examination of all printed matter and periodicals imported into the Dominion from the United States and other countries.

One of the prime movers in Ottawa, Ontario, for a pure water supply was Manager J. M. Franklin of B. F. Keith's Theatre, Mr. Franklin serving on the Board of Trade committee. The project has now been adopted.

Pete Egan, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask., has thrown his cap into the ring as an aldermanic candidate for 1929. At the same time he is busy with the wiring of the Capitol, equipment being installed for the Movietone and Vitaphone.

Charles L. Querrie, manager of the Palace Theatre, Toronto, Ontario, has announced that he "does not choose to run" for the City Council in the coming civic election, withdrawing in favor of Ald. W. A. Summerville, proprietor of the Prince of Wales and Eastwood Theatres, Toronto, who is an aspirant to the Toronto Board of Control.

Eddie Loughton, widely known as a master of ceremonies, has been added to the presentation staff of the Uptown Theatre, Toronto, key theatre of the Famous Players Canadian chain. This step was taken in spite of the fact that sound programs, recently introduced there, have drawn multitudes.

The Strand Theatre, Brandon, Manitoba, has been re-opened by Manager C. S. Ferguson, following the carrying out of many alterations and complete redecoration. Manager Ferguson has transferred the stage presentations, orchestra and other features from the Capitol Theatres, which he also operates, thus making the Strand the chief theatre of the two. Incidentally, the Strand also has an organ.

Film News from Seattle Section

FOR the last several years Pacific Northwest manager for Alexander Pantages, Lloyd Dearth, last week resigned that position and has become general manager of Nathanson's Paramount theatres in Western Canada. He has been succeeded at the local Pantages Theatre by Earl Cook, former "Pan" manager in Tacoma.

William Farrell, owner and manager of the Avenue Theatre, in Yakima, spent a few days on film row last week.

Employees of all of John Hamrick's 5 first-run theatres in Seattle, Portland and Tacoma were guests at three individual Thanksgiving dinner parties in their respective cities, with Mr. Hamrick acting as host by proxy. He and Mrs. Hamrick were spending Thanksgiving in Hollywood, and are expected back soon.

Homer Borger, Western division manager for Tiffany-Stahl, is spending a few days at the local office. He is here just a week in advance of L. A. Samuelson, former Seattle Pathe exchange manager, who returns next week on his first trip as home office representative in the West for Tiffany-Stahl's Tiffanytone sound productions.

Louis Goldsmith, newly-appointed sales representative for Manager Carl Stearn's local Warner Brothers exchange, returned last week from two-weeks' trip into Eastern Washington.

W. Stefan Perutz, former manager of the United Artists Theatre, and more recently general manager of the three West Coast Theatres houses in Tacoma, Washington, left last week for New Haven, Conn., where he will become associated with the Poli circuit. He has been succeeded in Tacoma as head of the Broadway, Rialto and Colonial Theatres by Montague Salmon, former manager of West Coast's Boulevard Theatre in Los Angeles.

Reports circulated on film row last week indicated that Robert Mayea, operator of the Columbian Theatre at Columbia City, planned to close that house shortly and reopen the Lakeside Theatre, local suburban house that has been dark for many months.

E. C. Jeffries, former manager of the Rialto and American Theatres in Butte, Montana, passed through Seattle last week en route to New York City, where he will re-enter the exhibiting field. He has been succeeded in Butte by Harry Stone, his assistant there.

Ray Felker, of Salem, Oregon, spent a short time here last week.

Wesco Gives Up 3 'Frisco Houses

WEST COAST THEATRES, now control but one theatre in San Francisco, as the Granada, St. Francis and California theatres, have been taken back by the Publix Corporation. Recently these three houses have not been doing as good business as it was thought they should do. The West Coast Theatres now have but Loew's Warfield Theatre in this city and it will remain under the management of Louis Golden.

Alice Joyce and Anna Q. Nilsson visited San Francisco recently. Miss Nilsson is able to walk with a cane now after seven months of nursing a broken hip, injured when she was thrown from a horse last May.

Boss Hardy, of Carmel, made a number of improvements in his projection room, including the installation of reflector lamps.

Phototone was inaugurated December 1st at the Golden Gate Theatre. By virtue of the recent affiliation of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit with the Radio Corporation of America, the Golden Gate is able to present to its patrons this newest of all synchronizing devices.

Manager Greenberg, of the Cinema Club, is extending a special invitation to out-of-town exhibitors to make their headquarters at the popular club when in San Francisco. Every facility for their social and business convenience is to be made a special feature.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, who operate the Isis Theatre at Sparks and also the Opera House at Carson City, have placed an order with W. G. Preddy for complete projection equipment for their new show house at Hawthorne, Nev.

Jail Sentence For K. C. Forger

A 2-YEAR sentence in the penitentiary was imposed on R. H. Emert, convicted of passing bad checks on several Kansas City exchanges and stores and representing himself to be the son of W. E. Ward, manager of the Strand Theatre, Sharon Springs, Kas. He is not related to Ward.

The Ritz Theatre, suburban house of Kansas City, came in for some free publicity recently when a patron left a pet raccoon asleep in the rear of a motor car parked in front of the theatre. Both car and raccoon were gone when the patron came out. The patron advertised the thief could keep the car if he would return the raccoon.

Speaking of tough breaks for film salesmen, it was none other than Stanley Mayer of the Fox exchange, Kansas City, who was forced to carry two heavy suitcases two miles in six inches of mud the other day when a flood interfered with his progress to Osage City, Kas.

Ohio Sunday Blues Again at Work

THE Sunday blue law question which is at all times being more or less agitated in various sections of Ohio, has now come up at Westerville, a suburb of Columbus, where a single picture house, the State, owned and operated by Dwight Curfman, is the objective of the reformers. Petition signed by 500 voters and circulated by the Ministerial Association in connection with the W.C.T.U. has been presented to the Village Council, asking that future Sunday showings in the lone theatre be prohibited. Council has tabled the matter for consideration at a later date.

Opening of Neth's Cameo Theatre, Columbus, scheduled and advertised to open December 1, was deferred at the last minute following word from the sound equipment company of their inability to install certain necessary parts on time. The house opened Dec. 7.

Millard Blaettner, manager of the Colonial Theatre, Dayton, Ohio, in connection with the city's Director of Welfare, is putting on the fourth annual charity benefit, when a special Saturday morning matinee will be given just prior to Christmas. Admission will be an article of food, which will subsequently be distributed to the poor. Last year more than 20 barrels of food thus collected was turned over to the needy by the theatre management.

The Palace Theatre, Cincinnati, under management of Roy Haines, is celebrating its ninth birthday anniversary, in commemoration of which a new ultra-modern switchboard is being installed.

The Forest Theatre, Cincinnati, will show special Christmas features particularly suitable to juvenile audiences during the children's special Saturday matinees throughout the holiday season.

The new L. B. Wilson theatre, Covington, Ky., which, in reality is the old Lyric Theatre, remodeled, opened recently with a big crowd from Cincinnati, just across the river, in attendance.

The Regent, Hamilton, Ohio, which has been playing pictures in connection with dramatic stock on a full-week basis, has changed its policy to split-week, changing on Sundays and Thursdays.

Week in Southeast Active

CHANGES in ownership and operation of five motion picture theatres in the Southeast are announced this week.

O. L. Shelnutt has bought the City Theatre at Lafayette, Ala., from W. U. Shelnutt.

The Royal Theatre at Elizabethton, Tenn., has been taken over by D. L. Quinn.

The Peafowl Theatre at Nashville, Tenn., has been bought by L. M. Agathen, the former owner being Thomas R. Hughes.

The Norwood Theatre at Birmingham, Ala., which was operated by Ben Jaffe, is now being operated by C. H. Burke, receiver.

Chris LaComa has taken over the house at Willacoochee, Ga., formerly operated by R. A. Turner.

Atlanta

The Action Film Company has opened an office in Atlanta at 103 Walton Street, N. W., for the purpose of handling state rights pictures. John Calman, who is well known to exhibitors throughout the Southeast, has been appointed manager.

Jack Chalman, who, for the past ten months has been director of advertising and publicity of the Howard Theatre, Atlanta, has been transferred to a similar position at the Metropolitan Theatre at Houston, Texas, according to an announcement from the office of Willard C. Patterson, district manager here for Publix.

Fred F. Creswell, district manager of Arthur C. Bromberg Attractions, with headquarters in Atlanta, visited the Alabama and Tennessee territories.

C. W. Starr, who is well known to exhibitors throughout the entire Southeast, has joined the sales staff of Arthur C. Bromberg Attractions, and has been assigned to the Alabama territory.

Work is progressing on the Bonanita Theatre, which C. T. Bobo is building at Scottsboro, Ala., and it is expected the house will be completed in about three months. Mr. Bobo now operates the Dreamland Theatre at Scottsboro but it is understood that house will be closed when the new one opens. The Bonanita will have a seating capacity of approximately 1,000.

C. A. Clegg, of First National's Atlanta exchange, returned last Thursday from a trip in Florida.

William G. Minder, Southern district manager for Tiffany-Stahl, left last Tuesday for a trip through Florida territory, expecting to return to Atlanta early next week.

L. G. Jenkins, South Georgia exhibitor, while in Atlanta last Wednesday, announced that he had disposed of his interest in the Liberty Theatre at Homerville, Ga., to D. M. Hughes and Fred W. Jernigan of that city.

O. L. Freeman, ad sales manager at Paramount's Atlanta exchange, has been confined to his bed with a bad cold.

W. J. Collins, cashier at Pathe's Atlanta exchange, has been ill at his home.

John Ezell, head of Warner exchange in Atlanta, made a trip into the Tennessee territory recently.

H. P. Rhodes, head of the Vitaphone office in Atlanta, was confined to his home the latter part of the week by an attack of the flu.

W. W. Anderson, of Pathe, paid a business visit to Chattanooga last week.

Exhibitors seen doing business on Film Row this past week were: Joe Steed, Southern Theatres, Inc., Ensley, Ala.; Carl Cape, Colonial Theatre, Buford, Ga.; C. W. Maxey, Royal Theatre, Summer-ville, Ga.; Sam Borisky, Independent Theatres, Inc., Chattanooga, Tenn.; H. H. Langford, Universal Theatre, Lithonia, Ga.; G. L. Wynn, Ritz Theatre, Newman, Ga.; P. J. Henn, Haven Theatre, Canton, Ga.; Mrs. Violet Edwards, Colonial Theatre, Ga.; W. U. Remond, Scenic Theatre, Lake Wales, Fla.; D. V. Marquis, Ernado Theatre, Bartow, Fla.

Florida

Business has been so good at the Garden, Tampa, that Manager Gore finds it necessary to enlarge the house. The building did not cover the entire lot, but had an open space about 12 feet wide along the west side, so he is building an addition to cover this vacant space. This addition will add at least 150 seats to the capacity.

Harry Catron has bought an interest in the Lisbon Theatre, Tampa, and assumed the management last week. Several years ago Harry and his father operated the Bonita Theatre, on Franklin Street. They sold to Consolidated Amusements, who re-built the house and named it the Franklin. The Catron's then took over the swimming pool at Sulphur Springs and made it the most popular bathing resort around Tampa. As there is not a great deal of winter bathing here Harry decided to try his hand at show business again.

Another change at the Campbell, Tampa. Oakley Busler is the latest to try his hand at putting the house over. This house has changed hands the past year about as many times as there were months in the year.

Patsy Ruth Miller, the screen star, is planning to spend the Christmas holidays in Tampa as the guest of Anthony Shimko, who operates the Patio in St. Petersburg, and the new Park Theatre in Tampa.

The Franklin, Tampa's big downtown second run house, is going to try out a serial, adding it to their Saturday program. Manager Heston realized the importance of getting a big opening for the first episode, and is giving a "treat matinee" this Saturday, at which everybody will be admitted at the flat price of ten cents per.

Charlie Morrison, manager of the Palace Theatre, Jacksonville, was robbed last Sunday night by a lone unmasked bandit. Mr. Morrison was crossing the room to lock the door when held up.

Balt. Announces 3 New Theatres

THE Broadway Theatre, Hopewell, Va., was opened recently after the building had been constructed under the supervision of J. C. Cunningham.

Robert H. Coulter, formerly manager of the Brookland Theatre, Richmond, Va., has been appointed manager of the new William Byrd Theatre, that city. Emmett I. Perce has succeeded Coulter as manager of the Brookland.

A motion picture theatre is to be built in Petersburg, Va., to cost about $300,000 by Charles A. Somma and Walter J. Coulter, who operate a number of other Virginia Theatres.

Frances Reid, formerly cashier at the Bluebird Theatre, Richmond, Va., has been appointed Cashier at the Brookland, recently opened in North Richmond.

Salt Lake City Regional News

IT is reported that the American Theatre will be equipped for sound pictures by March 1st.

George Smith, exhibitor of Magna, Utah, has been ill with the flu.

D. T. Lane, Secretary of the Salt Lake City Film Board of Trade, lost his father, John Patrick Lane, recently, through an attack of influenza.

E. Hugo Strickland, in charge of Tiffany-Stahl exchange for the past few months, has been transferred to San Francisco. His successor has not been appointed as yet.

Many Idaho theatres, including those of Twin Falls, Kimberley, Filer and Buhl, Idaho, have been closed recently due to the epidemic throughout that section.

The Forum Theatre of Sugar House changed hands recently it is reported, having been taken over by Mr. Hoggan from L. F. Brown.

T. Clifton Pierce of the Espee Theatre, returned last week from a pleasure trip to the Pacific coast.

Many of the local Fox employees have been confined to their homes due to the Influenza.

United Artists traveling auditor, E. Rowell, spent several days at the local branch.

Rob M.P.T.O. Head in St. Louis

FRED Wehrenberg, owner of several theatres in South St. Louis and president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, was held up and robbed of $350 in cash by two well-dressed young bandits in an alley in back of the Melba Theatre, Grand Boulevard and Miami Street, at 10:30 p. m. December 1.

Wehrenberg who is now operating the Melba, Michigan, Cinderella, Virginia and Cherokee Theatres, had just collected the receipts at the Melba, the last of the string to be checked up and was taking the net returns of the five houses to his home when robbed.

St. Louis film stocks were less active on the St. Louis Stock Exchange the week ending on December 1 and apparently the temporary buoyancy due to the published reports concerning the negotiations of Warner Brothers for the purchase of the Skouras Brothers interests has worn away.

St. Louis Amusement Company A has slipped back into its shell and hasn't been heard of on the exchange for several days. Skouras A was also weaker closing on December 1 at $56.50 bid and $57 asked, a drop of 50 cents per share. A year ago this stock was quoted at $36.

Eddie Peabody, the Coast Defender, has made his debut as a master of ceremonies at Skouras Brothers Missouri Theatre, Grand Boulevard and Lucas Avenue. He opened on December 1 and apparently St. Louisians like him.

Earl Lilly has sold the Irma Theatre, St. Louis, Mo., to T. Coty. Lilly has entered the commercial field.

Gus Kerosotas of Springfield, Ill., has gone to New York on a pleasure and business trip.

Bon Cluster of Johnston City who recently added the Marvel Theatre, Carlinville, Ill., to his string, opened that house on December 8.

The Lyric Theatre at Pocahontas, Ill., and the Pastime at Tamarora, Ill., have increased from two nights a week to three nights. The coal mines are now working more steady and business has warranted the extra night a week.

Joe Hewitt of Robinson, Ill., is back from a visit in Okmulgee, Okla.

Louis Kerasotas of the Strand Theatre, Springfield; Mike Nash of King Bee, St. Louis, and Tom McKean, president of Progressive Pictures, St. Louis, enjoyed a very successful duck hunting expedition in the vicinity of Beardstown, Ill., recently.

Ed. Regan of Harrisburg, Ill., who operates the house at Harco, Ill., now has the opera house at Omaha, Ill.

Everett H. Hays, manager of the St. Louis Theatre, Grand and Delmar Boulevards, St. Louis, Mo., has been re-elected president for the third consecutive year of the St. Louis Theatre Managers Association. Other officers are: David Russell, St. Louis Municipal Opera Association, vice-president; Paul Beisman, American Theatre, secretary, and James Patrick Brennan Grand Opera House, treasurer.

The Lowell Theatre building at 5035 North Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., is to be altered and remodeled into a two-story and basement apartment house of twelve units. Chester H. and Clarence S. Kaumann, owner of the building, through their architects Lahey & Kane, 4207 College Avenue, have taken bids from contractors on the remodeling job.

"Red" Terhune the St. Louis boy who stole a ride on the Graf Zeppelin tried his luck as an actor at Skouras Brothers Ambassador Theatre recently when he appeared in Ed. Lowry's stage show. His act, of course, had reference to the trans-Atlantic adventure.

Milwaukee Reports Midwesco Deal

ACCORDING to report, negotiations are at present under way between the Adler Circuit and Midwesco for the acquisition of the Adler Circuit houses at Marshfield, Stevens Point, Waupaca and Antigo. Midwesco has taken over the Palace theatre at Antigo from Harvey Hanson. Mr. Hanson will continue as manager until the first of the year.

Sound pictures are about to invade upper Wisconsin theatres and upper Michigan houses. A number of upstate exhibitors are planning sound installations in the near future. "Doc" Gallup, according to recent reports will soon install sound apparatus in the Delft theatres at Escanaba, Marquette, and possibly Iron River. Martin Thomas is planning sound installation for the Braumart at Iron Mountain. Charles DePaul will soon have sound in the Temple at the Soo. Paul Schultz, of the Orpheum at Hancock, is installing his equipment himself.

The Comfort theatre, which has been closed for sometime to permit extensive remodeling, will be opened shortly according to Sam Thirion, manager.

Lawrence McDaniel, Alhambra theatre artist, was married on Dec. 1st.

Clifford Gill has been appointed to succeed M. P. Kelly as director of publicity for Midwesco.

Irvin Newman, of Evansville, Ind., is now booker of the Frackman Film Exchange.

Fred Meyer, manager of the Milwaukee Theatre Circuit, received many congratulations this past week due to his celebrating, a third year in Milwaukee, as manager of the Alhambra and of the U-chain in Wisconsin.

A. L. Merritt of the Princess at Oconto was a recent visitor to Milwaukee exchanges.

Elmer Huhnke, sales representative for First National, succeeded in bringing down a sufficient quantity of venison to prove his prowess in the north woods.

The Lyric theatre which was formerly managed by Helen Connelly and which has been closed for some time, has been re-opened and is being managed by Miss Larson.

Don Bole, Wisconsin theatre manager, has been appointed assistant to Sherman Brown of the New Pabst theatre, and will have charge of the Davidson when it is re-opened.

The Fern Theatre is said to have been taken over by Walter Rourke, formerly with the Pastime at Horicon, from Sam Thirion.

John Merrill has recently been appointed exploitation manager for Milwaukee Theatre Circuit. Mr. Merrill some time ago was associated with Saxe Amusement Enterprises.

Oregon and Idaho Hit By Flu

MANY of the houses in various parts of Oregon and Idaho, on account of the seriousness of the flu are experiencing a considerable loss of income. This has been particularly noticeable in Southern Oregon, but as yet no ban has been placed on theatres, though schools are closed at some points.

At Twin Falls, Ida., the county board of health issued an order closing the theatres and which ban has been in force for a week with prospects of being extended for another week, on account of several deaths.

Improvements costing $60,000, covering Vitaphone and Movietone installations at the New Everett theatre, Everett, and remodeling the Apollo theatre, long closed, have been announced by the Star Amusement Company through A. W. Adamson, operating manager.

The Vitaphone and Movietone installation in the New Everett theatre, will be the largest of any city the size of Everett in the state, and will be put in at an expenditure of $25,000, and be completed early in March.

The Apollo theatre will be provided with Photophone, which installation also will be made at a cost of $15,000. The house when completed, Mar. 15th, will seat 800.

Harold J. Murphy, formerly manager of the Orpheum Theatre has assumed the management of Cole McElroy's Spanish Ballroom, Seattle.

Kolstaphone, Inc., has been incorporated by A. S. Kolstadt, C. H. Costner, Jeanie L. Young of Hood River, Ore., who will engage in the manufacture and sale of Kolstaphone, a patented machine and other sound equipment.

Both vitaphone and movietone have been installed in the McDonald Theatre at Eugene, Ore. Frank D. C. Alexander, however, continues to give his organ concerts.

In a real spirit of co-operation the Clemmer Theatre was given over to Dr. Charles Pease of the Unitarian Church for his early morning worship.

Lou Forbes, has been elected to assume the baton at the Portland Theatre to direct the Fanchon & Marco revues, Gene Morgan has gone to California.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Is Good Show Town

ACCORDING to the latest reports from across the East River, the flourishing Borough of Brooklyn is becoming a good show town. Brooklynites are gradually learning that they may find as good entertainment in the theatres of their own section, as may be obtained along the White Way. With the ever-growing hardships of getting about Manhattan, with its congested transit lines and streets, folks of Brooklyn are showing more and more of a tendency to spend evenings near at home. So it is that the Brooklyn theatrical business is gaining headway all the time. Brooklyn's chain of elaborate motion picture houses, including the new Fox and Paramount theatres, have had much to do with this change of sentiment. These palatial establishments are every bit as handsome as similar structures in Manhattan. They offer just as fine performances at the same prices, and on occasions new pictures are shown in Brooklyn, before they appear in Manhattan.

Seventy-five persons in the Steuben Motion Picture Theatre, at 1345 Third avenue, walked out in orderly fashion this past Tuesday afternoon to the strains of popular airs played by a pianist when fire started in the operator's booth. Although the booth was destroyed, there was no excitement, and no one was injured. The persons were led out by W. Unger, owner and manager of the theatre. When Alexander Rosen, the relief operator, notified him of the fire, he went down the center aisle and told the audience, composed largely of women and children to follow him quietly to the street. Meanwhile the pianist, under Unger's orders, struck up the popular tunes with such gusto that some patrons joined in singing them as they marched out.

The Cameo Theatre at South Orange, N. J., has been taken over on lease by Mayer Schlesinger, who will have the house redecorated and an installation of sound equipment made.

Another recent house reopening was that of the Monticello Theatre, Monticello, New Jersey.

James A. FitzPatrick, producer of the Famous Music Master short features, recently arrived back in New York from Scotland, where he produced a feature picture starring Percy Marmont.

Al Moley, of Seider and Moley Theatrical enterprises, is now located in his new headquarters on the third floor of 729 7th Avenue, the phone number of which is Bryant 5119.

Last week the Plaza theatre celebrated the anniversary of its 11th birthday. Lee Brecher, director, after studying the results of a ballot taken among the audience, has decided to avoid sound and talking pictures. The Plaza patrons voted unanimously against a change of policy involving the presentation of audible movies.

Penn. City Ground Sold for Theatre

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by Mayor Musser at a meeting of the Lancaster City Council, that Al. Boyd, formerly a prominent figure in the Stanley Company of America, and who recently built modern theatres in Allentown and Philadelphia, had purchased a city-owned property centrally located at Queen and Chestnut Streets in the former city, with the intention of building a new theatre there. Published reports state Mr. Boyd will erect a building to cost $500,000 and that it will contain store rooms in addition to the theatre. The theatre will seat between 2,500 and 3,000 and the policy of the house will be combination films and vaudeville. A cashier's check for $10,000 was turned over to the city of Lancaster to bind the agreement under the terms of which Mr. Boyd is to take over the site from the city between April 1, 1929, and April 1, 1930. Work on the theatre must begin within a year after the title is taken.

William Woodin has recently completed the wiring of the Keystone Theatre, Towanda, for sound devices, and is planning to wire the Arcadia in Wellsboro.

In order to make newly installed talkie devices operate to the best advantage in the Colonial Theatre, Harrisburg, Manager Lee Levy moved the projection booth back ten feet. To avoid interrupting any performances he had the work done in a single day, Sunday, December 2, notwithstanding it was necessary to tear out a part of the wall of the theatre and add a ten-foot extension to the building.

The death occurred recently in Reading of Isaiah H. Dickinson, for twenty-five years identified with theatres in that city. For a long period he was stage manager of the old Grand Opera House, now the Capitol Theatre.

Picture theatres of Scranton will have competition in the form of dramatic stock productions by the Thatcher Players, in the Academy Theatre, beginning December 24. The Academy, which is owned by the M. E. Comerford chain, with headquarters in Scranton, has been practically rebuilt in the last two months and has been leased to the James Thatcher Productions, Inc.

The P. O. S. of A. hall, operated as a motion picture theatre, in East Berlin, has been transferred back to its former owner, Dr. Eugene Elgin, after having been conducted for a brief period by Robert Scheaffer.

Maxwell Hite, employed for a number of years as a projectionist in various picture theatre in Harrisburg and adjacent towns, entertained the inmates of the Dauphin County Almshouse with a show consisting of eight reels of comic subjects.

Optics, Electricity, Practical Ideas & Advice

Inquiries and Comments

Film Buckling Responsible for Shutter Changes

SATISFACTORY solution to the film buckling problem seems to have been reached at last. It involves simply a change in the location of the revolving shutter from its former position in front of the projection lens to a place immediately behind the aperture.

In this new position the shutter is double acting in that it serves to mask the light beam (its primary function) and at the same time shields the film from the radiated heat within the beam during the light washing period.

Thus, by simply changing the position of one element in the projector optical system a defect is satisfactorily corrected, the efficiency of the system is maintained at its normal value, and complicated mechanisms for cooling the film are avoided thus retaining simplicity of design.

In Step with Progress

Placing the revolving shutter behind the aperture constitutes an improvement which is directly in line with new developments in the art of motion picture projection. By the same token it is indicative of the alertness of projector manufacturers to the ever occurring changes with which the industry is faced.

The matter of film buckling has been a serious one ever since the introduction of the reflector arcs. This system, with its greatly increased efficiency in light transmission subjects the film to heat levels which are higher than those encountered with the old condenser forms of optical systems.

There is an axiom in the lighting field that light and heat go hand in hand and any increase in the former is attended by a like increase in the latter and vice versa. This seems perfectly logical in view of the fact that heat, too, is a wave motion and is subject to the same control by means of lenses, prisms and mirrors.

Early Attempts at High Cooling

Efforts have been made at various times to protect the film from excessive heating in the new forms of illuminators but the principal result was merely the evolution of cumbersome forms of cooling devices which found no permanent place in the projector optical system.

Forced draft devices which drew a stream of cold air past the aperture or played a stream of cold air directly on the film were frequently tried but were generally unsatisfactory.

Aside from being cumbersome, these devices were inefficient and approached the problem from the negative standpoint in that they all first permitted the film to be heated and then attempted to dissipate this heat stored up in the film.

This was equivalent to evolving a method for finding a horse which had been stolen instead of taking the more direct method of preventing the horse from being stolen in the first place.

Placing the revolving shutter at the aperture location prevents the film from being excessively heated and so takes the form of a preventive rather than a cure. This method is infinitely better.

Why Film Buckles

The best opinions on the subject ascribe the buckling of film to its lack of perfect drying. Film which leaves the laboratory imperfectly dried will be subjected to a violent drying operation as it passes the aperture during the course of projection and it is this almost instantaneous drying during projection which sets up uneven strains in the film and causes it to assume shapes other than that of a perfectly flat ribbon.

More specifically, the action is claimed to be as follows: Imperfectly dried film passing through the projector during projection is subjected to a preliminary heating before it reaches the aperture from its contact with the heated mechanism.

The edges of the film, being in direct contact with the sprockets, guides and tension springs are heated more than the center strip of the film which rides practically free. Some degree of strain is thus established due to this preliminary uneven heating. As the film is exposed to the beam passing through the aperture, the center strip of film, which until now has been little heated, is suddenly subjected to a large increase in temperature whereas the edges of the film are protected from direct exposure to the projected light beam.

A violent strain is then established in the opposite direction.

The net result is that the center portion of the film not only tends to, but actually does, expand more than edges and this unequal expansion gives rise to the so-called buckling.

Its Effect on Projection

The effects of buckled film are evidenced during projection by the projectionists inability to keep an entirely sharp defined picture on the screen. The film, as it passes, the aperture, does not present a flat plane to the projection lens but on the contrary presents different planes which vary in their distances from the lens. Focussing the lens, therefore, for the normal position of a flat film at the aperture is impossible as the film constantly changes its position.

In extreme cases, it is not at all uncommon for the projectionist to remain at the working projector and continually refocus the lens in order to keep a legible picture on the screen.

Such a procedure, of course, is absurd even if it were effective, but no matter how alert the projectionist may be to catch these changes the definition of the picture is certain to be affected.

It might logically be asked that if imperfect drying of the film is responsible for its buckling then why not eliminate this trouble at the source by correctly drying the film. It is far easier and simpler to find a universal preventive for buckling than to try to obtain the cooperation of a large body of companies who may or may not be in favor of going to the extra work required to perfectly condition their product which they consider to be at best, but temporary.

It seems almost certain that the old type of revolving shutter placed in front of the projection lens is doomed to extinction.

In view of the fact that the old shutter location possesses no marked advantages as compared with the new one, its disappearance should be no cause for grief.

The aperture-shutter, on the other hand, holds forth sharply defined pictures, the conservation of film and projector parts, and a lessening of the projectionists duties in that he is not required to devote much of his time to watching the screen for its definition.

Two Florida Theatres Acquired by Publix

Plans are being rushed by the Publix Theatre Corporation for the opening of the Polk theatre, at Lakeland, Fla., which was erected during the time of the Florida boom, of Spanish atmospheric style, and at a cost reported to be close to a million dollars. The name of the Polk, which seats 2,000 has been changed to Rio.

Recently final deals were closed between the owners and Publix, whereby the Polk and another theatre never before opened, the Lakeland, were purchased outright by Publix. It is the plan of the company to open the Polk (now the Rio) some time in December with Movietone and Vitaphone. The Lakeland will open its doors the early part of next year, also with sound.

Representatives of Publix' maintenance departments in Atlanta and New York are at Lakeland now, rushing through the equipping of the new Rio. All furniture, etc., will be in keeping with the Spanish style of the house. The Rio policy will be sound at popular prices, and the Lakeland will offer first and second run sound.

Several Theatre Projects Are Planned in Mid-West

THE Great State Theatre Corporation is said to be planning the erection of a $1,000,000 theatre and store building on Main Street, Aurora, Ill. The preliminary sketches are being prepared by Rapp and Rapp, well known Chicago architects.

Construction will get under way at once on the theatre at 2141 North Market Street, Wichita, Kas., to be erected by the Stockman-Hartman Theatre Company. The plans which were prepared by Boller Brothers of Kansas City, Mo., call for a one story building with balcony, 50 by 140 feet and of reinforced concrete and brick, trimmed with terra cotta. The house will be built on the sub-contract basis.

Chicago interests are said to be considering the erection of a new theatre in Burlington, Ia., to cost about $400,000. A site on Main Street has been mentioned in connection with the proposed new house.

Buckner, Mo., is to have a new theatre and dance hall. E. V. Buchanan of 221 South Osage Street, Independence, Mo., is behind the project. William S. McCoy, an architect of Independence, Mo., has prepared the plans which call for a building two stories with basement on a site 40 by 100 feet.

It is reported that Otto Theis will have plans for his new theatre and commercial building in Dodge City, Kas., revised before awarding the contract. Ellis Charles and Company, Orpheum Building, Wichita, Kas., are the architects. The theatre will have a main floor, mezzanine, and balcony and be 115 by 126 feet. The building will cost about $150,000.

George W. Penniwell has been awarded the contract for the construction of a 900-seat theatre to be erected in Leon, Ia., by John Waller and John Michael. The building will cost about $50,000.

C. E. Stevens, St. Louis, Mo., architect has prepared plans for a theatre in De Soto, Mo. J. Rosen is behind the project.

Plans for a new theatre in Iola, Kas., to be operated by T. N. Magruder, owner of the Elite Theatre in that city, have been completed. Construction work has begun on a new theatre in Ellis, Kas., being built by W. H. and L. C. Snyder. F. Murphy has re-opened the Electric Theatre, Lawson, Mo., which temporarily has been closed. An extensive remodeling plan is under way at the Liberty Theatre, Cherryvale, Kas., operated by R. C. Lee.

Construction work is well under way on a new $250,000 theatre at 1013-19 Minnesota Avenue, Kansas City, Kas., being built by the Tenth and Minnesota Building Corp., of which Ben Gorham is president. Boller Brothers of Kansas City are the architects. The house will seat 1,200 and will be of the medieval Spanish type.

Candy Manufacturer Will Erect Community Theatre in Hershey

FIRST steps have been taken toward the construction of the new and costly theatre and community centre building that M. S. Hershey, the "chocolate king" and philanthropist, intends to erect in Hershey, Dauphin County, Pa., where his chocolate plant is located.

The old theatre that stood on the site of the proposed structure has been razed and most of the excavation work for the foundations of the new building has been completed. In this connection, announcement is made of additional details of the plans of construction. The building will be six stories in height and will cover a plot 400 by 250 feet. The main theatre will be on the first floor and will seat 2,500; the balcony will extend into the second floor. Other floors will be devoted to recreational and club rooms. There will also be a smaller theatre for local entertainments and there will be a large number of living apartments, a gymnasium and a swimming pool. The two upper floors will be used for a community hospital.

The building will be of Italian Renaissance design and will face a terraced formal court, containing a decorative pool and promenades bordered by flower beds. The entire project is to be operated as a community benefit with unusually low charges for individual accommodations.

Change of Policy for New Pinanski Boston House

After being dark for several weeks, the New Netoco Casino, located in the heart of Boston's downtown district, reopened on Sunday, November 25, with a Vitaphone and Movietone policy.

When Samuel Pinanski, president of the New England Theatres Operating Corporation, assumed control of the old Walron's Casino a few weeks ago, he closed the house for complete renovation and redecoration. The old Casino has emerged as an up-to-date house, one of its features being a latest model Wurlitzer.

Theatre to Be Erected in Idaho Falls, Idaho

General contracts for the building of a new theatre at Idaho Falls, Idaho, which is being financed by Joe George, have recently been awarded Salt Lake City contractors. Work on the structure was begun in the summer but discontinued. It will now be rushed to completion, it is said.

The theatre will be one of the most modern in Southern Utah, it is promised, and will contain seats for 932 persons. It will have a fully equipped stage and provisions are being made for installing sound film devices. The accommodations will include a large lobby and lounging rooms for men and women.

Hollywood—Continued

Paramount Signs Webb

Millard Webb signed by Paramount to direct a "talker" in the New York studios.

New Columbia Scenarists

Peter Milne, Jack Wagner and Stuart Anthony have been added to the Columbia roster of screen writers. Milne has been associated with Columbia during the past season. They will start immediate work on stories set for early production.

Paramount Sound Stages

Paramount's five sound stages, of which four are under construction now, will be entirely completed and in full operation by Jan. 15. Three are scheduled to start production Jan. 1 and the fourth on the fifteenth.

Glazer Signs Anthony Brown

Anthony Brown has been signed by Benjamin Glazer, head of the Pathe sound division, to work on future dialogue attractions.

Stein Finishes Feature

Pathe's "The Official Scandal," new feature of the Fourth Estate, has been completed by Director Paul Stein.

L. G. Rigby With W. B.

L. G. Rigby joins Warner Brothers scenario staff as a writer next week.

Christies Sign Grapewin

Charles Grapewin, former vaudeville headliner, has been signed by the Christies for a one-reel comedy, "Jed's Vacation." This is the sketch which Grapewin did for many years on the two-a-day.

Other names signed recently for talking shorts by Christie include Edward Everett Horton, Lois Wilson, Sam Hardy and Raymond Hatton.

Their Trips Preserved in Celluloid

Each of the British editors whose goodwill trip to America brought him to the United Artists studio in California has been presented by Joseph M. Schenck, head of United Artists, with a film record of his trip to California. On the eve of their departure from Los Angeles, the publishers were shown a rush print of the reel.

Signs Contract

Paramount has signed Frederick March, leading man who recently appeared on the stage as Tony in "The Royal Family," to a contract calling for his exclusive services in Paramount talkies. He worked in the all-dialogue feature, "The Dummy." He will work in the films at night.

FBO Units on Location

Three FBO productions just completed—"The Drifter," "The Little Savage" and "Laughing at Death"—utilized the location country around Los Angeles for their backgrounds. For the first, starring Tom Mix, mountain scenes were shot in the San Fernando Valley near Newhall. The second, a Buzz Barton vehicle was photographed on the old Lasky ranch on the slopes of the Hollywood foothills. The last production, which features Bob Steele, was made in the San Fernando Valley and at the Los Angeles harbor at San Pedro.

Contracts Renewed

Florence Ryerson and Viola Brothers Shore renewed their contracts recently with Paramount.

New Drew Comedy

Jerry Drew has considerable support in "Wives Don't Weaken," his new Ideal comedy for Educational. Al Cooke, Betty Boyd, Estelle Bradley, Robert Graves and Al Thompson all have parts.

Goodwin with Devore

Harold Goodwin is playing for the second time opposite Dorothy Devore. His role is in "Misplaced Husbands," a current release.

Wolheim's New Role

For the first time Louis Wolheim is playing a sympathetic role, appearing in Pathe's "Square Shoulders" as the father of Junior Coghlan.

Writing Barker Special

Jack Nattford is now engaged in a story of Switzerland which will be Reginald Barker's next special for Tiffany-Stahl. Frances Hyland is also doing a story for the director, temporarily called "Top of the Mast."

"When East Is East"

Lon Chaney's new starring feature for M-G-M will be "When East Is East," a story of the Malay Peninsula. Tod Browning and Waldemar Young will work together with the star on this new story, an original by Browning.

And, History Will Repeat—

...workable long rolls...colored film base..duplicating film..panchromatic negative....the history of the important developments in American motion picture materials is a factful story of this Company's cooperation with the cinematographic industry.

Obviously an association that has borne such fruits in the past can be expected to repeat in the future.
For 1929 the Eastman resources and Eastman cooperation are pledged anew to the further advancement of the motion picture art.

SOUND

"The Lion's Roar"
Sennett-Educational
RCA Photophone
A Pip

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Looks like a very happy combination inaugurated by this sound short between Educational and Mack Sennett, via Photophone. The sound effects achieved by RCA are notable in many respects. The comedy subject chosen was ideal, the cast hand-picked, and with the audible effects marks a distinct forward step in the new field of screen entertainment. A variety of sound is heard—instrumental, vocal, and in animal noises the range jumps from a bird's chirp to a lion's roar. The story is that of a city youth who journeys to the farm where his lady love is at work. Her uncle takes him out rabbit hunting. Billy Bevan, as uncle, recites a sentimental verse about a rabbit and a brook that is a scream. When they finally scare up the quarry it proves to be a lion. Seated on a limb of a tree with the lion roaring below, they discuss the situation. This dialogue is a wow, and carries a laugh in every line. Johnny Burke handles the featured role with a fine comedy sense, ably supported by Billy Bevan. Daphne Pollard and Vernon Dent. Written and directed by Mack Sennett. Time, 25 mins.

SILENT

"Only Me"—Lupino Lane
Educational Unusual Comedy Kick

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
This boy Lupino Lane is a hound for work, and this film will probably establish a new record for a comedian's activity in two reels. It is crammed with his own work, for the simple reason that he impersonates all the characters. The idea is cleverly handled, with Lupino in full dress going to a vaudeville show pretty well plastered. From the time he sees the ticket taker till the last performer on the bill, and even the orchestra leader, taxi driver and people in the audience, all these folks look like himself to Lupino who is all ginned up. The comedian sits in a box and watches the different acts, all of which are done with a comedy slant. There is a kid in the audience who is supplied with vegetables and spoils most of the acts. This part is also done by the comedian. Lane stamps himself as a versatile actor who is far more than just a good comedian. Every character he impersonates is a distinct type that carries individual mannerisms. If exhibitors don't give this unusual subject the break it deserves, then there is no sense in comedians continuing to put originality, brains and perspiration in their work.

Other One-Reel Supers:

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit. 26 subjects, 15 with two negatives, sound and silent.

HORACE IN HOLLYWOOD

Arthur Lake, with shots of studio big-timers in a zesty series of 13.

—and these with singing and dialog:

BAILEY and BARNUM

Headliner blackface singing and entertaining act.

THE BROX SISTERS

Harmonizing Hawaiian trio extraordinary.

Zimmerman and Grandville

Unique, delightful Swiss yodelers.

WHEN an organization like Publix books a short subject for its theatres all over the country it must be outstanding. It's a habit with the Laemmle Novelties to be outstanding in the single-reel field. Theatres like the Roxy, New York, show them frequently—subjects like "The Rag Doll," "Handicapped," etc. YOU can take a profit-tip from the big fellows and add to the drawing power of any program by including the Laemmle Novelties. They're truly something new under the sun.

"THE BEST SOUND Is Now DeFOREST

AVAILABLE

All orders for DE FOREST PHONOFILM Equipment received and approved by January 1st, 1929, will be installed on or before February 15th, 1929.

Your theatre will be fully equipped to project sound and talking pictures by the end of February if you act promptly. Orders received after January 1st, will be filled in the order received.

For your convenience, authorized distributors have been appointed in all exchange centers in the United States. Wire or write to the General Talking Pictures Corporation for the address of the distributor in your territory and thus expedite the placing of your order.

INTERCHANGEABLE

DE FOREST PHONOFILM installations will project any sound-on-film picture produced.

The method of sound production adopted by the seven largest producers is such that their sound films can be successfully projected through the new DE FOREST PHONOFILM equipment. Only with a sound-on-film projector can you project news reels.

DE FOREST PHONOFILM is the only sound projector offered to the American exhibitor that is fully protected by patents owned outright by its manufacturer—General Talking Pictures Corporation. DE FOREST PHONOFILM installation is therefore the best possible insurance against infringement suits.

DEPENDABLE

DE FOREST PHONOFILM is the most dependable sound projector on the market.

Its design is the result of over five years of practical experience and continuous development, under the personal supervision of Dr. Lee DeForest, inventor of Phonofilm, and the engineering staff of General Talking Pictures. The result is that DE FOREST PHONOFILM is the most simple sound projector on the market and is practically fool proof.

DE FOREST PHONOFILM parts are all standardized and manufactured by General Talking Pictures Corporation in its own factories. Accessories are handled by one of the largest distributors of motion picture theatre supplies in the country and are available from nearby shipping points in every part of the country.

QUALITY

"Newspapermen agree with me that I have the best sound in town," wired John Prescott, manager of the Alhambra Theatre, Canton, Ohio, after the reviewing show of the new DE FOREST PHONOFILM installation in the theatre on December 1st.

It is not surprising that unprejudiced listeners should pronounce DE FOREST PHONOFILM the best sound in the talking picture field. Dr. Lee DeForest, under whose supervision all apparatus is manufactured, is the undisputed authority on voice amplification. He made clear radio reception a reality. He made clear long distance telephoning a reality.

Now he has made natural, pure-toned talking pictures a reality.

Spiritless Advertising

Exhibitors Attack It As Box-office Deterrent

By William A. Johnston

SYDNEY COHEN issued a statement recently to the effect that lack of trade advertising had damaged the box-office to an alarming degree.

Exhibitors everywhere replied immediately to the charge with as vociferous and unanimous agreement as we have ever witnessed in connection with any other trade problem that has arisen; and the exhibitor is still talking on the subject, in particular that smaller exhibitor whose very existence today is a concern equally grave to himself and to the industry.

We have labored for years to drive home the fact that trade advertising was a service to the exhibitor, just that and nothing more. The exhibitor is now finding his own voice in the matter, and, for his own good, it is to be hoped he yells his way clear to the ears of those in New York who could, if they would, help him.

Trade advertising is just as important a function in this or any other business as the making of the goods or the distribution of them. Its successful conduct is a matter involving millions of dollars in results one way or another. These are facts that no business man would attempt to deny.

The box-office plight of the exhibitor today is to a considerable extent the result of the impecunious, unreasonable, unsound policy of trade advertising which this business secretly resolved to adopt a year and a half ago. From the very time that trade advertising became spiritless, scheduled, limited often to the point of mere negation, it is a fact that exhibitor advertising dropped and so did the appeal of motion pictures to the public.

It is a curious paradox that producers will spend through the nose for forced Broadway runs and even buy millions of dollars worth of theatres to put pictures across—and then play penny ante with the straightforward merchandising of their product to their retail customers.

This matter goes straight to the heads of the producing-distributing companies, the members of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association. From their own standpoint, if only they knew it, but assuredly from the exhibitors standpoint, it is as broad and serious as any of the internal or external problems that confront that body.

Abram F. Myers

We cannot but deprecate the existence of two national organizations of exhibitors when exhibitor interests, externally, at least, will be but protected by one. It is to be hoped, and earnestly, that the two organizations will join forces, council together and fight shoulder to shoulder against the common foe. Whatever the situation, however, and whatever the circumstances of his appointment, there will be unanimous opinion upon the calibre of Abram F. Myers. His conduct, from beginning to end, of the Trade Practice conference of a year ago was singularly able. His fairness, coolness, and keen grasp of the fundamental principles not merely of business in general but especially of the motion picture business, was for him universal commendation. We regard his new appointment as a highly important matter.

"Freddie" Schader Joins Staff of Motion Picture News

MOTION PICTURE NEWS is very happy to announce the addition to its editorial staff of Frederic H. Schader, better known on and below Broadway and on both sides of Hollywood Boulevard as "Freddie" Schader.

He joins the editorial department of Motion Picture News this week following his return to New York from the West Coast and after resigning from the William Fox organization where he was engaged in Movietone production activity.

Freddie Schader's association with Motion Picture News marks a return to the publishing field of one of the most famous and best known of all motion picture trade paper press staff representatives. For many years Freddie Schader's name was synonymous with the important news values of the industry.

Prior to joining the Fox organization he was for more than fifteen years identified with Variety and was responsible for the introduction in that publication of the weekly box office reports on motion picture attractions. One fact little known in the history of Freddie's publishing activity is that in 1917 it was he who induced Wid Gunning to change the policy of a weekly publication which was then devoted solely to film reviews into the first motion picture daily trade journal. He was on the staff of that publication during the first six months of its existence.

Resigning from Variety about two years ago, Schader went to Los Angeles with Harold B. Franklin to become general publicity director of the West Coast Theatres and later Western editor of Photoplay Magazine.

His reviews in Variety signed "Fred" were at all times fair although they were severe, and he was conceded an uncanny faculty for picking box office values almost without error over a period of more than ten years of reviewing.

His past experience in the publishing field, his close contact with every department of the motion picture business, including the operation of chain theatres and the production division of the industry, give him a background possessed by very few, and Motion Picture News regards him as unusually well equipped for the position he has on its staff.

"Woman of Affairs" Dated for L. A. Showings

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Clarence Brown's "Woman of Affairs" has been booked first run Los Angeles at Loew's State the week of January 4th.

A deal recently under way would have sent the picture into one of the extended run houses, but M-G-M turned down the proposition. Excuse given was the fact that long-run would tie up the production from showing in the territory for at least six months after finish of the engagement, and it was felt that the picture should go into general distribution as quickly as possible. The booking will be followed by showings at the Boulevard, Hollywood Egyptian, and other suburban theatres.

Hal Wallis Made Studio Manager First National

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Hal Wallis, for the past three years publicity director at Warners' West Coast studios, has been promoted to the post of studio manager for the First National plant in Burbank. He succeeds Bobby North, who is also advanced to production supervisor. Bill Bloeker will take over Wallis' duties directing Warners' West Coast publicity.

Mr. Wallis is the husband of Louise Fazenda, screen player.

Fox Abandoning Term Contracts With Writers

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Fox Studios will not renew term contracts with members of the scenario department, according to reports. Officials feel the stamped to talkers might tie them up to expensive contracts if they carry writers along on term contracts. Instead, writers will get individual story assignments as required, and delivery of a satisfactory adaptation or script will result in deal for another picture immediately.

Mayer Denies He Plans to Leave M-G-M

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—In an exclusive statement to a representative of this publication, Louis B. Mayer, emphatically denied the report that he was planning to leave Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"You can deny most emphatically," he said, "the report that I am planning to leave Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. There is absolutely no truth to this rumor, which is on a par with other ridiculous reports which have been circulated throughout the trade regarding M-G-M. I expect to remain with M-G-M for a long time to come."

New 1st National Brand Product of Company in Future Will Be Known As First National-Vitaphone Pictures

AN announcement which will affect motion picture theatres all over the country was made Thursday by First National Pictures, Inc., to the effect that beginning immediately the organization's product will be known as First National-Vitaphone Pictures, and that this company will have the complete facilities placed at its disposal to produce talking and sound-synchronized motion picture productions enjoying the usage of all Vitaphone equipment and sound-proof stages concerned in the combining of a motion picture production with dialogue, musical and sound effects.

In the deal just consummated, future productions will gain the benefit of the Key City Exhibitors Give Report on Experience With Sound

Respond to Motion Picture News Survey for Benefit of Houses That Have Not Yet Installed Equipment

Editor's Note.—This is the first of a series of reports to MOTION PICTURE NEWS from Key City exhibitors whose houses are equipped with sound reproducing apparatus. The series is intended as a guide for those exhibitors who have not yet made installations. It contains much valuable information as to experiences, overhead costs, projection and service problems. Much grief may be forestalled by any exhibitor by a careful reading of the entire series.

SOUND picture problems for the exhibitor are numerous, but results more than justify the troubles that accrue from them, according to reports received by Motion Picture News in a survey just inaugurated in the key cities. Costs of installation are heavy and considerable expense has been added to the overhead, but increased attendance has invariably been recorded in the equipped theatres.

In almost every instance enlargement of projection booths has been necessary, as well as an increased staff in the booths. Additional overhead has also resulted from the servicing of the equipment by electric company experts and in film and disc rentals. The service by the experts has, however, been reported very satisfactory and the costs nominal.

One of the greatest problems that seems to confront the exhibitor when he first installs is that of properly regulated sound volume so that it will be uniform throughout the house. This is accomplished principally by a proper arrangement of the horns and the setting of amplifiers in various parts of the house so as to equally distribute the sound.

In some cases two or three rows of seats have been sacrificed in order to set the screen further forward and thus make room for the setting of the horns behind the screen.

Here are the first reports submitted to Motion Picture News:

KANSAS CITY.—A summarization of the experiences of seven Kansas City exhibitors with sound pictures offers conclusive proof that problems of the industry's newest invention are not the same in all theatres, although, with few exceptions, they are similar.

At the Midland Theatre, which has a seating capacity of 4,000, for instance, the situation is much different than at the Plaza Theatre, which seats 2,200. At the Midland a move is being considered to have amplifiers placed in various parts of the house so that it will not be necessary to have the tone so loud back-stage in order to clearly reach those in the top of the balcony, practically one-half block away.

At the Mainstreet Theatre a situation similar to that of the Midland is confronted, the Mainstreet's seating capacity being 3,400.

"In a theatre larger than the usual size

the problem of making the tone sound realistic to patrons in any nook and corner of the house has not been solved yet," Lawrence Lehman, manager of the Mainstreet, said. "One cannot expect a meek, subdued tone to sound like a human voice to the man in the last rows of the balcony, yet to the person down in front of the house such a tone would have a very realistic sound.

"As to the increased overhead from sound pictures, that has more than been absorbed by a healthy increase in business. Aside from the installation itself, about the only additional cost of any consequence with sound pictures is the additional operator in the booth. There is, of course, a reasonable inspection charge made by sound equipment manufacturers, but that is necessary. We have experienced no difficulty thus far in handling sound equipment. There was no remodeling necessary, aside from the actual installation of sound equipment."

No Trouble Here

At the Plaza, Kansas City's newest $1,000,000 suburban house, which has a policy of sound features only, the theatre was built for sound pictures originally.

"It is very easy in our house, which seats 2,200, to clearly hear the tone in any part of the theatre," Jack F. Truitt, managing director, said. "We do not need to think of amplifiers. Like other theatres, we get the regular periodical inspection service from the manufacturers and our only additional overhead is the cost of another operator. We have experienced no difficulty in the handling of equipment thus far."

At the Globe Theatre, which seats about 2,600, William Flynn, one of the owners, had an experience similar to that of Mr. Truitt, although the Globe was forced to install sound equipment, it being an older house and the first theatre in Kansas City to install sound equipment.

"I feel firmly convinced that the owner of a theatre of any size will have to come to sound pictures, sooner or later," Mr. Flynn said. "I do not mean by that that he will have to play all sound pictures, but he must have his house equipped for sound if he is to keep abreast with the industry.

Admission Increase?

"No increased admission price should be an absolute necessity with the installation of sound pictures, as such an installation should be regarded as nothing other than an ordinary improvement which is necessary in all theatres from time to time," said J. L. Finske of the Newman Theatre. "It is true there will be an additional operator to pay, but that virtually covers the bulk of the 'extra' expense and such an expense should pay big dividends in an increase in attendance. I have learned one thing, at least, about sound pictures. The 'kick' of hearing some big star's voice will cause the sale of many more tickets at the box office than merely seeing that star ever would.

Martin Finkelstein of the Isis, one of the larger suburban houses, also finds that the small additional overhead with sound pictures is more than absorbed in increased attendance. He has experienced no difficulty in the handling of sound equipment.

SEATTLE.—Suburban exhibitors whose houses are operating on a paying basis and who contemplate installation of talkie equipment must make this installation with the full realization that it is merely a matter of protection for the future, and will, in all probability, result in lower net profit for several seasons to come. That is the message of Al Rosenberg, president of DeLuxe Theatres, Inc., in Seattle, Washington, whose Egyptian Theatre in the University district of that city was one of the first suburban houses on the Pacific Coast to install Vitaphone and Movietone equipment. Mr. Rosenberg's deductions are based upon several seasons of experience in the field.

The problems of talkie equipment installation are not within the house, the projection booth or behind the walls, according to Mr. Rosenberg, but lie in the greatly added cost of giving the audiences "Vitaphoned" shows. While it is natural that the equipment is decidedly expensive, the slight added costs of changes in the pro-

Electrical Entertainment for the World—R C A Purpose

An Interview with Joseph I. Schnitzer

By William A. Johnston

THE Radio Corporation, according to Joseph I. Schnitzer, newly elected president of FBO, is coming into the amusement field in a very large way.

"It is their purpose," said he, "to supply the electrical entertainment of the world in this marvelous new era of radio, motion pictures and television. With the recent Victor Phonograph merger, they have this big company's resources in music and famous artists; in FBO, they have production and distribution of sound pictures; in Radio-Keith-Albee, they have a retail outlet; and in National Broadcasting, a great network of our communication."

Here is a remarkable structure in itself, but one upon which they will build considerably."

The FBO production schedules will consist altogether of sound pictures. These will vary from 100% all talking pictures to those in which the silent sequences will dominate. Musical and other sound effects will be freely used. In reply to a query, Mr. Schnitzer said it was not fully decided as yet whether the name FBO would be retained as a picture production trade mark.

The already announced production of "Rio Rita," he pointed out, is an indication of the quality of the proposed program. Deals are on for other prominent attractions. Two prominent composer-playwrights have just been signed and others are under consideration.

Asked whether the independent producer would have an opportunity to bid for a place on the program, he said that the capable outside producers would be encouraged to do so.

Production will be confined to Hollywood. Although the RCA Photophone Studio at Gramercy Park, New York City, could be utilized for such Eastern production as is necessary.

Mr. Schnitzer feels that television is on its way and not so far away.

Say New Quota is Fair

Opposite Views of Germans and U. S. Producers on "Kontingent" Limiting Permits to 250

ANTICIPATING protests which it was indicated would issue from American picture producers against the provisions of the German "kontingent," which on July 1 next will limit the importation of films into Germany to a total of 210 pictures annually, officials of the German government have been quoted as declaring there is no basis for the contention that the new quota discriminates against any particular country.

Belief exists here that the Americans will bring the charge that the new quota works out in effect as an unfair "protective wall" against the American film product. While in theory the new "kontingent" is generally admitted to be fair, in practice, American producers believe, the restrictions of the new law work out in an unfair manner to them. They point out that while the 210 permits are to be divided among all foreign producers, the existence of agreements of Germany with France, Italy and Austria automatically reduce the number of licenses available to all outside producers. German officials disclaim any knowledge of such agreements.

An added ground for grievance is found in the claim of several American distributors that they were promised an allotment of licenses before the new quota was decided upon and that the enactment of the regulation in its present form automatically destroys these arrangements.

The effect upon American production of these restrictions of its exports is one which is bound to be felt in all branches of the industry if the foreign "quotas" continue to reduce the totals of outside product admitted to the markets abroad.

Louis Mayer's Message

Just how important the foreign market is to the motion picture in the United States was brought home to Americans last Spring, when Louis B. Mayer, M-G-M production executive, was quoted as declaring that the saturation point of motion pictures has almost been reached in this country and that the American film industry must look abroad for its future development. At the time Mr. Mayer made public a survey by Arthur Loew, head of the M-G-M foreign department which showed that the motion picture field ranges from the United States, with one theatre per 5,000 citizens, to China with one theatre to 3,000,000 persons. With the cost of production steadily mounting, Mr. Mayer said, the industry must develop foreign markets for its future existence. At that time he declared the income of his company from foreign countries was seven times greater than it was five years previously.

Where the American producer will look for revenue to compensate for the loss incurred when markets are automatically closed to his product by legislation, is a question that now concerns the best minds of the film industry.

According to recognized authorities next year's theatre building program will be as heavy as that which was carried out in 1928, a record year, but it is pointed out by these same authorities that many of these new theatres will be in replacements of obsoleted houses, and while larger in capacity than the structures they will supplant the increase in actual seats per capita will not be commensurate with the number of new operating projects.

Gore Bros. Seek Interest in Fanchon and Marco

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Abe and Mike Gore, former large stockholders and officers of West Coast Theatres, are reported negotiating for purchase of a large interest in Fanchon and Marco Productions, Inc. The latter organization supplies stage presentation units for West Coast Theatres, and will later assemble flash acts and novelties for Movietone production by various studios.

Fanchon and Marco have begun their program of expansion. Harry C. Arthur has been sent to Chicago to arrange bookings for the F. and M. units. When he has finished there he will come to New York to obtain more bookings.

F. and M. is seeking 30 weeks addition to its time in Wesco houses. It is also reported that the company is planning to send some of its units to Australia.

A recent announcement from the newly organized Fanchon and Marco, Inc., of which H. B. Franklin is an executive officer, says that a new show unit will sail from Seattle for Australia every two weeks, each act to play two weeks in the Australian cities or eighteen weeks in all. At the present time F. and M. use more than 300 stage personalities, but this total will be increased to exceed 1,000 when the Australian plans are perfected.

Publix Will Run Million Dollar for Long Runs

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Publix will reopen the Million Dollar Theatre on a long-run policy, according to local reports. West Coast Theatres operated the Metropolitan and Million Dollar for Publix, but closed the latter early last Spring when business fell off over a period of months.

When Publix took back operation of their coast houses recently, decision was made to install Western Electric Movietone equipment in the Million Dollar and re-open as a long-run house for Paramount and M-G-M specials.

The only long-run house operating downtown at present is West Coast's Criterion, which has doubled its weekly gross since booking talk film specials.

Ad Curtailment Is Still Target for Exhibitor Criticism

Further Reports From Key City Showmen Provide Additional Evidence in Support of Cohen Statement on "Misguided Economy"

COMMENTING upon the recent article by Sidney S. Cohen in the December 8 issue of Motion Picture News, exhibitors of every classification in the Pacific Northwest this week seconded Mr. Cohen's sentiments relative to the harm that curtailment of producers' advertising has done to the industry. From interviews with several exhibitors in and around Seattle, Washington, these are the opinions that have been gathered by this publication's correspondents in the Northwest:

Downtown Situation

First, from the standpoint of the key city first run exhibitor, the curtailment of trade paper copy has withdrawn from the heads of the theatre the source of much enthusiasm relative to product which in turn becomes box office showing. As expressed by one large theatre manager, "Despite the fact that under present conditions our product is bought entirely through the circuit offices, the lack of ad copy in the trade papers about the films I am going to play takes away from me the source of much enthusiasm which I could pass on to my associates and friends. This lack of enthusiasm about something we know nothing about is quite naturally reflected at the box office." The assumption then to be derived is that the producer of these films has a harder job next season selling the same circuit, because of the mediocre showing of the films at the box office the previous season.

The Neighborhood Theatre

Second, however, comes the opinion of the neighborhood manager, and the small town exhibitor, both of whom have the same feelings upon the subject. Said one suburban theatre head, "We depend very much upon the producer's copy in the trade papers to put our shows across—just as we look to the ad copy as a sort of assistant in the selection of product in the first place. Ad copy that tells us the highlights of the picture, its success or box office record at other theatres we have heard about, or a resume of the leading subjects in a season's campaign, gives us a guide to buying film, as well as an enthusiasm that we maintain and pass on for weeks before we play the picture. The fact that we are sold on a picture naturally helps make it a box office success in our theatres because we come into such close personal contact with our patrons that we can pass on our enthusiasm, gained from trade paper copy. Producers should realize how much trade paper advertising means to their sales—often one or two ads will sell a whole season's product in my house."

The exhibitors interviewed were almost unanimous in their preference for copy that gave facts about story, cast, business in other centers, unusual angles, etc., rather than ads built simply upon beautiful design and superlatives of description.

Milwaukee.—For the past six months or so I have been buying my pictures "blind," says O. V. Kelly, manager of a 450-seat house at Deedsburg, Wis.

Not Enough Facts

"The advertisements in the trade papers of the various producers have been misleading me. Not only that, but all their energy has been directed to 'put over' their talkie films and we who are still in the silent ranks have been given very little to go by. I have just returned from a buying trip to Milwaukee and can honestly say that of four out of every ten pictures that I purchased, I know very little, outside of the stars and the type of picture."

With only limited announcements and advertisements to guide him, Mr. Kelly declares: He cannot get enough information to show him that the pictures are what he wants for his patrons, and, naturally, he is not sold on many pictures himself. A lack of producer-distributor enthusiasm for one particular picture, as indicated by the very limited advertising given it in the trade papers, had a costly result for Mr. Kelly.

The picture, of comedy type, was of the average type that he shows on week-ends.

The material he had on this particular picture was of little importance and contained little information. He could not get himself enthused over it, because of the lack of producer-distributor enthusiasm in the trade paper advertising, and with the result that his newspaper ads lost their pep and pull. He did not extend himself, as usual, in the billing of the community as he believed that the picture did not warrant it. He showed to a small house on that Sunday evening. After seeing the picture, he immediately took steps to advertise it more fully for the following night's run, but was too late and again the box office had many pasteboards for empty seats.

Mr. Kelly's offer to the solution of this problem concerns two phases of producer advertising: their advertisements, the type and amount in the trade journals, and their press sheets on the pictures.

Barking Up Wrong Tree?

He believes that producers are barking up the wrong tree in placing all their emphasis on the talkies. Wisconsin alone has 350 silent houses that will remain in this status for several years. They should be given clear, concise statements by the producers; not a lot of high sounding phrases such as "spectacle of the age," "two years in the making," "two million spent." These glowing terms mean less than nothing to Mr. Kelly. What he would like to see in the advertisements are: type and theme of picture, settings, appeals, and a statement of the exact rating of the picture in comparison to others. All pictures can-

Irwin Book Tells How Zukor's "Yes" Paved Way to Fortune

Adolph Zukor

Perhaps the most fortunate "yes" ever uttered by a movie magnate was the word of assent which Adolph Zukor, then fur merchant, finally gave to the appeal of one Max Goldstein for $3,000 to buy a partnership in a penny arcade. That was in 1903. A golden stream of pennies rewarded his decision and laid the groundwork for the structure of fame and fortune which Zukor later was to build for himself and his associates in a gigantic motion picture enterprise.

The career of this Hungarian immigrant boy who rose to dominant rank in the nation's fourth greatest industry, is the subject of a romantic story told by Will Irwin in his book "The House That Shadows Built," published by Doubleday Doran.

Modern America with increasing avidity seeks its romance in these recitals of the rise of a commercial enterprise or the career of a captain of industry—thus in its recreational occupations taking pride from and giving admiration to those institutions and individuals who wage a successful battle against obstacles to human ambition.

"The House that Shadows Built" tells an interesting and at times a gripping story of the rise of a human from humble beginnings and in so doing traces an informative thread of history dealing with the growth of motion pictures from a "penny arcade" novelty to an industry involving billions in capital investment and the talents and energies of hundreds of thousands of workers.

The Office Scandal

Greatest Newspaper Story Screened

Reviewed by Jerry Hoffman

THAT description, "greatest newspaper story screened" in the subhead above takes in a lot of territory, but it goes, doubled or redoubled. After seeing it, one admits not only that much, but adds further it's the best picture Pathe has made this year—and that bunch in Culver City have turned out a flock of films which no one would hide his head over.

The odd part of it is that it remained for a German (or is it Hungarian), Paul Stein, with but two years in this country, to make the most real American newspaper yarn without the aid of any so-called technical directors. Stein refused the aid, (at so much per week) of all city editors and newspapermen, went ahead making his own impressions. And what a story! That's to Jack Jungmeyer's and Paul Gangelin's credit. And what a picture! That's to Ralph Block's and Paul Stein's credit. It's to Pathe's credit.

Phyllis Haver plays a hard-boiled "sob-sister" who tries to revive an interest in life and work in a former star reporter who fell to "carrying the torch." In plain words, he was on a long drunk. She, in the process of so doing, falls in love with him, meanwhile unaware that he is mixed up in a big murder case. She has a bet with the city editor, (what a performance Raymond Hatton gives in that character!) that she will be able to break the story. Margaret Livingstone plays the widow of the murdered man who has a love interest in the ex-star reporter. The latter is given a fine portrayal by Leslie Fenton. Dan Wolheim is the man murdered. While I think of it, there's a kid playing the role of office boy whose name I went to the trouble of getting. He wasn't given screen credit, but he deserves it. It's Jimmy Aldine.

There's no hokum about a cub reporter beating the star man to a big story. There's no false atmosphere which any newspaperman or critic in the country can get sarcastic over. It's the most natural city room action I've seen outside a daily's office. There are neither any forced "production value" scenes nor gang fights for the purpose of adding to the overhead. It's simply a fine story remarkably well told.

Phyllis Haver has given some splendid performances for her past pictures. "Sal of Singapore," was among the best of them. As the "sob-sister," she surpasses herself. Raymond Hatton proves that he's a real actor when he is permitted to act. Margaret Livingstone delivers, in fact, everyone and everything connected with the picture does. Even unto the snappiest set of titles one wants to read.

Drawing power: Only stupid exploitation can prevent this from drawing anywhere. Suitable for any and all houses. Exploitation angles: try to get a look at the picture first. There's any number of them to suit any locality. The inside workings of a newspaper are always interesting. The title offers possibilities for great teasers.

Theme: Newspaper story with mystery angle. Romance of a hard-boiled "sob-sister" and a fallen star reporter.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. A Ralph Block production directed by Paul Stein. No release date yet. About 6500 feet when down to footage.

110 Out at First National

Majority of These Are from Exchange Personnel List, but Home Office Is Also Hit

THOUGH it is announced that First National and Warner Bros. will be operated as entirely separate organizations, considerable slashing has been going on in the past week in the ranks of First National employees. It is said the payroll has been reduced in number to the extent of 110 employees during the week. For the most part these cuts have been in the exchanges, though a few were made in the home office of the company since Herman Starr assumed charge as president. Reported among those dismissed is Roy Seery, western division manager, First National exchanges.

It is said that with these reductions the exchanges of First National will remain intact for the time being and will function independently. No further slashes are said to be due in the immediate future. Those who have departed the company are said to have been superfluous to the operating needs. Members of the staff of the publicity department in the home office in New York were the principal sufferers by the slash. Included among those who have departed the First National publicity department, in addition to Jerome Beatty, whose retirement was announced last week, are Lynde Danig, head of the publicity department under the direction of Beatty, and Walter Eberhardt, who was in charge of the house organ and other publicity activities.

First National executives will, in future, pass upon story material submitted in the east, in the same manner as do Warner executives. The First National eastern scenario department was dispensed with two weeks ago.

Noah Beery Claims $1,500 in Suit Against Manager

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Appearing before the Los Angeles county grand jury, Noah Beery, well-known film actor, alleged that he had been victimized to the extent of $1,500 by his former manager, Felix Young. According to Beery's testimony, he signed a contract with Young whereby the latter was to act as his representative on a basis of 10 per cent of the money received by the actor in film engagements.

Beery claimed he was engaged by Lysander Productions for a two-day period, and he informed Young to obtain salary of $1,000 a day. Young, he declared, told him the best salary he could get was $1,000 for two days, together with 10 per cent of the picture's profit. Beery agreed to this.

Later, however, when Beery changed managers, and engaged Grant Dolge to act as his representative, Young informed Dolge that the Lysander agreement was only verbal, it is alleged. Beery claimed he had discovered that the producer had paid Young $2,500 for Beery's work in the picture in full payment, and there was no 10 per cent of profits clause in the agreement.

Pomeroy Leaving Param't on January First

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Roy Pomeroy, technical director and expert on sound, is leaving Paramount on January 1, both parties to the contract which he signed with Paramount years ago, agreeing to cancellation, following differences over salary adjustment which Pomeroy demanded on the ground that he had assumed added work as head of the studio sound department while his original agreement provided only salary for direction of technical effects and the miniature department.

Pomeroy was responsible for the idea and the execution of the sound effects recorded with "Wings" and the direction of "Interference." He is said to own a half interest in all patented devices with Paramount which he invented for production.

Seattle Boosts Wages

An increase of $2.50 for musicians and operators, and an increase of $1.75 for janitors, as well as a six-day week for craftsmen, have been granted by the suburban houses of Seattle.

New Mergers to Follow Victor Acquisition by RCA

Heavy Conferences During Week Expected to Bring Many Theatres and Possibly Big Production Company Into Fold

THE merging of the Radio Corporation of America and Victor Talking Machine Co. adds a tremendous power to RCA's strength in the motion picture field. It is another powerful link added to the chain that has been welded in the past few months, and within the next few days other important additions are very apt to be announced. Heavy conferences have been in progress during the entire week and out of them doubtless will come big announcements.

In addition to the acquisition of Victor, RCA is known to be dickering with independent theatre owners in New York state for approximately 200 theatres, and with important chains in different parts of the country. Negotiations are known also to be rapidly coming to a head with Broadway legitimate producers for the reproduction of their stage successes at the New York studios of RCA Photophone.

Plans Under Way

RCA is known to have agents in all parts of the country endeavoring to close theatre deals and add to the extensive chain that the radio corporation acquired with the taking over of the K-A-O circuit. Announcements of production mergers are also anticipated. E. E. Bucher, executive vice-president of RCA Photophone has freely admitted that expansion plans are under way in every phase of the motion picture field and that new acquisitions would likely be made rapidly by the radio corporation.

The Victor deal is a most important one as it brings under the RCA banner the extensive array of stars who have been contributing their entertainment via Victor records. It makes them available not only for broadcasting, but also for screen material of all varieties. They will be used in FBO productions or those made directly by RCA or any of the company licensees. It assures the radio corporation a steady flow of pictures with which to serve the thousands of theatres now under their control or that will be acquired.

No Surprise

The merging of RCA and Victor came as no surprise as it has been an open secret for the past several months that they were endeavoring to get together. Back in July E. E. Shumaker, president of Victor, said a consolidation of the companies would be a benefit to both and that by such a combination the facilities of each company under one management would work toward greater economy and would lower the cost of production, which in the end could be passed on to the public.

While the terms of the merger have not been definitely announced they are understood to contemplate an offer of one share of new radio common, one share of new radio preferred stock and $5 in cash for each share of Victor common. The complete purchase price is said to be over $100,000,000. It is understood the two companies will retain their individual identities and that Victor's personnel will in no wise be affected by the deal.

It is said that the negotiations take in the development of television, in which both companies are interested, and that eventually a joint cabinet including radio, talking machine and television would be put on the market.

In Conference

Just what progress has been made by RCA with the independent theatre owners in New York state is not definitely known, but they are said to have been called together in conference this week to reach some definite conclusions. Many of these houses are said to be under option for sale to the Fox interests and that Fox from time to time has postponed these options. It is said that RCA is willing to come to terms with the independents as rapidly as these Fox options now expire.

Along production lines expansion in progress has been slower with RCA than have theatre activities. With so many additional artists now available an abundance of production is bound to follow, but further mergers with producing companies seem inevitable. RCA will open its own studios in New York on January 7th, and will rush its production as rapidly as possible, but the rumor persists that one of the big producing and distributing companies will in the near future be within the fold of the radio corporation. Mr. Bucher from time to time has intimated as much, but he invariably refuses to announce possible deals until they are actually consummated.

Warner Theatre Moves Extend Over U. S.

Latest Chain Reported in Negotiation Is Gottesman Enterprises With Houses in New England

WARNER BROS. theatre expansion program seems rapidly to be extending from coast to coast, with rumors afloat that they are in negotiation looking to the purchase of chains in all parts of the United States. In addition to the sixty theatres they are seeking in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland, and the Skouras Enterprises theatres in the St. Louis and Indianapolis territories, they are said to be in negotiation now for the houses of Alfred Gottesman Enterprises, which operates in the New England territory.

During the past week meetings are known to have been held at the Astor Theatre in New York City with regard to the purchase of the Gottesman circuit, which includes twelve houses operating in New Haven, Derby, Conn., Bridgeport, Wooster, New London, Newark, New Jersey, Roselle, Middletown and Norwich, Conn. Warners are said to have offered 55 per cent of the purchase price in cash and the balance in stock, while the Gottesman interests are said to be demanding 70 per cent in cash and the balance in stock. The houses are said to be much desired by Warners and it is thought the negotiations will be successfully concluded in the near future.

While declining to admit that negotiations were in progress for the Gottesman chain, Albert Warner said there was a deal on for the sixty houses located in twenty-five cities of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Maryland. He would neither name the houses nor the cities in which they were located, however. It is thought that this latter deal will be concluded within the next few days.

Spyros Skouras, head of the Skouras Enterprises, controlling theatres in St. Louis and Indianapolis, has been dividing his time between St. Louis and New York. With the acquisition of this chain by Warners, it is said that in the future Mr. Skouras will make his headquarters in New York as the directing head of the Warner theatres throughout the country. It is said his contract with Warners will call for an annual stipend of $150,000. It is also said that William Goldman, who, several years ago, east his lot with the Skouras Brothers, will find a lucrative berth in Philadelphia with the Stanley chain, also recently acquired by Warners. He recently has been in charge of three theatres operated by the brothers in Indianapolis.

J. Reeves Espy is said to be destined for a place in New York City.

Another acquisition hinted to the Warner chain is that of the Fischer-Paramount circuit in the Northwest, according to word from Milwaukee. It is intimated that L. K. Brin may be acting for Warners. He operates the Garden and Majestic in Milwaukee and recently is said to have taken over the Fischer holdings of eight Wisconsin houses and five proposed sites for theatres in a deal which is estimated at $3,000,000. Brin announced he would build a big chain of houses in the middle west.

More Than $15,000,000 for 50 Fox Theatres

*West Coast and Midwesco Plan to Erect New Houses
On Coast and Throughout the Middle West*

FIFTY new theatres, to cost more than $15,000,000, form the new building program of West Coast Theatres, for 1929, as announced by Harold B. Franklin, president of the Pacific Coast circuit. This is taken to be the answer to Franklin's recent New York conference with William Fox, with whom his circuit is affiliated.

The program of expansion will not be confined to the West Coast only but will extend to other parts of the country. Midwesco has plans involving many millions for the construction of several theatres. The future Wesco theatre operations will take in the states of Oregon, Washington, Montana, Nevada, and even, it is thought, Arizona. All of these theatre projects will be built with the exhibition of sound pictures principally in mind, it is said.

Rumors also persist to the effect that several circuits, such as the Schine will align themselves with the Fox theatre forces.

Wesco is now finishing the erection of the new Wm. Fox theatre in San Francisco, to open next summer. A plot of ground has been acquired in Hollywood for a new theatre.

Other theatre projects planned are as follows: Stockton, Cal.—house between Main and Market Sts.; one in Modesto; one in Marysville; one in Visalia, Hanford and Holister; the North Park in San Diego; the 3,000 seat San Diego; one in Spokane; one in Riverside; new Sante Fe Theatre, San Bernardino; one in Redondo, Redlands and San Luis Obispo; new 2,500-seater in Billings, Mont.; one in Great Falls and Butte, Mont.; one in Eugene and Corvallis, Ore.; one in Aberdeen and Centralia, Wash.

In addition 25 houses are planned for other locations.

Theatres planned by Midwesco include:

One to seat 2,000 in Appleton; one at Green Bay; six new theatres in as many cities throughout Wisconsin; one theatre in Milwaukee; to seat 4,500.

The Wisconsin Fox chain is negotiating for the Paramount-Fischer Circuit, involving 12 houses, in Wisconsin. The deal is expected to be concluded at the end of the week. In addition Midwesco is said to be making a bid for three Universal houses in Kenosha, Racine and Sheboygan.

Fox has already acquired six neighborhood houses, Roosevelt, El Capitan, Avenue, Amazon and Casino in San Francisco and Century in Oakland from Ackerman and Harris. Reports persist that Fox is about to acquire the Schine circuit. Fox and Schine are now partners in Springfield, Ohio.

Another Merger Denied by Both Companies

The printed report of a contemplated merger between Tiffany-Stahl and Educational Exchanges, Inc., has been emphatically denied by both companies. E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, says there has never been any talk of such a merger. The same statement was forthcoming from Grant L. Cook, Secretary-Treasurer of Tiffany-Stahl.

Mr. Cook attributed the foundation of the rumor to the fact that Oscar Hanson, former General Manager of Candian Educational, has just been appointed by Tiffany-Stahl to succeed Ed Smith, who has just resigned as general sales manager.

Emerson Quits Equity Post —Gillmore Succeeds Him

John Emerson, president of Actors' Equity Association since 1920, resigned last week. The Equity Council immediately created the post of honorary president and elected Mr. Emerson to the position. The former Equity head is said to be suffering from a throat malady which necessitates moving to a warmer climate. It is announced that he will leave for Palm Beach with his wife in the near future.

Succeeding Mr. Emerson as head of Equity is Frank Gillmore, executive secretary, who has been appointed acting president. Mr. Gillmore is to serve the unexpired term of his predecessor until the annual election in the spring.

More Than 200 Attend Al Lichtman Dinner

The dinner tendered by the Motion Picture Club of New York in honor of Al Lichtman, vice-president of United Artists in charge of distribution, brought out almost 250 men and women. Mr. Lichtman is the founder and first president of the new club. The affair's chief light was the presentation of a silver tea set.

Toastmaster for the occasion was Harry Reichenbach. Billy Brandt was in charge

Publix Leases Eastman Theatre in Rochester

THE Eastman Theatre, the gift-house of George Eastman, prominent philanthropist and film and kodak manufacturer, to the University of Rochester, has been leased for a period of ten years by Publix. Sam Katz, vice-president of the Paramount interests, and Raymond Ball, comptroller of the University, signed the papers.

It is stipulated in the contract that 20 days shall be reserved each year for concerts and three days of each spring for the presentation of opera. The lease also provides that the theatre have available mornings for community events.

Under the new auspices the Eastman orchestra of 80 pieces will be kept intact until the musicians' contracts expire on July 31.

The theatre had a deficit of more than $75,000 last year, it was said.

of the entertainment. An effective gag was staged by Eddie Conrad, entertainer, who gave his interpretation of an East Eide exhibitor.

Among the speakers were John C. Flinn, Nathan Burkan and Sam Katz. On the dais were Mr. Lichtman, Arthur M. Loew, S. L. Rothafel and Paul Guhik. The directors included A. H. Goldstein, James Ryan and Frank Walker.

Sound Production Begun at First National Studio

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—First sound production in First National studios has been started. Heretofore the First National productions awaiting sound and talk sequences were synchronized at the Warner Brothers' studio. "Weary River," the Richard Barthelmess feature, is the first picture to be sounded within the First National studios. Curiously enough, while the sound stages will be completed next week, the first sound production is being done on a stage used for silent productions. Traffic was diverted from about the silent stage and heavy drapes put around the walls.

Laurel, Hardy, Chase and "Our Gang" to Tour

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, Charlie Chase and "Our Gang" are reported slated for vaudeville tours starting shortly after the new year. At this time the Hal Roach studio is to close down, the present period being scheduled to last one month.

The deal between Hal Roach and Harry Langdon calling for a series of short musical comedy subjects is now reported to have fallen through. Langdon is said to be considering an offer from Fox.

A Correction

In a short item published in the December 8th issue of the News, attention was called to a report that "Harry Frankle, manager for F B O, Des Moines, is putting out equipment for talkies." This was in error inasmuch as the report referred to Milton Frankle, Harry's brother.

S. Charles Einfeld

Einfeld in Charge F. N. Advertising, Publicity

S. Charles Einfeld has been appointed by Herman Starr, new president of First National Pictures, Inc., as director of advertising and publicity for that company. He has already assumed the duties of his new office.

Mr. Einfeld is recognized as the employee longest with First National in length of service. He joined the organization nine years ago. During that time he has served in practically all capacities in the department which he now heads.

M-G-M Disbanding Team of Dane and Arthur

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—The star team of Karl Dane and George K. Arthur will be discontinued by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer after production of the one remaining picture to be made for the current year's program. Practically all of the recent Dane-Arthur team pictures have rated well above average, but studio executives decided on discontinuance of the series on account of trouble encountered in finding suitable story material.

"Show Boat" to Open for Run at Carthay Circle

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Universal's "Show Boat," with dialogue and sound, will follow the run of First National's "The Barker" at the Carthay Circle. The latter house operates on two a day policy with $1.50 top. As "The Barker" opened last week, it is expected that "Show Boat" will go in around the first of February.

"Object — Alimony" Last December Release

The last December release to come from Columbia will be "Object—Alimony," which stars Lois Wilson. Scott R. Dunlap directed.

Myers Elected Head of Allied States Ass'n

Resigns From Federal Trade Commission and Signs 3 Year Contract With Exhibitor Body

ABRAM F. MYERS, a member of the Federal Trade Commission and widely known to the industry as presiding officer of the Federal Trade Conference of last year, was elected president and general counsel of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, at a meeting of exhibitor leaders held in Chicago, this week.

Immediately following his election, Mr. Myers wired to Washington, his resignation as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, assuming his new duties as leader of the independent exhibitors, immediately.

It is understood that the headquarters of the Allied States will be located in Washington, D. C., and that Mr. Myers will open offices in that city on January 1st.

The signing of the contract by Mr. Myers comes as a culmination of several years work by independent theatre leaders including Al Steffes, James C. Ritter, H. M. Richey, Col. H. A. Cole and others, who believe that the independents, if they were to have a successful organization, needed a man of outstanding ability, to head their organization, and in Mr. Myers, it is generally conceded that they have such a man.

Mr. Myers has signed a three year contract, with an option of extending the time two more years.

Members of the Allied who were in attendance at the meeting, state that cash contributions and pledges which have recently been secured, assure the financing of the organization for its first year and that no trouble is anticipated in continuing to secure ample funds for future operation.

Those present at the Chicago meeting included: Al Steffes, representing the northwest exhibitors, as well as North and South Dakota; James C. Ritter and H. M. Richey of Michigan; E. P. Smith of Iowa; B. D. Cockrill of Indiana; Col. H. A. Cole of Texas and Herman Blum of Maryland.

Under the terms of the constitution adopted at the Chicago meeting, any exhibitor association is entitled to become a member of the Allied on subscribing to the constitution, thereby assuming obligations and rights of a member, including representation by one member on the board of directors.

It is understood that the Maryland and New Jersey organizations and probably the Wisconsin Association are to become members of the Allied at an early date.

The first meeting of the board of directors will be held in Chicago the early part of January.

The commissioner, who is 39 years old, had had twelve years of experience in anti-trust work with the Department of Justice, culminating in his appointment to the position of special assistant to the Attorney General in charge of this work. For two and one-half years he has been a member of the Federal Trade Commission, the youngest ever to be appointed to the post of chairman.

Mr. Myers was born at Fairfield, Iowa, and studied law at Georgetown University and the University of Pennsylvania. He was also an instructor at the University of Pennsylvania and the author of many articles for law periodicals. His connection with the Department of Justice brought him prominently into such important anti-trust cases as the M. P. Patents case, the Reading Coal case and the American Tobacco Company case.

Pathe Plans Producing Some Feature Pictures in New York Studios

PATHE has joined the ranks of the major companies who will produce feature pictures in the east. Only a small portion of the features will be made in New York, though the number has not yet been definitely decided upon. This was the announcement of Paul Bern, recently named associate producer by Pathe.

The feature pictures will be made at Sound Studios, Inc., an enterprise recently launched by Joseph P. Kennedy, new president of the Pathe organization. The production program is now being mapped and within the next week or ten days it will be determined just what pictures will be made in the east. The move is one of convenience as some of the talent to be used would not have time to make the long trip to Hollywood and return.

N. Carolina Ends Session

Concludes With Resolution Endorsing Program of National Organization

THE North Carolina Theatre Owners' Association in the closing session of its two-day annual convention on Tuesday re-affirmed its allegiance to the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' of America and went on record with a resolution endorsing the National organization and pledging support for its program.

Highlights of the meeting included the address of R. F. (Pete) Woodhull, president of the M. P. T. O. A., who outlined a program for financing the national organization whereby each state organization would contribute $100 yearly to the national body, and the parent organization would have the privilege of billing individual members of each subsidiary group in the amount of $5 a year for conducting a campaign to combat undesirable legislation and to foster the welfare of the exhibitors.

One of the most constructive contributions to the convention was the address of the Rev. William Murdock McLeod, pastor of Pinchurst Presbyterian Church, Pinehurst, N. C., wherein he declared himself as emphatically opposed to federal censorship of motion pictures, saying, "This idea that federal censorship can accomplish more than intelligent and decent public opinion is an insult to the intelligence of the church-going public, and to the public at large."

Charles W. Picquet, of Pinehurst, who has so ably headed the state exhibitor organization, was re-elected to the presidency. H. E. Buchanan, of Sylvia, was chosen first vice-president; U. K. Rice, of Winston-Salem, second vice-president.

The seven directors are as follows: Charles Roth, of Greensboro; S. S. Stevenson, of Henderson; C. B. West, of Clinton; Percy W. Wells, of Wilmington; L. L. Drake, of Wadesboro; W. L. Horn, of Forest City, and H. E. Buchanan, of Sylvia.

Chosen to serve on the Board of Arbitration were L. L. Drake, E. L. Hearne of Albemarle and Harry K. Lucas, of Charlotte.

Hays and Steffes Confer Over Labor Situation

Theodore Hays, contract man for F. and R., and W. A. Steffes, head of the Northwest Theatre Owners' Association, are in New York conferring with labor leaders concerning the situation relating to operators in sound equipped houses and stage houses. It was thought that the local trouble with the operators was nearing a solution but the situation with the stage hands was no nearer an agreement.

Jury Decides Exhibitor Must Pay $3,000

Exhibitors have their troubles, as witness this instance:

A report by a new jury in Supreme Court, Albany, N. Y., last week added to the difficulties of George Roberts, at one time operating the Eagle Theatre in that city, in an action brought against him by Frank Owens, following a fall in front of the Eagle Theatre in February, 1927. A judgment returned by the Supreme Court jury more than a year ago was approved last week with $500 added, following a new trial. The original verdict was for $2,500 in favor of Mr. Owens. This was later reversed by the appellate division and a new trial ordered. Owens alleged that he sustained injuries to his right leg, causing a permanent shortage of one inch, and resulting from the fall caused by slipping on a pile of snow at the corner where the theatre is located.

Max Reinhart Arrives to Make His First Picture

Max Reinhardt, important figure in the theatre world, arrived in New York this week on the S.S. New York. He was met by Lillian Gish, who will star in the film Reinhardt will make at the United Artists Studio in Hollywood. This will be his first venture into the films and Reinhardt is said to have been preparing for it for the past 2 years.

After three days in New York, Reinhart and Miss Gish will entrain for Hollywood and upon their arrival will begin immediate production on the story, which is by Hugo von Hofmannsthal. The script calls for sound effects.

Northwest Theatre Chain Gets 2 More Houses

Deals were closed this last week which gives the Northwest Theatre circuit, after weeks of negotiations, the control of theatres in Minot, N. D., and Hibbing, Minn. J.F. Cubberly, head of out-of-town affairs for the F. and R. Company, handled the deals up to the signing of the papers. The theatres involved were the New Garden, Hibbing, formerly owned by Edelstein, and the Strand and Arcade, Minot, owned by Baasen and Meyers.

Columbia Makes Changes In Sales Staff

Three changes in the Columbia sales organization occurred last week.

W. G. Smith, former branch manager of the Pittsburgh exchange, has been brought in to act as special home office sales representative, which post, also, has been allotted Charles Schwerin. Oscar Bloom, former branch manager for P. D. C., has joined the sales staff of Columbia's St. Louis branch.

Woodhull Views Things That Concern Exhibitor

OTHER problems are confronting the exhibitor and taking more of his attention than the attempts to line-up a new organization of motion picture theatre owners units, in the opinion of R. F. (Pete) Woodhull, who arrived back in New York this week after a swing around the country. The National president of the M. P. T. O. A. declared that he found exhibitor interest intense on such subjects as sound pictures, free shows, labor, legislation, interferenceability, big overheads, and censorship.

Mr. Woodhull addressed the Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois the Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, the Oklahoma and North Carolina unit during his trip and received pledges of allegiance from each, he said.

Oscar Hanson, New Sales Head of Tiffany-Stahl

Oscar Hanson Made T.-S. General Sales Mgr.

E. J. Smith's resignation as general sales manager of Tiffany-Stahl having been accepted, Oscar Hanson has been announced by Grant L. Cook as the new sales chief of the company.

For the past seven and one-half years, Mr. Hanson has been general manager of Canadian Educational Pictures and has also handled the distribution of the Tiffany-Stahl product in the Dominion. He has been in the film industry for more than 15 years, having been connected with the General Film Company, Mutual and Robertson-Cole.

He took up his new duties on Monday, December 17.

Eugene Walter Completes Sound Film for Fox

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, D. C. 20.—Eugene Walter has left Fox, having completed direction of "Friendship," a two reel Movietone subject which he wrote. It required two days' actual shooting. Fox has an option on some of Walter's plays and also for his services.

Seeks Writ Against B. & K. and 17 Distributors

Department of Justice Charges Efforts to "Kill Off" Independent Exhibitors in Chicago Territory

AN injunction against alleged illegal practices in the distribution of motion picture films in Chicago is to be sought by the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., in a suit filed in the Federal Court in Chicago naming as defendants the Balaban and Katz Corporation, Lubliner and Trinz Theatres, Inc., Balaban Katz Midwest Theatres, Inc., Great States Theatres, Inc., Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distribution Corporation, Publix Theatres Corporation, Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., United Artists Corporation, First National Pictures, Inc., Fox Film Corporation, Pathe Exchange, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Columbia Pictures Corporation, Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., FBO Pictures Corporation, and the Gotham Photoplays Corporation.

The First Step

This will be the first step in the Department of Justice's action ordered last week. United States District Attorney George E. Johnson in Chicago will prosecute the action, which charges the distributors and Balaban and Katz with "freezing out" the independent exhibitors of the territory. The petition charges that arbitrary discrimination is exercised between theatres. This action by the Federal Government follows a similar injunction suit filed in the district court by Marks Bros. more than a year ago in which the court refused an injunction.

Announcing the filing of the suit the Department of Justice in a statement declared that "the petition alleges that Balaban and Katz Corporation, directly and through its wholly owned subsidiary, Lubliner and Trinz Theatres, Inc., operates many of the largest and best motion picture theatres in the city of Chicago, and that Great States Theatres, Inc., which is dominated and controlled by Balaban and Katz Corporation, operates most of the largest and the best motion picture theatres in many other cities and towns in Illinois. Balaban and Katz Midwest Theatres, Inc., another subsidiary of Balaban and Katz Corporation, books motion pictures for the three theatre operating corporations and also for 32 other motion picture theatres operated by other exhibitors. The other defendants named in the petition are engaged in the business of distributing motion picture films through exchanges maintained in Chicago, and together these distributors distribute most of the quality product of motion pictures.

"The petition charges that through long term contracts and agreements and understandings the defendant exhibitors have the right to secure all of the best motion pictures distributed each year by the defendant distributors, and that the independent exhibitors are prevented from securing motion pictures which are suitable for exhibition in first-class theatres.

Further Charges

"The petition also charges that the defendant exhibitors, through their great purchasing power, have caused each defendant distributor to enter into contracts providing for the sequence in which motion picture theatres shall be entitled to exhibit pictures, and providing for arbitrary and unreasonable discrimination against all independent theatre operators in favor of the defendant exhibitors."

Tax Collections Lower

Show $215,684 Decrease on Admission for Fiscal Year Ending June 30 Over Preceding Year

ADMISSION tax collections during the fiscal year 1928, which ended June 30, last, were $215,684 under those of the preceding fiscal year, totaling $17,724,952 against $17,940,636, according to the annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, just submitted to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

The figures reported by the commissioner cover the collection of taxes on tickets selling in excess of 75 cents, and the report shows that the greater part of the total, $16,675,419, was collected on tickets sold at the box office at established prices. Other collections under this head, however, included $317,618 on tickets sold at places other than the box office, $3,809 on tickets sold at the box office but in excess of the established rate, $13,241 on leases of boxes or seats in theatres and $714,863 on admission to roof gardens, cabarets, etc.

Tax collections for the fiscal year on tickets sold at the box offices at established prices are shown by States in the following table:

L. A. Theatre Grosses

Little Improvement in Trade Noted; Metropolitan With Clara Bow Feature Leads Again

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Very little improvement in Los Angeles picture grosses was noted the week before Xmas. The Metropolitan was far ahead of all others, with Clara Bow in "Three Week Ends" drawing $32,500. This is the house which has trailed others in Los Angeles for most of the year.

Loew's State, with "Dream of Love," got $24,500. The Carthay Circle did only $14,000 with "The Barker" in its second week at that house, but the management reports a big advance sale beginning Christmas day.

Warner Brothers, for the first 3 days of "The Hometowns," took $7,500. United Artists, with "The Little Wildcat," was down to a total of $9,000 on the week. The Criterion also was way off, with $6,500 the total for the week with "The Wind" as the attraction. Grauman's Chinese took in some $14,000 on the seventh week of the run there of "Noah's Ark."

U. A. Exchange in N. Y. Changing Address

The United Artists Corporation, represented by Harry Buckley, vice-president, has signed a ten-year lease with Abe N. Adelson, president of Film Center, Inc., for a large portion of the sixth floor of the new Film Center building.

R. D. Craver of Charlotte Dies Suddenly

R. D. Craver

R. D. Craver, for many years prominent in political distribution and exhibition circles of the motion picture industry, died suddenly at his home in Charlotte, N. C., at two o'clock on the morning of December 18.

Mr. Craver's illness was exceedingly brief.

He was actively engaged with his business affairs but a few hours preceding his death, which was caused by complications setting in from a stomach ailment.

Practically the better part of Mr. Craver's life has been associated with the motion picture business. He has built many of the outstanding theatres in the Carolinas, was a pioneer in that section of the South and has many times been prominently engaged in opposition to movements which threatened exhibitor welfare. He was also the first holder of a First National franchise in this country. A wife, and a family of five boys and one girl are his survivors.

Talkfilms for Paramount Feature Releases

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20. Talk-film adaptations of one act plays and sketches will provide a number of feature releases on Paramount's program next year. The Paramount story department is now searching for suitable one-act dramatic and comedy playlets that would lend themselves to adaptation as talkfilm features.

The one-act plays are said to be more suitable for adaptation into feature length talkfilms than the three-act drama or comedy. The latter generally runs from an hour and a half to two hours on the stage, while the short play runs within forty minutes.

In transposing the playlet into a talkfilm, the scenario writer is enabled to retain all of the action and dialogue of the play, in addition to having scope and latitude in writing an introduction to the playlet or making additions to build up the quality of the picture version. The playlet itself would consume about four reels, leaving the writer and director a leeway of two or three reels of additional material to be spotted in where necessary. The finished picture could then be held within the regulation seven reels as required by exhibitors generally.

U. A. Studio Satisfied With Progress of Talkies

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—With two weeks production of "Nightstick" completed in dialogue on United Artists recently equipped sound stages, studio officials are elated over results so far attained.

Following completion of "Nightstick," which Roland West is producing and directing, the sound stages will be used for producing Samuel Goldwyn's production "Bulldog" Drummond, and Mory Pickford's first talkfilm, "Coquette." Both of the latter will go into production before the first of the year.

Loew's Inc. Net Is $8,568,162.12

THE asset liability and operating statement of Loew's Incorporated and its 100% subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1928, is estimated by D. Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer of Loew's, as $8,568,162.12, after all charges, depreciation and Federal taxes. These figures compare with $6,737,205.19 for the same period of last year.

During the past year, Loew's did financing via a Preferred stock issue amounting to $14,175,000 on which dividends were paid amounting to $593,125, leaving a balance of $7,975,037 for the common stockholders for this year.

Awaits Information on Walsh Resolution

NO action with respect to the resolution introduced at the last session of Congress by Senator Walsh of Montana, calling for an investigation of the activities of the Department of Justice in connection with the motion picture industry, will be taken by the Senate Judiciary Committee until additional information has been received from the department.

At the request of Senator Walsh the committee on December 15 held an executive meeting at which the resolution was considered but no conclusion was reached and the department was asked to furnish additional data. No time has been set for a further meeting of the committee, pending receipt from the department of the information requested.

First of Academy's Talkie Lectures Completed

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Introduction of lectures and addresses via talk-films is the latest accomplishment of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The completion of the first of a series of vocal films for the use of colleges and other educational institutions and for general exhibition was announced recently by Douglas Fairbanks, president of the Academy. The first speech is delivered by Milton Sills, First National star and ex-member of the faculty of the University of Chicago. It will be given its first public reproduction during the National Convention of Teachers of Speech in Chicago, December 27 and 28. The demonstration is made possible through the cooperation of Warner Bros., Eastman Kodak Co., and Will Hays, president of the M. P. P. D. A. through whom a Chicago theatre will be made available for the convention.

Goulding on Lookout for New Talent

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—Pathe has delegated Edmund Goulding, director and writer, to look for stars and featured players that might prove of sufficient draw to warrant signing on long term contracts. Goulding recently joined Pathe, and is making the talent hunt while waiting for Pathe to get production plans fully worked out. Three stars and at least eight featured players are wanted.

At the present time, Pathe has only two stars under contract, William Boyd and Ina Claire. The latter is practically unknown in the picture field, but has been a stage star for a number of years.

St. John's Long Affiliation

His fifth year as a featured player in Educational-Mermaid comedies is being completed by Al. St. John. The comedian is a product of the Sennett school and his long association with the Educational company is considered a record for a motion picture player. This comedian's latest release is "Hot or Cold."

Charges Ethics Violated

Grand Forks Exhibitor Files Complaint With Trade Commission Charging Overbuying

BENNIE BERGER, owner of three theatres in Grand Forks, N. D., has filed complaint against Northwest Theatre Circuit, operated by Finkelstein and Ruben, charging violation of Rule 14 of the Code of Ethics as drafted by the conference in New York over a year ago. This is the first complaint to be filed under the Code.

Berger alleges that the Northwest Circuit has overbought feature pictures for the purpose of forcing him out of business. He alleges that his competitors have purchased over 100 pictures in excess of requirements for the one house of the circuit in Grand Forks.

It is alleged in the complaint that Northwest has 250 features under contract, with Berger having but 150 features, including Westerns for his three houses. Complainant says Northwest has sewed up the product of Paramount, First National, Warners, Fox and M-G-M, while he has product of United Artists, Universal, Pathe, FBO and Columbia.

It is said that the complaint has been filed with the Federal Trade Commission and from Washington comes the word that any complaint filed with the commission will be examined thoroughly. If the charges are substantiated, it is said action will follow. All complaints are made the subject of a preliminary investigation to determine if they are based upon fact.

S. F. Houses Go To Publix

Granada, California, St. Francis, Former West Coast Theatres Are Taken Over

PUBLIX THEATRES, December 1st, removed control in San Francisco of the Granada, California, and St. Francis Theatres from West Coast. The Warfield Theatre stands alone today as the sole representative of West Coast Theatres in San Francisco, with first choice of William Fox, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and First National productions.

Only first run motion picture productions are scheduled for Publix houses.

Herman Wobber, well known San Franciscan on the board of directors of Paramount Corp., of which company Publix is a subsidiary, is now western distribution manager for Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and will soon be identified with the entire western operation in a most important capacity. R. E. Crabbill is Pacific Coast Division Manager for Publix chain.

Local officials include Charles E. Kurtzman, city manager for Granada; California, and St. Francis Theatres. Herbert S. Polin, assistant to Kurtzman, specializing on advertising; Gardner Wood, publicity director; Sidney Dannerberg, recently arrived from the Publix home office, manager of Granada Theatre; Horton Kahn, house manager of the Granada and assistant to Danneberg; Edward Hussong, treasurer of the Granada Theatre; John C. Smith, San Francisco boy, who has just returned from assignments in the East under the Publix direction, manager of the California Theatre; Tom Lancour, assistant manager of California Theatre; Joseph Frazer, manager of St. Francis; B. Shallenberg, assistant manager of St. Francis; Richard Lucas, treasurer of St. Francis, and Jewett Babar, art director for San Francisco Publix houses.

Interchangeability Fog Blankets Meeting

AFTER discussion that followed a rather disconnected course through the mazes of interchangeability, the general meeting of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, held at the Hotel Astor in New York on Thursday afternoon, was adjourned and the executive committee went into executive session to consider the suggestion introduced by P. A. Powers, representing Powers Cinephone, that the organization would do well to get some legal advice as to whether there was any ground for hoping for clarification of the much-befogged issue through legal action.

The meeting, to which the Chamber invited representatives of all the makers of sound reproducing apparatus in the "big time" producers, was attended mainly by exhibitors and a few representatives of so-called "independent" sound devices. None of the producers sent their representatives officially equipped to speak for the companies.

New Field for Producers in Talkie Sales Chat

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 20.—A newly created field of income for talking pictures via commercial industries was opened last week when the Oakland Motor Car Company officials sent a talking reel from the Oakland factory in Michigan to a convention of Southern California salesmen in Los Angeles. The reel presented A. R. Glancey, president, and W. R. Tracy, sales-manager of the Oakland Company, outlining in talking pictures, details of the new Oakland and Pontiac cars.

"Abie" Suit Up Next Week in Federal Court

Anne Nichols' $3,000,000 damage action against Universal is scheduled to get under way in New York before Federal Judge Goddard next week. The playwright charges the picture company with purloining her "Abie" idea and incorporating it into "The Cohens and Kells."

Ad Survey Reveals Depression

Exhibitor Reports from "Firing Lines" Also Carry Many Valuable Suggestions As to Picture Merchandising

not be the best. Exhibitors do not expect them to be and would prefer the facts, according to Mr. Kelly.

Mr. Kelly also suggests that the material in the press sheets, although it should be enthusiastic, should present several different types of appeal. Most pictures as advertised in the press sheets, pick one type of appeal: love, sex, comedy, actors, etc.

With but one appeal and little general information on the picture the exhibitor is forced to advertise from that one particular angle (unless he has had the opportunity to see the picture before release to his own patrons). In many cases, Mr. Kelly has found that his appeal through newspaper ads, posters and 3-sheets, did not fit the picture as a whole but applied rather to the phase the producer had emphasized and which he felt would sell the picture. Thus, Mr. Kelly says, he has unintentionally misguided his patrons, who naturally look to him as the last word in telling them whether or not he has an exceptional good show.

Exhibitors in the smaller towns cannot escape the personal element of their business, and once they direct their public by false methods, they are through getting the necessary cooperation that leads to the S.R.O. sign.

From Pennsylvania

A representative of the News recently had the pleasure of interviewing B. W. Redfoot, manager of the Arcadia Theatre, Windber, Pa. Mr. Redfoot is a popular exhibitor in his territory, one who is successful and consequently his opinions are valued by his friends.

In the course of the interview Mr. Redfoot deplored the fact that producers are using less advertising space in the trade papers. He stated that he always enjoys reading and digesting the contents of the trade publications, and this interest includes, too, the advertising pages. Heart and soul in the theatre business, nevertheless he reports that the lessening of the advertising in the trade press has to a certain extent slowed down his enthusiasm for pictures. Says Mr. Redfoot: "When I read less advertising, naturally I am less 'sold' on the product which is to come. My being only partly 'sold,' reflects on the box-office in the way of smaller receipts. Publicity is the life blood of any branch of the industry. Nature equipped the lowly hen to announce the arrival of an egg with a cackle. Exhibitor enthusiasm is a factor in the success of the industry."

When we asked Mr. Redfoot what suggestions he would make for the improvement of producers' advertising in the trade papers, he said:

"Less colorful lithographing and self congratulating by the producer and a greater amount of FACTS about the product. After all a trade mark is only as good as its product. Barnum would have been a failure if he had advertised a 'white elephant" and neglected to see that the coat of white paint was put on the elephant before admitting the public to see it. All the publicity in the world would have failed unless the elephant was made to APPEAR white. Most successful national advertising campaigns are based on FACTS and are written in good taste."

Baltimore

Baltimore, Md.—The stereotyped and exaggerated copy that is used now by the producing companies in their trade paper advertising to influence exhibitors to buying their product is sickening and overdone, is the opinion of Frank Price, Jr., manager of the Rivoli, a first-run house here.

"The producers should change their copy," he said emphatically. "The exaggerated phrases that they are using now are overdone to such an extent they mean absolutely nothing to exhibitors and do not impress them in the least."

"All companies have this fault," he went on.

J. Lewis Rome, general manager of Associated Theatres, Baltimore, states that what seems to be the greatest need in trade paper picture advertising at the present time is truthful advertising.

He does not think that the exaggerated statements made in such copy helps in the least but two points that he brought out are: That if honest reviews were published in advertising giving opinions of the pictures rather than clipping out those parts only which favor it, the exhibitors could get the unbiased ideas of what it is about. And, second, in trade paper advertising if suggestions were given as to how exhibitors can put over pictures with the public other than the stereotyped club, newspaper and band tieups they usually suggest, that might help to a great degree.

"I govern myself in buying pictures," he said, "by watching what they have done for the other fellow to a great extent. In this I follow out the key city reports and read the honest reviews about the pictures."

"But this business of saying that a picture has broken all records on Broadway is quite overdone. What the exhibitor wants," he thinks, "is honest reports on the pulling power and not exaggerated statements as to its drawing power according to what the producer thinks."

"Where trade paper advertising particularly helps is in the beginning of the season when I want to know what the companies will have to offer for the coming year."

Cincinnati

Another example of depression at the retail end through what is termed a lack of cooperation is brought to light by an interview with a neighborhood exhibitor in Cincinnati. This particular exhibitor, while admitting that he is generally sold on a majority of pictures, states that he keenly feels the curtailment of merchandising ideas heretofore carried on in trade paper advertising. He further stated that to his mind it indicated an indifference on the part of the producer as to exhibitor's best interests. More advertising, publicity and exploitation will result in increasing receipts for both distributor and exhibitor, he believes.

AMPA Decides on Affiliation With Theatrical Group

THE AMPA held a busy session last week at which it was decided to affiliate with the Theatrical Press Representatives of America and to establish its own headquarters. The clubroom angle was left to be worked out by Paul Benjamin, business manager of the A M P A, while President Harvey appointed a committee of four to meet with the theatrical press representatives.

In addition to these activities a service committee was formed to provide the right men for the right jobs in the motion picture industry. The committee hopes to fill vacancies in all departments of publicity work and urges the cooperation of all companies. The committee named is made up of Walter Eberhardt, chairman; Bruce Gallup, James Milligan, Lou Rydell, Joseph O'Sullivan and Marvin Kirsch.

The following committees were named to handle the AMPA annual ball to be held in New York City on next March 9th:

Executive committee: Don Haneock, Chairman; Hop Hadley, Jack Harrower, Al Selig, Tom Wiley, Lou Rydell and Leon Bamberger; entertainment committee: Lou Rydell, Chairman; Leon Bamberger, Jack Harrower, Alex Moss, Ed McNamee, Hy Daab, Tom Wiley, Dave Bader and Bernard Randall; motion picture committee: Ed McNamee, Chairman; Victor Shapiro, Barrett McCormick, H. E. Haneock and Morrie Rykind; masque and costume committee: George Bilson, Chairman; Jim Milligan, Arthur Eddy and Eddie Finney; decorations committee: Mel Phillips, Chairman; Henry C. Bate, Ted Jaediker and George Hoffman; publicity committee: Rutgers Neilson, Chairman; Ray Gallagher, Mike Simmons and Warren Nolan; ticket committee: Jim Beecroft, Chairman; Bert Adler, Al Selig and P. A. Parsons.

Bert Adler is treasurer.

Theatre Men Interviewed on Sound

Key City Exhibitors Report Valuable First Hand Experiences

jection room to accommodate the equipment are negligible. But the installation of the equipment certainly does increase house overhead, both in the cost of operation and in cost of film service. The Egyptian, for example, pays twice as much for operators in the projection room as it formerly did with silent films, having two men on duty at all times instead of one.

Not only this, but the payments for film rental for talking pictures runs about 50 per cent higher than for silent films, according to Mr. Rosenberg. This applies to shorts, as well as features. The exchanges give no more service for the added cost than formerly. The only service comes from the installation firm itself, whose men inspect all equipment twice monthly and keep it in good condition.

Summarizing the matter from the suburban standpoint, where second run sound films are featured, it appears that the operating cost of the Egyptian Theatre in Seattle has increased about 35 per cent since the installation of sound equipment.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Stanley Company of America is already more than satisfied with the results obtained in the fourteen theatres in Philadelphia and the immediate vicinity in which it has installed sound pictures.

In practically every instance considerable remodeling and alterations were necessary. Booths were widened. Projector locations were changed, and in most of these theatres it was necessary to remove the first two or three rows of orchestra chairs because screens were originally set against the rear wall and had to be brought out to make room for the installation of the horns. In the greater number of the theatres remodeling and alteration costs averaged from $15,000 to $20,000.

Coupled with this expense has been the cost of the sound devices themselves. These costs, however, have been pro-rated over a period of 104 weeks, but nevertheless represent a substantial addition to the weekly overhead. Atop of this is the cost of the synchronized news reel, which cannot be substituted in weekly expense for the silent one, for which long term contracts have been made. Record costs, and rentals for sound pictures have in every case increased the general weekly overhead from forty to fifty per cent.

As an offset against this, however, there has been an average increase in box office receipts of approximately one hundred per cent. Increased income was clearly demonstrated in one house where the receipts the first two days after the sound devices had been installed were larger than they had been for the entire previous week.

What is looked upon as an almost needless expense, too, is the employment of a well-paid organist, who sits idly for hours in the theatre, but who is retained solely because of existing agreements with the union.

In the case of comedies where the sound effects have no real merit, and do not enhance the entertainment value of the picture, the records have not been rented. Only where the incidental dialogue or noises heighten the comedy gestures have the records been used.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Foresight played in the construction of the projection booth in the Metropolitan Theatre made possible the necessary installation for the presentation of sound movies at perhaps a minimum of expense and without the disruptive influences of remodeling operations. The Metropolitan has had two years' experience with sound pictures, opening with "Don Juan." The cost of making the change from silent drama to the talkies, everything included, was figured by the management at between $25,000 and $30,000. That is for the so-called de luxe houses using the larger instruments.

"We had no mechanical difficulties in changing over," declared John J. Fayette, of the Metropolitan Theatre.

"We did not have to remodel the house at all because of the sufficient amount of space on the stage. The horns were permanently placed on movable towers. When the house is to be used for stage presentations these can easily be taken off the stage."

"Sound installation can and should be of material benefit to the small-town thea-

Pathe Plans "Porgy" as Vehicle for 1929-30

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—"Porgy," which was originally purchased for production by Cecil B. De Mille under the P. D. C. regime, will be made early next year by Pathe. E. H. Griffith will direct it, making the third all-colored feature production to emanate from Hollywood studios on the 1929-30 programs. An all-colored cast will appear in it.

"Hallelujah" is M-G-M's contribution to the colored race glorification, and "Hearts of Dixie" is from Fox.

Contract Stipulates Star Must Learn English

THE five-year contract signed last week by Lily Damita, the French actress whom Samuel Goldwyn brought to America to co-star in "The Rescue," stipulates that she learn English within six months. This is believed to be the first time in pictures that consideration of a foreign actress' ability to speak lines have been included definitely into a contract. It is due, of course, to the talking pictures.

tres that cannot afford large orchestras, and, in most cases no music at all," continued Mr. Payette. "The pictures that have met with phenomenal success from the box office standpoint are the 'talkies' although there is still a big opportunity in the de luxe houses for silent pictures with regular symphonic orchestral accompaniment, with subsidiary entertainment of short subjects of talking movies.

"All the money we were spending for the de luxe shows, stage presentations, bands, etc., we can use for other purposes. This saving will run from $5,000 to $7,000 per week."

HARRISBURGH, PA.—John P. McCarthy, manager of Loew's Regent Theatre, said:

"The most important advice I can offer with regard to installation is concerning the placing of the horn. It should be placed where it will create the best illusions.

"Fifty per cent of the success of presentation depends on proper volume. Much of the success of sound movies depends upon ability of the operator to control volume. The more crowded the house, the more volume required. Too much volume, which many exhibitors are furnishing with the mistaken impression that the greater the volume the better the reception, destroys the illusions which sound pictures are intended to present.

"The only remodeling of our house necessary was that of building an addition to the projection booth to take care of the sound apparatus.

"Absolutely, sound installation has increased overhead expense of our house because sound pictures are more costly, and two extra men are employed. It was necessary to employ the two additional men in the booth at wages higher than those our two old operators were receiving. Then it was necessary to raise the wages of our old operators so that they were equal to those of the new men."

Paul Bern Favors Screen Stars Over Legitimate Players

PAUL BERN, recently named associated producer of Pathe in New York for a week or ten days to map a Pathe production program and in search of screen talent and stories. It is likely before he departs he will sign a stage star and two or three movie stars to contracts that will take them to the Pathe studios in Hollywood.

Unlike most producers Mr. Bern is not partial to the stage performer in talking pictures. He is under the impression that the average motion picture actor will be more easily trained to talking picture technique than will the legitimate player.

"Technique on the talking stage is entirely different than that required for the screen," said Mr. Bern. "The average stage player has been trained too long to act to an audience. He is acting to the person in the first row and he is acting to the last seat in the gallery. He is too much inclined to orate.

Don't Need Orators

"What the talking pictures need is not oration, but a natural, well modulated voice that at no time attempts to act. The difference is that the screen actor does not have to read his lines for the gallery and the front row. We can follow him closely with the microphone and the more naturally he talks the more effective is the recorded result. A man talking with his head in his arms resting on a table can talk right into a mike placed directly beneath him. He can talk naturally without raising his voice and when the dialogue is reproduced it will carry as well to the galleries as it does to the first rows.

"Your legitimate actor finds it hard to accommodate himself to such circumstances. His training has all been along different lines and it is hard to break him of old habits; in fact it is harder to rectify his faults than it is to teach the screen actor just to be natural in reading his lines. I do not say that this applies to all stage stars. There are some whom I think would screen perfectly and at the same time would take naturally to reading lines into the microphone.

The Sales Angle

"Another angle to be considered is that of the sales force. It is easier for the film salesman to sell a film player than it is a stage favorite. Movie audiences are entirely different than stage audiences. They will accept a stage player on the stage, but they do not want him or her on the screen. Many of the favorite players in New York are little known in outside territories and it would consequently be harder to sell their film productions."

Predicts Radical Change

Mr. Bern expressed the belief that there would be radical changes in sound picture technique in the near future. He thinks the ideal picture in the future will be the one that opens with just sufficient dialogue to lay down the plot of a feature; then would follow the silent story until a line or two of dialogue might strengthen a dramatic climax, and then it might terminate with a few minutes of dialogue.

Production plans will be mapped while Mr. Bern is in New York until perhaps the middle of next week. He will then return to Hollywood with three or four signed contracts for players and stories and final details will be arranged on the coast.

While in New York Mr. Bern made a trip to Ithaca where he addressed Cornell University in one of the Goldwin Smith foundation lectures on the subject, "The Moving Picture Speaks." The Goldwin Smith Lecture Fund established in 1910 provides for a number of occasional lectures at Cornell University in the course of the year by men distinguished in their fields.

Seattle Sound Convention Draws Exhibitors

Practically all Portland, Ore., film row moved to Seattle during the past week to the "sound" convention, where they had an opportunity of listening to the various new inventions, in an endeavor to decide which would fill their needs to the best advantage. While there they also took part in a discussion of anti-block-booking and Government investigation of Department of Justice attitude toward the Paramount-Trade Commission ruling and government control. Both Governor Hartley and Mayor Frank Edwards gave interesting talks on these big subjects.

M. A. Chase Heads New Synchronizing Firm

Maurice A. Chase, vice-president of Excellent Pictures Corp., has been made president and general manager of Motion Pictures Synchronization Service, Inc., a new company with headquarters in New York City.

Mr. Chase is also president of Chase Pictures, Inc., independent film exchange in Buffalo. He also served as vice-president of Selznick Pictures, and later as Universal's foreign sales manager.

Ray Griffith Signs for Christie Talkie

A contract to make one short feature dialogue play was signed this week by Raymond Griffith. Al Christie, who signed him to the agreement, will star him in "Post Mortems," a 100 per cent talking film, adapted from the story by Charles Devine. The picture will be included on the Paramount program, and will go into work in the near future.

Sound Effect Records

Are at Last Available to Theatres Using Phonographic Music

We offer you 12 double faced sound effect records containing over 30 different sound effects with which you can actually cue your pictures. These records are electrically recorded and manufactured of high grade materials, bringing to your theatre the realistic sounds which your patrons have been anxious to hear. These records contain the following sound effects:

Sleigh bells, steamboat whistle, cheering of carnival crowds, gun shots, auto horn, crash of falling buildings, siren, realistic storm record with wind and thunder effects, 2 train records—both freight and passenger—approaching—passing—and receding, recorded from actual train sounds, fire apparatus actually taken from a big city fire department and containing siren—bells—etc., hand clapping and applause, crowds cheering as at a football game, gong, cuckoo, horses hoofs, 2 realistic airplane records both with orchestral background and without—containing drone of motor and shriek of falling planes, church bell with orchestral background, etc.

These records are the greatest box office sensation of today. We can make immediate delivery, price per set of 12 double faced records $21.00. Wire or write.

Exhibitors Relate Sound Experiences

Reports Contain Many Valuable Suggestions for Prospective Buyer

ALBANY.—Owners of motion picture theatres in Albany, N. Y., having sound equipment are rather reticent as to advising other exhibitors on the advisability of installing similar equipment. Uly S. Hill, managing director of the Stanley chain of houses in Albany and Troy, prefers to let the exhibitor settle the question for himself and stated that after all, it was the public who made the decision.

The Mark Strand and the Mark Ritz, both first run down town theatres in Albany, and both belonging to the Stanley company are the only ones thus far to have installed sound equipment. Proctor's Grand and Harman-Blecker Hall in Albany, both of which are Proctor houses, are installing sound equipment and expect to have the same in operation soon. In Troy, the Troy Theatre has sound equipment and Proctor's Fourth Street house is also installing sound apparatus.

If crowds can be taken as any criterion as to the success of sound pictures, then there is no question as to the advisability of the exhibitor installing the apparatus just as soon as he can get it.

According to the managers of the Mark Strand, Mark Ritz and Troy Theatres, there were no real problems encountered in the projection booths in installing sound apparatus. Neither was there any remodeling of the houses necessary. Overhead has gone up, on account of the demands of the union that an extra man be placed in the booths.

BALTIMORE.—Those exhibitors planning to install sound mechanism in their theatres should take several facts into consideration according to exhibitors who have been interviewed in Baltimore.

First: An extra operator is needed in the projection room; Second: Sound synchronized pictures have practically lost their pulling power with the public and it is full talking pictures that they want at present which the companies seem unable to give.

J. Louis Rome, president of the M. P. T. O. of Maryland and general manager of the Associated Theatres Corporation of Baltimore, speaking for the latter organization said that the exhibitor must be sure that the projection booth is large enough to handle the extra work and to accommodate two men.

While no remodeling was necessary for the installation of the equipment in the Apollo, Capitol or Broadway Theatres controlled by his company, Mr. Rome said he found that it was necessary to employ an extra operator at each of the three theatres to be sure of good projection. This is particularly due to some of the reels only running four or five minutes.

C. W. Henderson, business manager for the Frank H. Durkee Theatrical Enterprises, operating a number of film theatres in Baltimore and vicinity of which four, the Belnord, Grand, Boulevard and Arcade have been equipped with sound mechanism, said they had practically no problems to solve for their projection booths but in some instances the screen had to be moved forward on the stage to make room for the horns to be placed back of it.

The overhead expense, apart from the cost of installation, according to Mr. Henderson, has been increased by the amount of electric power used, by the extra man employed at each theatre as an assistant operator and in handling the expressage of records from New York and Philadelphia, whereas in the past all shows came to Baltimore from Washington.

A service charge is paid every week and the equipment manufacturer has an engineer in Baltimore who inspects the equipment if any thing goes wrong and fixes it immediately unless he has to send away for parts.

Mr. Henderson seems to think that those exhibitors contemplating installation of equipment had better lay off for one season because there are not enough first class full talking pictures being made at the present time.

MILWAUKEE.—The Modjeska Theatre, a pre-release Midwesco house with a capacity of 2600 located on the south side of Milwaukee, has been using Vitaphone and Movietone equipment for several months with very satisfactory results.

Fred Brown, manager of the Modjeska, believes the success of sound apparatus is in the hands of the operator. "If you have skilled, efficient operators in the booth, you have no problems to solve. The few difficulties which may arise the operators can adjust almost immediately."

The Modjeska is constructed with an unusually large balcony. The acoustic properties of the theatre were such that no rebuilding or re-arrangements were necessary with the installation of sound machinery. It was necessary to enlarge the booth to some extent. This enlarged booth had to be entirely re-equipped. The new sound equipment also necessitated the services of an additional operator.

The overhead expense for a house the size of the Modjeska is not excessive. It has been increased by the sound apparatus to some extent however.

The sound equipment manufacturer services the machinery at regular stated intervals and maintains engineers in the city who may be called at any time specific trouble with the machinery arises. An engineer of the equipment company trains the operators in the theatres where equipment is installed and spends one week or more with the operators during the projecting of pictures at regular performances.

Although the house was not built especially for this equipment, engineers found that but few alterations were necessary for satisfactory installation. It was necessary to enlarge the projection booth.

The installation costs were heavy, with the reduction in orchestra costs more than offsetting the increased pay of the operators. No increase in admittance price was made and the house is one of the best paying ones in the city.

Mr. Johnson also states that he receives the greatest co-operation from both the Western Electric and Electrical Research engineers, who make an inspection of equipment on the average of every three days, and during the past three weeks have, after the six months' operation made mechanical changes on both the booth equipment and stage wiring, bringing the entire apparatus up-to-date.

It is the opinion of the management that standardized equipment only should be installed, and not be sold as interchangeable equipment. Also recommends that the most experienced operators be employed, and prefers those who have run many short subjects and their work checked before being allowed to run longer films.

Fraser Visions Future of Talkies

Harold Lloyd Official Sees Their Possibilities as Practically Unlimited

By WILLIAM R. FRASER

General Manager, Harold Lloyd Corporation

THE outlook facing the motion picture industry on the threshold of 1929, has an entirely different hue than in any previous year of its existence. Not even the most gifted clairvoyant can safely predict just what will happen during the approaching year, in the way of screen development.

Silents Will Stay

That the talking picture is here to stay, is, of course, a foregone conclusion. Whether the vogue will be for hundred per cent talkers is another proposition. This no one can be assured of. Hundred per cent talking pictures, nor talking pictures in any form, cannot eliminate the silent picture, if their action must be interpreted in the cramped area they thus far have been confined to. The scope of the microphone must take in the same territory covered by the camera lens. The camera range must not be limited by the ability of the microphone to record the voice. That to me is the greatest problem the talking picture has to overcome right now, to be an unqualified success.

The Third Dimension

On other sides we again hear rumblings of the definite discovery of the third dimension in pictures. To me, stereoptical pictures will mean more to the continued appeal of the screen than any other single factor. Combined with the voice, the possibilities of third dimension films are virtually beyond conception.

American producers are alert to meet every shifting whim of the public, whether it be in the United States or in South America. Today the hundred per cent talker is THE thing. Tomorrow its the picture which has talking only in its last two reels that wins acclaim, and is immediately accepted as the proper way to handle the talking situation. Next week all this may be changed again. However, there is one infallible guide for picture producers to follow, and that is to make their eye entertainment capable of standing on its own legs, regardless of dialogue or sound, for the primary appeal in motion pictures always will be through the optical organs.

Harold Lloyd's plans for talking pictures

"Noise Morgue" Latest at M-G-M Studio

A "NOISE MORGUE" is the latest in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio laboratories.

The odd collection of sound recordings was the result of extensive experiments conducted by Douglas Shearer, chief sound technician, and includes the pounding of horses hoofs, booming of navy guns, airplane motors, deluge of waters, police sirens, fire gongs, falling of rain, howling of whipping gales and all other sound effects that might be used in synchronizing feature pictures.

Among the most unusual records on file is the wail of a three-day-old baby, the shriek of wind through the ailerons of a falling navy plane, snores of a sleeping man, rat-a-tat of machine gun bullets spattering upon a pavement, and a complete football game recorded in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

have been given the most mature consideration. His current production, as yet untitled, will be filmed in the same manner he always has worked, will be previewed in silent form, and will have to meet the same standard of the past before he finally goes back and remakes those scenes in which dialogue and sound will be incorporated.

DeForest Establishes Sales Phonofilm Headquarters

The General Talking Pictures Corporation has established headquarters in four of the twelve zones into which officials of the company have divided the territory and authorized distribution of the DeForest Phonofilm installations have opened their various offices.

E. S. Manheimer and George Mooser, distributors in New York State and New Jersey, have opened quarters at Film Row, New York; they will also have a sales room at the offices of General Pictures in New York and will establish branch offices in Buffalo or Albany. P. Harrison, Jr., distributor for the southern states, has opened quarters in each of the branch offices of the Harcol M. P. Industries, Inc., of which he is president. Jesse C. Fishman, distributor for Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, western Pa. and W. Va., has his office in Cleveland and branches in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Detroit. Ben Amsterdam, who has the eastern territory, has established his office in Philadelphia.

Moviephone Machine Uses Spool Principle

The Moviephone, which is to be manufactured and sold by Sound Pictures, Inc., New York City, and which operates on the spool principle the spools being wound with a magnetic wire which travels through a special made magnet, is the newest of the sound devices to make an appearance. Dr. S. M. Baruch, who is credited with having invented a depth bomb that was used by the government in the late war, is the inventor of the newly patented sound device.

The principle of its operation is really telephonic magnetism and the spools of wire are said to operate much in the same fashion of the film spools in a modern projector. Its inventor claims that perfect synchronization is achieved by his machine by eliminating a portion of the wire to correspond with the loss of the film.

The company organized to manufacture and market the device is headed by Arthur E. Christie, president; Nathan Lurie, vice-president; William S. Remenyi, treasurer; Dr. Baruch, general manager. The company, which calls the device the First Moviephone, plans to distribute it on a royalty or weekly payment basis with a synchronized set of spools for any nationally released picture the exhibitor might book.

The Warings and Barbara Bennett Signed by FBO

Warings Pennsylvanians, record, radio and vaudeville aggregation of musical artists, and Barbara Bennett, daughter of Richard Bennett and star on stage and screen, have been engaged by FBO for "Stepping High," the temporary title of an all-talkie for the 1928-29 schedule.

The production gets under way in the near future at the Sound Studios in New York under the direction of Bert Glennon, who made "Gang War." Supervision will be in the hands of Robert Kane.

Pathe Finishes "Missing Man," First All-Talkie

"The Missing Man," the first 100 per cent all-dialogue film produced by Pathe, was completed last week at the studio of the company in Culver City. "Listen, Baby," will be the second talking feature.

Weiss Bros. Plan to Produce Talkies

IN an alignment with General Pictures Corporation and DeForest Phonofilm whereby it will make its debut in the talking picture field, Artclass Pictures, controlled by the Weiss Brothers, is planning to start a series of tests in order to perfect its organization as a preliminary to the production of the 1929 production schedule.

Artclass plans to make both shorts and features and in both types of films to incorporate dialogue throughout. The "Craig Kennedy" stories, of which the company has screen rights, is believed by Artclass to be suitable and appropriate for its talkie program. They are now dickering for the services of a star experienced in stage and screen work for the lead in its picture series. Six full length dialogue features and 12 three-reelers have been scheduled so far, the first to appear about December 21.

Completed productions will be available to exhibitors, it is said, via the sound on film or the disc methods. Artclass is going ahead with its original schedule and will finish all pictures before announcing the output for next year.

New Screen Stars Via the Talkies

Potential Box Office Bets Among Hollywood's Influx of Stage Folks

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20. The much-discussed era of new star-building, a direct result of talking pictures, has been started in the various studios.

The common impression, since the vogue of dialogued productions, has been that only such players who make good in talkies will occupy the screen firmament of the future. Events of the past few months and stories published exclusively in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS prove that this applies only to a small minority, and that the average standard screen players will continue successfully.

There are, however, a number of new personalities who are rapidly coming into prominence at theatre box-offices as a direct result of talking films. Classed with these are also many who were formerly important in filmland and lost out in recent years. Only since the inception of talkies, have they returned to the screen from tours in the theatre. Such people seem scheduled, on the strength of performances in recent talkers, to attain greater film importance than ever before.

A list of players, imported from the stage on the West Coast, who the producers believe will be added to the regular film stars because of their ability in talking pictures, is given herewith. Some of the names were signed by the studios before talkers became as important as they are. It is owing directly to performances in talking pictures just made, that the producers believe they are the "sound-stars" of the new future.

Paramount and Fox have more such personalities than the others. At Paramount, screen personalities imported from the stage whose importance increase with talking pictures are Ruth Chatterton, Nancy Carroll, Maurice Chevalier, Phillip Holmes, Frederic Marsh and Jack Oakie.

Fox points with pride and faith to Mary Duncan, Helen Twelvetrees, Marguerite Churchill, Sylvia Fields, Paul Muni, Charles Eaton, Lumsden Hare and Warner Hymer.

Universal has Kathryn Crawford and John Boles. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's greatest sound expectations in new personalities are Charles King and Bessie Love. The latter, they say, will be greater than ever before on the strength of her performance in "Broadway Melody." King also makes his sound-screen debut in that.

All of Warner Brothers' best sound-film bets are from the stage. Al Jolson, Edward Everett Horton and Pauline Frederick are under contract for several pictures. Signed for only one, but with options for additional pictures, are George Arliss, Sophie Tucker and Ted Lewis.

Pathe has Robert Armstrong, Russell Gleason and Eddie Quillan. United Artists have Eleanor Griffith and Harry Richman for one picture with options.

Only 6 of Paramount's 40 Contract Players Have Not Talked

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Further evidence that the average motion picture player has not been affected thus far by the increasing production of dialogue pictures is shown in the fact that 34 of Paramount's 40 contract players will have spoken parts in pictures by the end of December. In last week's Motion Picture News, a complete list of contract players in all studios was given, proving that very few film personalities have lost out in the past year.

Paramount's list is unique inasmuch as only two of the 40 players were imported on the West Coast from the speaking stage. These are Ruth Chatterton and Frederic March. There are some others, such as C. P. Heggie, who were signed in the past, but such contracts do not affect the status of Paramount's West Coast people.

Of the six Paramount players who have not spoken in the films, three are already scheduled for speaking parts and the other three will have spoken within the next few months. By December 27, when "The Wild Party" and "Innocents of Paris" will be started, the names of Clara Bow, Maurice Chevalier and Jack Loden will be added to those who talk. The only Paramount players who will not have recorded their voices by the end of the year are Richard Dix, Adolphe Menjou, Esther Ralston, Robert Castle, Neil Hamilton and Lane Chandler.

Dix, Menjou and Miss Ralston are slated for talking pictures. Dix's first will be "Nothing But the Truth," starting the first of the year. Menjou's next is also to be dialogued, although reports state Menjou insists he will not talk. Ralston also will talk in her next.

Wampas Baby Star Check-up Shows 7 of 13 Last Chosen Have Made Headway

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Seven of the thirteen Wampas Baby Stars elected in February, 1928, are still under contract to studios. With the annual agitation for new Wampas stars now under way, further survey reveals that only six have advanced their screen careers to any great extent since election. If six out of thirteen make good, it will be considered an exceptionally high average by the Wampas. The seven still under contract to studios are Sue Carol, Lupe Valez, June Collyer, Gwen Lee, Ruth Taylor, Audrey Ferris and Dorothy Gulliver.

The six now in the free-lance class, who were under contract when elected to Baby stardom, are Lina Basquette, Molly O'Day, Flora Bramley, Ailee Day and Ann Christie. Of this sextette, Lina Basquette seems to

Tin Pan Alley Shows Hollywood a Trick

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—An eastern music publisher recently made a quick dash to the coast to negotiate for the exclusive publishing rights to several theme songs being written for a super-special sound picture. He was willing to go the limit to obtain the rights, and expected that he would have to pay a bonus to the film producing company to make the tie-up.

After a preliminary discussion with studio executives, he found them unfamiliar with the music publishing business and general practices. When the contract finally was closed, it provided that the film company pay the publisher a bonus of $12,000 for publishing the numbers; with the music man congratulating himself on the fact that he had saved $10,000 which he was prepared to give as a bonus on the contract, in addition to separating the producer from $12,000.

Talkies Have Little Effect on Extras

Central Casting Bureau Statistics Show Increase in Their Salaries

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20. —Statistics compiled by Dave Allen, head of the Central Casting Bureau, show that talking pictures have had little effect on extras and the amount of money paid to that class of players. While there were 20,000 less placements during the past year than the same preceding year, the average daily pay checks for 1928 were bigger than those issued in 1927, according to Allen. He attributes this to the fact that while fewer extras were called for, a better class was employed.

Allen's figures for the first ten months of 1927 show there were 272,347 placements for which producers paid $2,223,442.80; while for the corresponding period in 1928, there were 240,119 placements, for which $2,140,744.11 was paid. The average daily wage for 1927 was $8.16, while for 1928 it was $8.91, indicating, Allen says, a better class of people being used. The total shown here makes it 32,228 less in 1928 than in 1927. However, Allen believes that placements will pick up during the next two months which will bring it down to 20,000 less than last year.

Wampas Baby Stars Make Good Headway

have advanced further than the others.

It is the custom of the Wampas to give an "Achievement Cup" at their annual ball to the Baby Star elected two years before who has accomplished most. The list of stars and their accomplishments since 1927 is not very promising at this writing. Unless one does something sensational between now and February, 1929, when the cup will be awarded, the Wampas will have a difficult time in singling out one individual.

The 1927 stars were Iris Stuart, Adamae Vaughn, Sally Rand, Helene Costello, Martha Sleeper, Natalie Kingston, Rita Carewe, Barbara Kent, Frances Lee, Gladys McConnell, Patricia Avery, Sally Phipps and Mary McAllister. Of these, the only names still under contract to studios, are Martha Sleeper, Natalie Kingston, Sally Phipps, Barbara Kent and Frances Lee. The others have either left pictures, or are free-lancing. Out of pictures are Iris Stuart, Sally Rand, Adamae Vaughn.

St. Clair and Paramount Separate

Mal St. Clair and Paramount came to an open split last week, with St. Clair leaving the studio. That he intended to do so was published in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS some time ago. For several weeks St. Clair and studio officials have been arguing over story material. The final break came after "The Wild Party," Clara Bow's next starring picture, which Mal was slated to make. It was taken from him and assigned to Dorothy Arzner.

Dotty Jottings

By Jerry Hoffman

ASUIT charging Cecil B. How Money Is Spent

With Caddo Productions leasing practically all available airplanes in Southern California for "Hell's Angels," air travelers on the coast who have been in the habit of renting small planes for quick trips up and down the coast were forced to resort to train service.

Caddo had fifty planes from every commercial airport in Southern California for eight weeks at a reported overhead of $20,000 weekly. The completed scene representing a mass airplane attack in the clouds, will run about fifty feet when finally cut into the picture.

Denny in Talk Films

Sound and dialogue will be used in all the Reginald Denny productions. His last three productions are now being synchronized under the direction of Eddie Cline. These are "Red Hot Speed," "His Lucky Day" and "Clear the Decks."

"Hoot" in the Air

"Hoot" Gibson is a western star who will take to the air. His next production is an original called "Birds of a Feather," in which Ruth Elder will be leading lady. Arthur Rosson will direct "Hoot" after a separation of three years.

New Paramount Talkers

Paramount is preparing "Russian Ballet" as an all talk film with musical numbers and dances to star Baclanova. Oliver H. P. Garrett is writing story and adaptation. "Night Court," an original story by Samuel Ornitz, will be produced by Paramount as an all talk film. Gary Cooper and Esther Ralston are slated.

George Cukor Signed

George Cukor, eastern stage director, has been signed by Paramount and is now enroute to the coast. Cukor will spend several weeks studying film production methods, and will then be assigned to direct an all talk picture.

Arthur Caesar Directing

Arthur Caesar is directing "Women Are Like That," a Fox Movietone short with Sharon Lynn and Armand Kaliz featured. The picture is adapted from a one act play written by Caesar.

Lupe Valez Loaned

Lupe Valez has been loaned to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by United Artists for Lon Chaney's production, "Where East Is East." Jetta Goudal, who was supposed to appear opposite Chaney, will not be in the cast, due to a hitch in negotiations. At present, Estelle Taylor is most likely to play the role.

Keane and Whitney

Robert Emmett Keane and Claire Whitney, who have been touring vaudeville for the past few years, will return to pictures shortly. They are reported to have signed with the Warner Brothers to make a series of feature length comedies, somewhat similar in character to those featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew some years ago.

Pictures Versus Shopping and Sickness

Broadway Presents Strong Line-up in Face of Conditions

NEW YORK CITY.—Fortified with strong attractions to offset the annual Xmas shopping slump most of the larger Broadway houses with the popular priced shows and a majority of those in the $2 class came through in very fair shape considering the odds against their doing so. In addition to heavy department store competition there is a great deal of sickness about town and health officials have generously broadcast their advice to avoid, as far as possible, places of public gathering. But in face of all this business was pretty good—good enough for the pre-Xmas brand, anyway and the current week sees three holdovers, two with a very fair week's record and one held in the face of poor business.

Of the four big houses the Paramount and Capitol made the best showings. As predicted in this column last week Clara Bow's "Three Week Ends" (Par.) had its effect on the slump that this house fell into several weeks ago and attendance again struck the old money-making gait. Changing of masters of ceremonies appears to be a regular thing at the Paramount these days. Bennie Krueger has replaced Frank Fay.

The Capitol squared its shoulders for the fray with "White Shadows of the South Seas." This house held its head up all week with this special which had already put in a good run at the $2 rate. It will stay for another week in face of satisfactory business.

Roxy took a gamble with Sovkino's "End of St. Petersburg" (Hammerstein) and it's safe to state that Mr. Rothafel is about the only one along the street who would take a chance on booking a picture of this type into a 6,200-seater. The picture had already played for several weeks as a special, drawing a trade that generally patronizes pictures of this type and this fact coupled with the lack of popular pull and Xmas trade conditions gave the big house a rather poor week. In spite of all this the Russian revolution film is being held another seven days and predictions are that it will skid still farther into the red.

The Strand also had their strong man booked—"Lilac Time" (F.N.), which had coaxed many a $2 bill away from the customers during its special run. It did pretty well for the week, hardly well enough to justify a holdover but it's getting it just the same. At the Rialto, "Behind the German Lines" (Ufa-Par.), which did so well the previous week, German patronage strongly in evidence, felt the depression, contrasting the first week's attendance with the second. "Abie's Irish Rose" (Par.), with its brand new voice, will succeed the German war film on Saturday of this week. The Rivoli did fair enough for the week with "Revenge" (U.A.), and after spending Xmas this one will give way to Vilma Banky's "Awakening" on December 28.

Considering the amount of rent and overhead at the Colony it cannot be said that last week's engagement of Pathe's dialogued "Show Folks" made any profit for this house. Film not so hot and conditions were bad. No particular strength is reported for the "Viking" either, which is holding forth at the Embassy for the holidays.

The Astor is still going along well with "Jimmy Valentine" (M-G-M) and after five weeks of very fair business, "On Trial" (Warner talkie) will depart to let Fannie Brice's "My Man" (W.B. singing and dialogue) in Friday, current week. "Interference" is still doing well, feeling the depression a bit, at the Criterion, and First National's dialogued

"Barker" is pulling nicely at the Central. "Four Devils" (Fox) is scheduled to leave the Gaiety this week after a very fair run. "The Singing Fool" held up well in face of business conditions.

Asked if the Hippodrome had become a second-run house for Broadway attractions the K-A-O office offered a denial. At any rate, "Submarine," "Outcast," "Drag Net" and Clara Bow's "Three Week Ends" have had or will have their week's stay at this house.

Kansas City Houses Have Fair Business Despite Flu Epidemic

KANSAS CITY.—An epidemic of influenza, which was widespread in its scope, exacted a heavy toll from Kansas City theatres, but was not expected to extend over a very long period. Despite the loss of hundreds of regular patrons, most theatres enjoyed fair business under the circumstances, due to the fact that many out of town Christmas buyers were in town.

"The Awakening," at Loew's Midland, did a fair matinee business all week, but the nightly attendance was short of the usual mark, which also was the case at the Pantages, where "Nothing to Wear" was the feature picture. "Beware of Bachelors," at the Royal, did slightly better than any of the other first run houses, as the title of the picture attracted hundreds of women and girls, who were in the majority at all performances.

"Prep and Pep," at the Globe, did less than normal business. "Lonesome" did a good business at the Uptown, it being the first talking picture to show at that house. The novelty of a talkie, however, forced many a patron to place an extra handkerchief in his pocket as a safeguard against his "flu" and come along.

Nothing out of the ordinary in the way of exploitation was done by any of the theatres, newspaper and billboard advertising remaining about the same with one exception, that being the Uptown, which used a slight increase in newspaper advertising.

"Singing Fool" Continues Prosperous Run in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS.—"The Singing Fool," at the Mid-Town theatre, Olive street, just west of Grand boulevard, continued to play to record business during the week and seemed destined for an indefinite run.

The Grand Central closed its run of "On Trial" on Sunday, December 16, and the house was shut down to undergo improvements in the way of redecorating, etc. It will have a new Grand Opening on December 22. "On Trial" did nice business but not up to what it should have, considering the dramatic quality compared with some other sound films that have been real box office knockouts.

At the Missouri theatre "His Private Life" was the screen offering and, aided by the personality of Eddie Peabody, had a big week.

The bill at the Ambassador was very nautical. Dick Barthelmess and Betty Compson were all at sea in "Scarlet Love," while Ed Lowry's stage offering was "House Boat." However, frankly, the stage show was a few knots ahead of the picture from an entertainment point of view.

"The Awakening," with Vilma Banky at her best, was the offering of Loew's State, and apparently had a satisfactory week's run.

The St. Louis theatre, in conjunction with five acts of vaudeville, offered on its screen "Captain Swagger." It has a rather thin plot but some real character acting.

The Capitol, at Sixth and Chestnut street, showed "The Perfect Crime."

Seattle Reports Only Average Week

"Show People" Does Best Business Among First Run Theatres

SEATTLE.—Just an average week at local houses last week, with the palm for gross probably going to the Fifth Avenue Theatre with "Show People." Opinion was quite divided on this film, but the names of the supers attracted the crowds. Haines always draws well, and Davies was acceptable, at least to most patrons. Business was very good.

The Seattle Theatre, once again, let the stage bill put the show over. Fanchon-Marco's novelty "Up in the Air" Idea scored a very noticeable triumph, and eclipsed the film, "Adoration." The latter was a typical Dove film, a suitable program attraction for a house that has a strong supporting bill. Business was good, but not capacity by any means.

At the Music Box Theatre, "On Trial" continued to play to very good business in its second week. This isn't a sensational box office film that keeps them standing in line for hours like previous attractions, but it does hold up very well and the house is well filled at all performances. Good supporting Vitaphone and Movietone acts. Business very good.

At the Blue Mouse Theatre "The Woman Disputed" ended a two-week engagement to average business only. This one didn't stand up very strongly with the patrons, and the two-week gross was just moderate in size.

The Coliseum Theatre featured "Win That Girl" and did a very fair little business on this program release. Even at 25c this house is not being flooded with patronage, so business was acceptable and not much more than that. The same thing may be applied to the Embassy, where "Driftwood" was the screen attraction. A local stage revue was an added box-office magnet, but business has been just about average.

Pantages had a better than average week with "Companionate Marriage" on the screen. The title attracted added business, and the film seemed to stand up pretty well. At the Orpheum, "The Haunted House" was the screen attraction, but the big business registered was due, not to the fair film, but to the personal appearance of Lita Gray Chaplin as the headline attraction.

Illness, Holidays Hurt Des Moines Business

Des Moines.—The pre-holiday slump was apparent at all the theatres and they are undoubtedly feeling the results of a siege of illness which has been fairly general.

"Show People," at the Des Moines, was considered a good show, although Marion Davies has not been considered a big personal draw heretofore. Clara Bow, who generally draws them in at the Capitol, in her "Three Week Ends" did not do so well. The stage show was mediocre.

At the Strand, "Me, Gangster," Fox feature, did well but not as good as it might have done. The last half of the week was "The Head Man," a First National film with Charlie Murray, did fairly well.

Oklahoma City Reports Exceptional Week

Oklahoma City.—Oklahoma City first run theatres have enjoyed good business for the past week without exception. Receipts seemed to have reached a steady trend, with no unusually big business reported and no bad spots.

The Capitol offered as its feature picture Vilma Banky with sound accompaniment. Miss Banky gave a very good account of herself and business help up very nicely during the week.

"Scarlet Seas," starring Betty Compson and Richard Barthelmess, did good business at the Empress and "The Cop" starring Louise Fazenda and J. Farrell MacDonald, also received good business at the Liberty.

The Criterion enjoyed a nice week's gross

Albany Business Survives Usual Slump Expected Before Holidays

ALBANY.—As a general thing the motion picture theatres of Albany and Troy figure on playing to smaller crowds during the weeks immediately preceding the holidays. This year, however, the situation has been reversed to the extent that business is holding up in fine shape at all of the first run houses in the two cities, while the residential theatres state that business is but little off from normal.

The Mark Strand might have done better during the past week with a picture other than "Moran of the Marines," which was roundly criticized by the newspaper critics. Despite the unfavorable criticism and the holiday season, there was a line up in front of the box office nearly every night last week and the management expressed itself as well satisfied with the week. In addition to the feature, the theatre broadened its program to the extent that three Vitaphone acts rather than two were given together with an "Our Gang" comedy in sound.

The Mark Ritz in Albany did a good business, but "The Battle of the Sexes" did not appear to with "Someone to Love," starring Charles "Buddy" Rogers, and the National Players, 11th week playing "The Gorilla."

Patsy Ruth Miller pleased 'em at the Victoria, and the Orpheum's business was good with vaudeville and feature picture "The Perfect Crime," featuring Irene Rich and Clive Brook.

please as well as many of the recent pictures shown at this theatre. The Clinton Square in Albany had a fair business with "Queen of the Chorus" and "Beware of Blondes." Proctor's Grand used "His Private Life" for the picture end of its program.

In Troy, the best bet last week proved to be "The Air Circus," running at the Lincoln, and preceded on the opening day by heavy exploitation. This theatre is using exploitation of late more than in the past and if results are to be taken as any criterion, there will be more exploitation by the Stanley company in its group of houses in Albany and Troy than has taken place for many an odd month.

The Troy theatre found only normal business with "Four Sons." Proctor's Troy theatre used "Companionate Marriage" and appeared to be able to draw them in. Subsequent run houses in Troy declare that business might show some pick up although the managements as a rule are not complaining to the extent of other years.

Fair Patronage Despite Unfavorable Conditions in Ottawa

OTTAWA.—Mild influenza and Christmas shopping did their worst in Ottawa, Ontario, during the week of December 10, with the result that theatre patronage was only fair all around. The influenza was more of a scare than anything else, but the people were not taking any chances and stayed away. Every type of picture was offered but they fared about the same.

A "peach picture" was "Adoration" at the Centre theatre, the peach being Billie Dove. Everybody liked it, but the one objection was that it was "another Russian."

"The Awakening," starring Vilma Banky, at the Regent theatre, was a sweet and spectacular romance, but it suffered in comparison with "The Woman Disputed," a recent Regent success.

D. W. Griffith's "The Battle of the Sexes" at the Imperial had the tongues wagging. Some thought Griffith had gone wrong in putting out such a feature, but others saw many of his deft touches in a modest production. It was a good picture—but not great.

Poodles Hanneford and his big time circus act meant quite a bit to "The Circus Kid" at B. F. Keith's theatre. It was a popular story of the big top all through and one liked Helene Costello for her portrayal.

Much variety was offered at the new Avalon theatre with "Ben Hur" playing first half and "While the City Sleeps" during the last three days. It was the fourth local run for "Ben Hur." 'Nuff said. Lon Chaney drew substantial business.

Dorothy Mackaill played "Lady Be Good" at the Columbia theatre, but the vacant stare in front of the theatre indicated that they did not want her bad. Crowds were only fair at the Fern for Sally O'Neill in "Loveborn."

Indianapolis First Runs Have Off Week

Indianapolis. Business was "off" last week for first run houses in Indianapolis. A city-wide wave of influenza, unfavorable weather and pre-Christmas activities kept crowds away from picture houses.

Managers reported the week "very bad." The wave of respiratory diseases crippled the staff of several houses.

"The Desert Song" at English's played to capacity houses all week, capturing a share of the movie business. "Just Married," at the Indiana, did average business. Other houses had attendance below normal. "Outcast" was at the Circle; "The Midnight Taxi" at the Apollo, and "The Awakening" at the Palace. Neighborhood business was bad.

Cleveland Good Under Poor Conditions

Threatened Epidemic and Christmas Fail to Hurt Box-Offices

CLEVELAND.—Contrary to all the rules of the game, the motion picture theatres which were offering unusual attractions succeeded in drawing very good business even though it was two weeks before Christmas. Added to this, there was considerable newspaper space devoted to a threatened flu epidemic. In previous years, either one of these conditions would have been sufficient to register a decided fall in the box-office barometer. But the total average of the first-run theatres was good.

"On Trial" played to capacity attendance at every performance all week at the Allen. This was given first place by local critics among talking pictures and W. Ward Marsh, photography critic for The Plain Dealer, included it among his Year's Ten Best Pictures.

"Singing Fool" closed its sixth week at the Stillman in a blaze of glory and will continue one week more, which will be its final week, having broken both attendance and endurance records.

"Companionate Marriage" at the State, did not prove to be the sensational attraction that was expected of it. Business was good for this season of the year, but the verdicts of patrons were not enthusiastic. This picture was rated as just fair popular entertainment.

"Lonesome," a simple tale told with charm, and put on with a tremendously successful doll-dressing contest, did very well at the Hippodrome.

"Scarlet Seas" was moderately successful at Keith's Palace Theatre. Business was average, and opinions were pretty well agreed that Barthelmess was not at his best in this rough tale of the sea.

"The Little Wildcat," an average picture made amusing through judicious use of talking sequences, did just fairly well at the Cameo.

"The Scarlet Lady," very Russian in flavor, attracted considerable business at Keith's East 105th St. Theatre the first half of the week, while "Phyllis of the Follies" was sufficiently entertaining to keep the week's average pretty steady.

"Masks of the Devil" and "Varsity" divided honors at the Park, where both pictures played their first subsequent run engagements. Business was better the first half of the week. However, being an uptown house, it was seriously affected by the spreading flu epidemic, which threatens to close the schools.

Legitimate theatres had strong enough attractions to draw business in spite of the heavy Christmas shopping. "The Command to Love" did very well at the Hanna, and "The Vagabond King," playing a return engagement at the Ohio, had satisfactory business.

Neighborhood motion picture theatres were hard hit. Christmas shopping and flu hit these houses and the result was unfortunate.

Pittsburgh Business Big During Past Week

Pittsburgh.—Loew's Penn had a big week's business with "The Woman Disputed" and Public stage unit "Crimoline vs. Jazz." Norma Talmadge's popularity is waning, yet this film pleased fairly well.

The Stanley had an exceptionally good week with "On Trial," a "talkie," which made a big hit with the audiences.

The Grand had "The Man Who Laughs," a powerful drama which brought better-than-average business.

"Lonesome" went over exceptionally well at Loew's Aldine, where a nice week's business was enjoyed and the audiences seemed enthusiastic.

When "The Barker-Karpis" rage breaks loose. One of the exciting scenes in First National's filmization of the play wherein Milton Sills and Betty Compson participate in a bit of action.

"Show Girl" did a nice business at the Regent for the week. Some of the wise-cracking titles were really funny, while others went over the heads of the audience. "Beware of Bachelors" at the Olympic got fair business.

"Revenge," one of the poorest pictures of this or any season, got just the kind of business it deserved at the Liberty for the week. The Cameraphone did fair with "Show People."

"The Power of Silence" at the Alhambra got average business.

Buffalo Theatres Report Good Business

Buffalo.—Business in the Buffalo theatres the last two weeks went to the Buffalo and Great Lakes.

Clara Bow, starring in "Three Week Ends" at Shea's Buffalo, brought good business. "The Red Dance," with Dolores Del Rio, was a success and was well attended for the week.

Christmas Shopping and Flu Scare Put Crimp in Baltimore Receipts

BALTIMORE.—Xmas shopping probably had a great deal to do with the slump in business at the first-run theatres during the week beginning Monday, December 10. And perhaps this was aided somewhat by the flu scare and inclement weather.

Despite this, however, Loew's Century had a very good week with "Someone to Love," co-featuring Charles Rogers and Mary Brian, with a Loew Publix stage show.

The all-talking Vitaphone feature, "The Home-Towners," co-starring Richard Bennett and Doris Kenyon, proved a very good business getter at Warner's Metropolitan.

The Keith-Albee New Garden went along with fairly good business through the week with Jack Major in his second week as the vaudeville headliner and the feature picture "Freedom of the Press."

"Blindfold," while a very good sound picture, only did a less than fair business at the New theatre. Strange to say, this picture seemed to be liked better than "Me, Gangster," but still it did not do a better business.

"Waterfront" went over very good at the Rivoli. It was offered as a sound picture, and appealed greatly to audiences.

"Outcast," starring Corinne Griffith, proved a good pulling attraction at Loew's Stanley, with sound. Miss Griffith did decidedly her best work in this film.

"Show People," costarring Marion Davies

Lafayette Theatre offered "The Perfect Crime," co-starring Clive Brook and Irene Rich. This one scored with the fans. Business was very good at Shea's Hippodrome, the silversheet feature was "The Battle of Sexes." Alice White in "Show Girl," the headliner at Shea's Bailey Theatre, attracted big attention in that section, and brought in fair business.

Kensington Theatre screening "The Docks of New York" made a great change in the box office receipts after playing. Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" was played at the Victoria and made a great hit. Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, who are co-featured in "Waterfront," will be featured at Shea's Kensington, and it is hoped for a good showing.

The Kenmore Theatre offered "Fazil," with Farrell and Nissen, and did very good business. "The Patriot" did not bring in much at the Plaza.

Neighborhood houses were way off again, but are expected to pick up after the holidays.

Tampa Houses All Report Satisfactory Take

Tampa.—All the pictures used by Tampa theatres for the opening of the week seemed to have plenty of "It" as they all pulled nicely and gave every house a very satisfactory Sunday. The Victory ran up the largest gross for the day with "The Red Dance" featured, three Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News. King George was seen and heard in this latter reel and was featured in the billing. A good show and good business all week.

"West of Zanzibar" pulled nicely for the Tampa the first half. Though the receipts were not up to the record established by Chaney in some former productions, it was satisfactory. "Wind," featured the last half, did not do so well. Receipts hardly up to average. Sound pictures open at this house Sunday.

"Romance of the Underworld" started the week in good shape for the Strand. "Husbands For Rent," and "Marked Money" were the other features used, both drawing just about average business.

and William Haines, was transferred from Loew's Century to Loew's Valencia, upstairs, and it did a fair business at that house. This show was aided again by large publicity and advertising space in the News and Sunday American, Hearst newspapers here.

The Lewis Mack stock company at the Hippodrome, does not seem to be going so well and therefore that theatre had a poor week with "Craig's Wife."

"Bondage," the foreign production, offered at the Little theatre by the Motion Picture Guild, while an excellently well done production, pulled only poor to fair business.

New Orleans Hangs Up Banner Week

Cold Weather Fails to Check First Runs In Record Business

NEW ORLEANS.—Despite one or two days of excessive cold and inclement weather, downtown first-run theatres of New Orleans did more business than at any time during the past six months.

Loew's State Theatre, where "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was the screen feature, did the biggest business of the past year. Huge crowds waited in line for hours to get into the Canal Street playhouse to see this Universal production. This playhouse has a few hundred balcony seats for colored patrons. The business done was the biggest in the history of Loew's State.

Unlike many other cities, there were no howls or protests against the showing of the epic of slave days.

"Show People," with Marion Davies and William Haines, was the new Saenger attraction and did the next best business of the week. It was the picture that clicked for this house as the stage show was not up to average.

At the Liberty Theatre "The King of Kings" was shown at popular prices for the first time and despite the fact that it had its local premiere at the Tulane Theatre here about two years ago, drew well. It was presented with sound effects.

"Lonesome" was the Tudor talking picture and went over big. This house is the home of talkies. Four acts of Vitaphone vaudeville were offered in conjunction with the feature.

"Show Folks," with Lina Basquette and Eddie Quillan, was the Orpheum attraction and was responsible for whatever business this playhouse did.

The Palace Theatre featured "The Chorus Kid," with Virginia Brown Faire and Bryant Washburn in conjunction with a musical comedy, but the management credits the film with drawing business to this theatre.

Saenger's Strand did a soaring business compared to the previous week with "The Port of Missing Girls." Business was above average.

"The Docks of New York" had its premiere at the Saenger a few weeks previous, but the Globe drew well despite this fact. Neighborhood and suburban theatres report business as being on the increase since the coming of winter.

Christmas Shopping Hits Minneapolis Houses

Minneapolis.—Potential movie-goers were rather busy doing their Christmas shopping last week, and many of them couldn't be bothered with going to the theatre. That fact, coupled with the fact that there were few outstanding attractions in town, probably accounted for the fact that business was not all that the exhibitors could have desired at this period of the year.

"The King of Kings," which was road-showed at the Metropolitan last year for a couple of weeks, came into the State and did a very good business, but not sufficient to warrant keeping it another week.

Corinne Griffith in "Outcast" was only a fair attraction at the Minnesota, and "The Toilers," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Jobyna Ralston, didn't create much of a riot at the box office. The Hennepin Orpheum was showing Lon Chaney in "West of Zanzibar," and while the Chaney name may have drawn in quite a few people, the picture was off, as most everyone who saw it agreed.

Pantages found "The Apache" a fairly good drawing crowd, while the Lyric did a rather brisk business with Jack Holt in "The Avalanche."

Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Disputed" drew the crowds in satisfactory manner at the Grand, a second-run loop theatre. Among the neighborhood houses, the Granada did well with "Women They Talk About," the Rialto with "The Lion and the Mouse" and the Lagoon with "Show People."

Pre-Christmas Apathy Makes Business Poor in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE.—The pre-Christmas apathy in the show business has hit Milwaukee theatres. Business was very dull throughout the week and managers are looking forward to much the same kind of business for next week. Too much competition at this time of the year they say, from the gift laden stores. All theatres experienced the let down in activities so the reason is evidently not to be found in the pictures offered or their exploitation.

"White Shadows in the South Seas" finished a two weeks' stay at the Majestic where it played to very good houses. "The Hometown-ers," at the Garden, drew very slim houses throughout the week. "Sunrise," at the Strand, is holding its own and is doing fairly good business. "Fazil," at the Wisconsin, was not the drawing card it was hoped and houses were just moderately good. "Dry Martini," at the Merrill, just managed to get along. Business poor.

"The Wedding March," at the Alhambra, which was given a little more than the usual advertising, started the week well and kept up fairly good averages for the balance of the week. "Someone to Love" was offered patrons at the Orpheum. Here business was just fair. Moderately good houses were the lot of the Riverside, where "Show Folks" was featured.

Neighborhood houses are struggling along, many of them have resorted to offering dishes and glasses to women patrons. Some are offering chances on furniture to bolster up receipts. This week was just another of poor to fair business.

"Women They Talk About" did just about that amount of business at the Oriental and Tower. At the Uptown, Modjeska and Garfield, "Beggars of Life" was offered to very slim houses. The Egyptian presented "Freedom of the Press" and advertised it as first Milwaukee showing. With three acts of "Chicago" vaudeville the program succeeded in drawing fair houses. "Out of the Ruins" did fairly well at the Milwaukee and National.

Cincinnati Managers Satisfied With Results Under Poor Conditions

CINCINNATI.—Although the diversion of both time and money to other channels occasioned by the holiday season has made itself felt to some extent at majority of the Cincinnati houses, yet, considered as a whole, business is better than it was during the corresponding period last season, and managers say that if it does not fall below its present level they will be satisfied.

The Albee, featuring Sophie Tucker at the head of an otherwise good vaudeville bill, and showing "Adoration" on the screen, enjoyed an unusually good patronage for the week, in fact, it was better on some nights than was the attendance for equally strong programs earlier in the season.

"Wings," at the Lyric, showing at popular prices with sound and music, did a highly satisfactory business, especially considering the fact that the picture was road-showed earlier in the season at the Erlanger Grand Opera House just across the street from the Lyric, where it ran for several weeks to capacity at every showing. The picture will be held over.

The Capitol, with "Mother Knows Best," with Movietone and Vitaphone, had a very satisfactory week, which, however, was not one that will go down in history as a record breaker.

"Captain Swagger," at Keith's, sound and music synchronized, succeeded in maintaining a rather steady flow of customers, which is also true of the Strand, showing "The Red Mark."

The Palace, where Menjou in "His Private Life" was the screen underline, together with an aggregation of pleasing acts, had an exceptionally good week, which, at this house, is generally the rule.

The neighborhood houses are not declaring any extra dividends on account of box-office returns for the current week, despite the fact that many of them offered attractions quite above the average for their theatres.

"Shop Early" Movement Helps Harrisburg

Harrisburg, Pa.—Although in other years approach of the Yuletide has had an adverse effect on the business of the Harrisburg theatres, no serious slump had been encountered thus far this year, with Christmas less than two weeks off. One theory to explain this is that the "shop early" movement has sent the gift buyers into the stores far in advance of Christmas, so that they have more time as the holiday is drawing near to visit the movies.

Consistently good business was done all week at Loew's Regent, where the main film attraction was "West of Zanzibar," starring Lon Chaney, Lionel Barrymore, and Mary Nolan. The play was pronounced by local critics to be

Geraldine

Mild Tale of Young Love

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

EVIDENTLY there wasn't much to the Booth Tarkington story from which Pathe produced this harmless movie of the qualms of young love. It is a light, little piece all the way and, while not so good for those sensitive souls, is pleasant enough entertainment for the fan who is not too critical. It is a program picture and one that's not very strong at the box office.

Eddie Quillan, Pathe's ambitious young star, has the first male role. Featured with him is Marion Nixon as the girl whom Eddie turns from a drab to a bright, sprightly thing. There is a third party, Gaston Glass, with whom the girl is infatuated. But Eddie proves his worth in the end and it is he who capers down the home stretch with the girl upon his arm.

Unpretentious, Eddie and Marion portray their roles of adolescent lovers with youthful verve. They make out pretty well when you consider the amount of action in the story. There's very little.

Drawing Power: The picture needs push and plenty of it, too. Most appropriate for second run and vaudeville houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up the Tarkington name, the cast, the dancing, the prohibition raid and dance contest in the story.

THEME: Young man is hired to transform colorless girl to charming butterfly. During his labors, she is unmindful of him, being in love with an indifferent lawyer, but the young feller shows his quality and the girl eventually falls for him.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. To be released, Jan. 15, 1929. Length, 5,959 feet. Director, Melville Brown. Author, Booth Tarkington. Adaptor, Carey Wilson. Scenarists, George Dromgold, Peggy Prior. Editor, Barbara Hunter. Titles, John Kraft. Cameraman, David Abel.

The Haunted House

Exciting Mystery Story

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THE mystery play as a screen vehicle is made very attractive by the weird sound effects that can be employed. They make it even more blood-curdling than the stage play. Fortunately for this one the effects are unusually good as the story needs a bit of bolstering up. It is rather a weak tale which becomes somewhat monotonous through repetition. There is too much a sameness to it throughout.

Here is a whole cast searching through a haunted house for $500,000 that has been secreted there by the wealthy uncle of the family, who has forbidden any of the family entering the house. They do not even wait for his demise before disobeying the order. It is then just a succession of encountering supposed ghosts, with the weird slamming of doors and other grotesque effects that send a chill down the spine the first time each is revealed.

Chester Conklin and Thelma Todd are the featured players and they do well enough with their material, but the comedy element in the story is of a type that does not show Conklin to the best advantage. There are a few real humorous situations, but the picture will have to stand up under its mystery element rather than the comedy.

Drawing Power: It is the type of play that has a popular appeal and its effectiveness is materially added to with the addition of sound. Any wired house should do good business with it. Exploitation Angles: The search for the hidden gold, weird effects, the good cast.

THEME: Wealthy uncle of a large family is being slowly poisoned. He calls all expectant heirs together, hands each a letter with instructions not to open it. They all disobey and find the wealth is hidden in the haunted house. After harrowing experiences the uncle appears and bestows the fortune upon the right pair.

The Danger Rider

Average Western, with Comedy

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

HOOT GIBSON appears in an ordinary, hum-drum western, which, if not equipped with comedy snatches, would be pretty much without any of the things that fans crave in westerns. It looks plainly as if Hoot were kidding the everlasting themes, burlesquing the usual "bad man" angles and making fun of "the grand open spaces" honored times innumerable in films of western calibre. Perhaps this is as it should be and in the case of this western its comedy is its foremost asset.

You've heard of the story before: a girl running a ranch and employing convicts thereon in the hope of reforming them. When one of the convicts starts some monkey shines, Hoot is on the job as the girl's protector and though she thinks him to be a crook she discovers finally his deep and manly character. All of which is old stuff. Hoot has dressed it up.

Drawing Power: For the houses that always find a demand for westerns. Exploitation Angles: The usual procedure for exploiting a western.

THEME: Westerner, portraying role of "bad man," protects a girl whose ranch is overrun with convicts and wins her.

"Camping Out"

(Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

MUCH fun is supplied by Donald Haines, the freckled face kid and a fine cast of players that make up the troupe in this third number of "Smitty and His Pals Comedies," produced by Amedee J. Van Buren. When Van Buren hit upon the idea recently, of adapting for screen purposes, the internationally popular newspaper cartoon strip "Smitty and His Pals" from the pen of Walter Berndt, he surely did strike a natural. The popularity of the cartoon, plus the sterling work of the players humanizing the strip, and some real comedy gags, combine to make something for the exhibitor to shout about. This third release in the series paces along on the same high level of entertainment set by its two predecessors. The story relates to the adventures of Smitty, Herby, Pa, Ma, and the Boss, while on a vacation camping trip in the woods, with many laughs being offered in the endeavor of these city-bred folk to get close to nature. George Marshall director. A sure-fire short-comedy film for presentation in any type of house.

"Trail of '98"

Clarence Brown's "Trail of '98," M-G-M special, which had run engagements in Los Angeles and New York, has been cut down to eight reels for general release and has had synchronized musical accompaniment and sound effects added. Release in regular picture houses is slated for January.

"Shadows"

(Universal One Reel)

THIS reviewer has previously commented on the novelty and real entertainment value of the Universal series of single-reelers known as "Laemmle Novelties." These films all contain clever little plots, and are brought to the screen by competent players. They should certainly lend spice to any theatre bill.

In "Shadows," the newest number, two lovers, sitting on a bench outside a private estate, are suddenly horror stricken by a tragedy unfolded in shadows on the shade of a nearby window. A group of men stealthily appear, money is involved, an altercation takes place and a gun is drawn. Then darkness until a light appears in a second story window. Another shadow, this time a woman screaming. Again a light downstairs and the shadows reveal a fight, the fleeing men and one still figure.

The terrified young people summon the police and investigation proves that Bill, owner of the house had taken some friends home for a card game, the supposed altercation merely a friendly argument, the gun a trick cigarette case. The shadows upstairs occurred when Bill tried to filch some change from friend wife's purse, getting caught in the act. The fight downstairs was wife breaking up the party.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Hold Your Horses"

(Universal Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

THE Mike and Ike team again appear in another of their Stern Brothers-Universal comedies, and offer their usual amount of laughs. There is enough of the gag and story element in this two-reel comic, to rate it a berth on the average program.

Mike and Ike had been quite successful in devising ways and means of soothing unpaid housekeepers, but they hit a snag at their latest hangout, and are bounced out with little ceremony. Wandering down street, the boys meet two pretty dames, and soon forget their troubles, when the girls suggest they all go horseback riding. At a saddle shop, Mike and Ike rehearse on a wooden horse, and lose some of their enthusiasm, when they receive a rough tossing around. The pair are let in on a deal more trouble, upon arriving at the riding club. They are thrown from their mounts so many times, that the girls become tired picking them up, and finally give them the air with a merry ha! ha!

"The Mail Man"

(Pathe One Reel)

HERE is an up-to-the-average Aesop Film Fable release. The animation is good, and several new bits of pen work have been injected. Old Farmer Alfalfa is seen this time cast as post-master of Fablesville. He sends his trusty carrier, Milton Mouse on a dangerous mission delivering a pouch of registered mail. Along the route, Milt meets his sweetie, Rita, who is flying a kite, and later is attacked by two desperate bandits. A hawk flies off with the money bag, the bandit cat pummels Milt, and then runs off with his girl friend. The important action of the cartoon is presented in the efforts of the mouse to get back his stolen sweetie and the mail, and also to bring the thieving animals to justice.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

"Dumb—and How"

(Educational One Reel)

THREE funmakers lead the comedy antics in this Cameo film. Under the direction of Jules White, Eva Thatcher, Bert Young and Harry Allen have produced a fair combination of fast action and giggles. Bert Young and Harry Allen are comparative newcomers to comedy, but they get over well. Eva Thatcher is a veteran in Educational's comedies, and her characterizations are always good.

Eva and Bert Stevens are just retiring when the feminine member of the household reminds Bert that the house next door was robbed last night. And at about the same time, Harry is trying to navigate his way home. When he sees a goose loose, he starts after it, chasing it to the Stevens house. It flies in a window, knocking over a vase. The Stevens, upstairs in bed, of course, think it is a burglar and start downstairs heavily armed.

Harry, in the meantime, has climbed inside after the goose. It walks on the piano keys and then turns on the radio. Bert fires at the radio when he hears a shot come through the ether from a scene that is being broadcast. This wrecks the radio. Harry's hat falls on the goose, and the Stevens have an exciting ten minutes chasing what they think is a burglar. Many other exciting things happen before peace is again brought over the household.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Director Clarence Badger and Neil Hamilton make whoopee at the expense of Clara Bow during the filming of Paramount's "Three Week Ends"

"The Claim Jumpers"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by George J. Reddy)

A NEW issue in the Universal series of western featurettes, starring Edmund Cobb, this two-reeler pictures the usual "Ranger" background, tied up with some hard-fighting, hard-riding and romance. It is sure-fire stuff for the kids, and of course will click with other western fans.

Cobb, as Fred Hale, Forest Ranger, who for months had been trailing a band of claim jumpers, arrived at Dad Adams' cabin just as John Burr and his gang, who had wounded the old man in a gun fight, were riding off at top speed. Fred was dressing the old man's wounds when his daughter, Alice, steps in.

They decided upon a clever ruse to trap Burr. Fast riding, fierce fighting and the co-operation of the Rangers at Headquarters helped them to carry out their well laid plan and capture Burr, the despicable claim jumper.

"Pathe Review No. 51"

(Pathe—One Reel)

INJECTING a subject containing more or less of a "news" twist into an educational reel, serves to bolster it up considerably, and this seems to be the method now being used in the compilation of Pathe Review. The high-light scenes of this issue are corralled under the heading of "Ring Memories." Pictorial interviews have been obtained with such prominent squared circle heavyweight ex-champions as James J. Corbett, James J. Jeffries, Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. These scenes alone are enough to sell the public the idea of seeing a show. Other interesting scenes are "A Really Dry Country," and "Yorktown."—GEORGE J. REDDY.

Key City Reports

one replete with mystic thrills of a type that is bound to grip an audience.

Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel, in the Vitaphone talking picture, "Tenderloin," drew well at the Colonial, while Clara Bow, always popular in Harrisburg, provided quite satisfactory entertainment at the Victoria in "Three Week-Ends."

The film attraction the first half of the week at the State was Esther Ralston in "Sawdust Paradise," while the last three days the screen play was "Romance of the Underworld." Gloria Swanson, in "Sadie Thompson," which packed them in at Loew's Regent some months ago, was presented for a repeat booking at the Rialto, and did a big business.

It has been the experience of neighborhood theatres in Harrisburg that plays which prove big successes in the first run houses are pretty certain to draw well when they return to the smaller theatres.

The Russell presented a double bill, including "Sorrell and Son," with H. B. Warner and Anna Q. Nilsson, and Art Mix in "Lightning Range." The Broad Street did well with Lois Wilson in "Ransom."

Portland, Ore., Glories in Record Receipts

Portland, Ore.—Some outstanding box office records were hung up during the week, which will help materially the totals for 1928, and put the managers in a most optimistic frame of mind for the coming year's activities, which promise to continue good.

No doubt at all but what Charlie Murray, in person, at the Portland theatre was the bright and particular magnet which helped to break house records, yet the entire offering of Fanchon & Marco's "Hat Idea" was much better than good. On the screen Richard Dix, in "Moran of the Marines," assisted by Ruth Elder, George Johnson, another new organist, brought a book of musical novelties.

At "The Broadway," a diversified bill drew fairly well, with Clara Bow in "Three Week Ends," and Max Bradgell and his band.

Pantages theatre opened their first "talkie" with good business for "Melody of Love," featuring Walter Pidgeon, Mildred Harris and Tommie Dugan. Pathe, with sound-film, was also fair attraction with headline act Masters and Grayce Company.

"The Home Towners" brought record crowds at the evening performances at the Music Box, and will be sufficiently good to run for a second week. Bobbie Burns at the Wurlitzer gave usual musical novelties.

"The Awakening," at United Artists, brought out increased attendance for first three days, but eased off at end of week. Metro-Movietone acts were interesting. Vilma Banky shoe contest stimulated attendance here.

A departure from Warner to FBO offering Clive Brook in "The Perfect Crime" did equally as well at Blue Mouse from attendance standpoint.

"Pathe Review No. 52"

(Pathe One Reel)

SEVERAL interesting subjects combine to make this Pathe Review issue, quite entertaining material. For the lead-off sequence titled "A Leaping Riot," the camera has caught some excellent shots of an exciting Kangaroo round-up in Australia. Also presented in this reel are "The City Beautiful," showing attractive Pathecolor studies of the beauty spots of the city of Rochester, N. Y., and "The Very Weird Art of Archipenko," a picturization of the works of the famous sculptor, and a film interview with him in his New York studios.—GEORGE J. REDDY.

By Charles E. Lewis

of the Alfred Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises, New England

From the Other Side of the World

Ernest R. Lim

Someone once said that half of the world never knows how the other half lives, and this phrase certainly applies to theatre management, especially if you could read my daily mail, brought to my desk from every corner of the earth. Just to give you some idea that all the "pep" is not cornered in America, we present herewith, without adulteration, a most interesting letter received from Mr. Ernest R. Lim, manager of the Royal Standard Bioscope, a theatre located in far-off Borneo, Dutch East Indies. Read it over and then paste it in your hat because it is worthy of such recognition.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I am enclosing the application form for membership of the Managers' Round Table Club, duly filled in, as I find it will be good for my business to be member of this Club. However, I hope, I will be accepted.

I do not know, whether the business in Dutch East Indies is equal to that in the States. I think not, as 70 to 80 percent of our patrons are natives. Only in the big cities as Sourabaya, Batavia, Bandoeng and Semarang there are theatres especially for the Europeans and here there is no entrance for the natives.

Anyway I will try to give you an exposure of the way I am advertising my films.

Firstly, I want to tell you that we, in D. E. I., are showing films only, not combined with other shows, as in the States. Sometimes, as in the "Ten Commandments," we give a prologue.

Top prices are at Java F 2.40 to f 3.—being $1—to $1.25. Shows twice daily, starting at 7 a. m. to 9.30 a. m. and 10 a. m. to 11.30 a. m. Weekly two programs.

My idea is to startle the patrons. F. e. when showing the Serial "The Riddle Rider." I make big placards promising a reward of f 1.000—who can give information about the Riddle Rider, who rides in the night of a certain date in the Main Street. A week after the first reward I increased the reward to f 1.500—and the third week I gave the premiere of the Chapterplay. So when showing Michael Strogoff, I asked Mr. Lambert

Over the Top

THE Managers' Round Table Club takes great pleasure in announcing to its large membership that the Kiddie Christmas Shows sponsored by the CLUB are meeting with wonderful support in very many different localities. That the shows themselves will be a great success is an assured fact.

We want to take this means of expressing our appreciation to the members who cooperated and followed the suggestion.

of Universal Pictures Corporation to send on the shipping date telegrams to all Europeans at Samarinda (40) with the notice Strogoff is coming. Nobody knows this is a part of my advertising campaign for Michael Strogoff. On the premiere I got S. R. O.

I am enclosing a snapshot of my advertising "Beware of Widows." These signs I put on every crossroad of the Main Street. The success was tremendous.

The native patrons are very impressive for electric signs. I use these with good results.

I tried to make tie-ups, but without success.

What about the idea of having a special Club Emblem, which the members can wear or put on their marquee or print on their letter heads. Some day I hope to visit America and surely I will call at the fellow members.

Awaiting your agreeable news,

Respectfully yours,

Ernest R. Lim,

Manager, Royal Standard Bioscope, Samarinda.

(Editor's note: The snapshot referred to on "Beware of Widows" showed a regulation railroad caution sign reading—"LOOK OUT DANGER—BEWARE OF WIDOWS." The photo was not clear enough for reproduction.)

We sincerely trust that Mr. Lim will find the time to send us some more of his exploitation ideas and since he is so eager to heed the advice of the members in America, we can well take note of some of his ideas.

Australia Comes to the Front

I should have headed this week's CLUB pages—"Foreign Edition," because I find a most interesting story on "Sound & Synchronization" from another far-distant member of the CLUB—Mr. F. Sykes, manager of the Piccadilly Theatre in Sydney, Australia. . . . The boss has been so good natured (?) about space for the CLUB news that I won't take advantage of his generosity by including Mr. Sykes letter in this week's issue, but watch for it next week and find out that even Australia has some ideas on "Sound." But I will ask a favor. After you read Mr. Sykes letter I would like to have you drop me a few lines and tell me what you think of his opinion on this important topic and whether you share his views. I would like to make a comparison.

Still on the subject of foreign matters I must not pass up the information that Mr. J. H. Stodel of the Bijou Theatre in Johannesburg, So. Africa has become a member of the CLUB. And if he don't get busy and send us some news about the theatrical activities in his city and country, then I'm going to organize a party of CLUB members (probably some of the gang who were with me at the Gus Sun Convention last summer) and start out for Africa to hunt Stodel and other big game. Take a friendly tip, Stodel, and send me the "hot" news from Africa.

Bergmann Exploits "King of Kings"

W. H. Bergmann of the Fremont Theatre in Fremont, Nebr. worked up tremendous interest and business on the showing of "King of Kings" through the use of a carefully laid out campaign which covered every conceivable angle. When you stop to consider that he put this over in a town of about 8,000 population then you must give him all the credit he deserves. He opened his campaign with a series of teaser ads, billed the town like a circus and also billed twenty other towns within a radius of some thirty miles. That's what we call a campaign covering a lot of territory. He then mailed out a personal letter together with complimentary tickets to every minister in the same territory, but he made a personal visit to the ministers within his own city. Every school teacher in the county received a letter and herald on the picture. Ministers announced the picture from their pulpits the Sunday prior to the opening and a special announcement was made at the high school assembly.

Warns Against "Tin pan" Music Devices

"Managers' Round Table Club" Editor Decries Trash Bait on Market

By Charles E. Lewis

THE present flood of sound devices now being offered to the theatres, especially those located outside of the key cities, and particularly in the smaller towns, makes comment very essential at this time.

Every conceivable type of equipment is being offered at all kinds of prices from cheap, amplified phonographs to the better-known standard "non-synchronous" plants turned out by the leading companies.

With such a condition, a word of caution is very appropriate to theatre owners right now, and the "small townner" should gladly lend a willing ear to this warning.

Bound to Lose

Nothing will ruin the future of "sound" quicker than a lot of trash called, and certainly not entitled to the name, "Sound." The public is being made the goat of this great big joke and are expected to swallow whatever is given them regardless of the quality or results. Nothing will destroy the public confidence in this valuable asset to the once "silent drama," than to pull them into your theatre with promises that cannot be fulfilled, and when viewed from a sober, common-sense angle, YOU are the big loser in the long run.

It is surprising that exhibitors, shrewd buyers and traders by necessity, will fall for a lot of "bunk" and promises without investigating before they sign on the dotted line. There is no need, no matter how great you view it, to get a "hurry-up" installation because you think you MUST have sound and therefore proceed to go out and buy a "cat in the bag."

"Go slow, take it easy and don't rush" was the expression of a well known theatre man in New York, and I pass it on to theatre men everywhere when it comes to the buying of a sound plant. You fellows in the smaller towns and cities are not so well equipped to go out and investigate these propositions being offered to you from every corner of the business, but no handicap is sufficient to warrant your buying something you know nothing about.

Just a Phonograph

I have before me the details of a case where a theatre in a city of about 40,000 population bought one of these "cats in a bag" and during the installation he ballyhooed it all over his town and county. Tremendous interest was created and when the big day arrived, he found that he had paid close to $3500 for a cheap contraption under a fancy name, which when boiled down to plain facts consisted of a double turn-table phonograph with two loud speakers. The noise and distorted music that came from those loud speakers beggars description, and because of the "razzing" and stamping and shouting from the audience that had packed his house, he was compelled to make an apology and "cut" the sound plant the very first night that he started. Subsequent attempts to make it fit for use were without success, and he finally had to swallow his medicine and junk the entire mess, only to find a little later that for the same money he could have had a tried and honest-to-goodness plant, and one that could later be turned into a synchronous plant if he wanted to do so.

Demand Demonstration

From close personal investigation and actual experience I can only caution you smaller town and city exhibitors to thoroughly investigate any "sound" plant that you anticipate buying and make sure that it will answer your requirements. After you sign a contract and pay out money, you won't have time to do anything else but regret your hasty action. If you are approached by any representative for such equipment, ask where you can see and hear an installation or at least a demonstration before you make a decision.

Bergmann's Campaign on "King of Kings"

The Church papers gave him special stories concerning the picture. Picture was announced on the bulletin boards of every City Library through special displays. A special lobby front was used during the run of the picture, and after the opening of the picture he used testimonials from leading folks in the town and county in his newspaper ads.

Now if there is anything that he overlooked, I would like to have someone call my attention to it. And he certainly was entitled to sit back and watch the "shekels" roll into the box office. Members who recall my own campaign on "Ben Hur" will readily see that Bergmann ran circles all around me in the way he handled his campaign.

Take a friendly tip, brother members, you can well follow the example of Mr. Bergmann; and DON'T sell yourself the idea that you must wait for a "King of Kings" or a "Ben Hur" to do these things. There are many outstanding pictures that could be made box office landslides if you would only treat them as they should be treated and GET BEHIND THEM STRONG.

Answering Some Inquiries
In reply to Mr. Townsend's inquiry, I am glad to advise him that the ventilating plan which he asked about was designed by the Typhoon Fan Co. of New York who will be glad to answer and describe anything pertaining to this type of system.

Mr. Beatty: A photo of the billboards (3 sheet) which I had reference to, in my recent article, will be published in an early issue. I had a special photo of one made up and this will be better than trying to describe it again.

Mr. Scoville: The equipment you refer to can be purchased from any theatre supply company. Take it up with the nearest one to your city. I never recommend any particular make of equipment. Better to investigate and satisfy yourself.

Say Devices Deteriorate Quality of Music

The quality of national music of this country will be affected seriously if "canned music" displaces other forms, according to the Musical Union of Baltimore, which issued a statement recently through its secretary, J. Elmer Martin.

The statement reads in part:

"It is a creeping adulteration of music, against which we are warning the public.

"Looking a little further into the future, we foresee that the quality of our national music will be seriously affected if 'canned music' displaces other forms and reduces the musician's opportunities of employment.

"From a community viewpoint, is it not preferable to have resident artists drawing and spending their salaries here to having the money sent out of town?"

Exploitation Boosts West Coast Scrip

Many Novel Ideas Employed by Managers to Increase Sale of Admission Books During Holiday Season

THE business of selling scrip, or coupon books, is one which the West Coast Theatres organization has developed to a degree of efficiency which perhaps surpasses that of any other chain or individual theatre in the country, and the many exploitation ideas which West Coast managers have executed to boost sales of Scrip during the contest now drawing to a close are worthy of consideration for duplication by owners and managers at this or some future time.

The advantage to the theatre of selling admissions in this manner is one which has been pointed out too often to admit of its repetition here. Indeed, coupon books as a seasonal or year round feature are extensively used by theatre men who operate along progressive lines.

West Coast, however, for several years has made Scrip an important phase of the selling operations and at the present time is surpassing all previous efforts and obtaining greater results than ever before.

The managers of the circuit devise and carry out exploitation campaigns for Scrip on a scale that rivals their exploitation for special feature attractions. Stunts, cooperative ideas and special advertising are employed to boost sales of the coupon books. This is especially the case around the holiday season—which presents the opportunity for the theatre to get on the "shopping lists" of the Xmas buyers. There is now in progress a contest with prizes for the West Coast managers. Scrip sale percentages are highest during the drive, which ends on January 5.

Details of Campaigns

In the course of the contest to date several managers have carried out excellent exploitation ideas featuring the Scrip. The ideas employed consist of special theatre displays, an extra booth in the lobby to sell Scrip, prominent mention in all newspaper advertising, and cooperative campaigns with merchants and newspapers.

Heavy direct mail campaigns are being carried on by several of the managers, who send letters to business firms and prominent individuals calling attention to Scrip as the ideal Christmas gift, for employees or friends. An effort is being made by Mel Riddle and Jack Rosenberg of Loew's State, Los Angeles, to have several business firms—drug stores in particular—place Scrip booths in their establishments.

In the newspaper field there have been several excellent stunts put on. A prominent example of this type of exploitation emanates from Oakland, where the Oakland Tribune bought Scrip Books to entertain its newsboys through an arrangement made by Manager Phil Phillips of the T. and D.,

Oakland Theatre. Another feature of the Oakland campaign was a tie-up with a clothing store, which gave a $5 book with each $25 purchase. The store bought the books from the theatre and exploited the premium feature in window displays and newspaper ads.

In San Jose Manager Herman Kersken developed an idea which netted his Scrip drive some excellent publicity, through newspapers, schools and the local bank. Kersken had one of the junior executives of a bank talk to high school students on "thrift," using West Coast Scrip as a model.

At no cost whatsoever to the West Coast Theatre in San Bernardino, Scrip is being heavily advertised in the Evening Telegram of that city. The newspaper is out after circulation, and it figures that West Coast Scrip is a reward that every boy and girl in the city will want to get. For eight new subscriptions, the boy or girl gets a $5 Scrip book. These books the newspaper buys from the theatre.

Judges View Copy for Ads Featured by Theatre

William Haynes, assistant general manager of Loew's Ohio Theatres, secured the opinions of the leading judges of Cleveland on companionate marriage. These opinions appeared daily in the advance advertisements on "Companionate Marriage," which opened at the State on December 9th. Haynes, together with State Theatre Manager George Dumond and Publicity Director M. Malaney, put over a big publicity campaign for this picture. First they advertised for a couple to be married on the State Theatre stage the companionate way. Several couples applied and after one couple was chosen, the future bride was provided with bridal array and toured the downtown streets in an automobile, properly caparisoned for the occasion with wide white ribbons, old shoes, and plenty of placards. When not on parade, the auto parked in front of the State Theatre and the bride gave away "marriage certificates," announcing the marriage of Sally Williams and Tommy Van Cleve, the leading characters in the play. In addition Haynes wired Judge Ben Lindsey to attend the engagement of the picture based on his book. The telegrams, in which Judge Lindsey regretted his inability to attend the State Theatre presentation, but in which he extolled the picture, appeared in all local newspapers. All this publicity gave the picture a fine start, and it got away Sunday to big business.

A NEWSPAPER extra with scareheads across the front page was printed by Fred Cruise, manager of the Criterion Theatre, Los Angeles, to exploit "Companionate Marriage," made from Judge Lindsey's famous book. He called the paper The Los Angeles Sun. It was full newspaper size and consisted of four pages. "Companionate Marriage Sex Secrets Revealed" proclaimed the scarehead on page one, while the page was dotted with stories and special notices prepared by the manager. A telegram from Judge Lindsey to Mr. Cruise about the showing at the Criterion was played up in a box.

A NOVEL idea to stimulate attendance at the Keystone Theatre, Williamsport, Pa., during a week's celebration of its second anniversary under the present management, was a plan under which each person attending the regular show on any of the first four days of anniversary week received a free ticket to the anniversary ball held on Thursday night. The ball was in the Park ballroom, with music provided by Dan. Gregory's Victor Recording Orchestra, which played all week as one of the special attractions of the bill at the Keystone. The film feature was "Show People."

THE blindfolded auto driver was one of the stunts used by Manager Walter Price for "The Smoking Fool" at the Riviera Theatre, Knoxville, Tenn. As several of the merchants had their ads lettered on the windows of the car driven by the blindfolded man, Manager Price got one of the best spots on the car at a very small cost. A banner taking up the whole rear of the car advertised the picture, theatre and play dates. This car was driven all over the city streets on the opening day of the picture.

RAY TUBMAN, manager of the Regent and Imperial Theatres, Ottawa, Ontario, made a bid for the Christmas shopping himself when he offered "scrip books" as Christmas gifts. A book containing $10 worth of tickets good at either theatre sells for $8.50 while a $5 book sells for $4.50. They were on sale at both box offices.

MANAGER JOHN P. MCCARTHY, of Loew's Regent Theatre, Harrisburg, invited several hundred school children who recently were appointed members of the public schools safety patrol whose duty it is to help the smaller pupils through traffic on the way to school, to be his guests on December 15, at a special Saturday morning performance of "West of Zanzibar," featuring Lon Chaney.

UNDER the auspices of the Troy Federation of Parent Teachers' Association, Junior Movies were given at the Troy Theatre last Saturday morning for the school children of Troy. Every school in the city was represented and each group was chaperoned.

CHARLES QUERRIE, the sportsman who directs the destinies of the Palace Theatre, Toronto, staged a dog show as an added attraction, and prizes were given for pedigreed canines, just plain animals, clean dogs and dirty dogs—all the pets of the neighborhood being in evidence. Plenty of fun was created.

CARNIVAL ATMOSPHERE

The carnival atmosphere which serves as the locale for First National's "The Barker" is the keynote of display advertising for that picture at the Central Theatre, New York City. Reproduced above are views of the marquee and lobby displays currently attracting the attention of Broadway crowds.

"Lilac Time" Drive Hooked Up With Air Port Dedication

WHILE the air is smooth, so to speak, Manager Guy A. Kenimer flew high with his campaign for the presentation at the Florida Theatre in Jacksonville of "Lilac Time." The official dedication of Jacksonville's new air port and Kenimer's booking of the Colleen Moore vehicle broke about together, and the manager made the most of the opportunity presented thereby.

The formal opening of the new municipal airport and the establishment of the regular air mail focussed all local attention to aviation so it just remained for Kenimer to exploit the picture along the same channels as was uppermost in everybody's mind.

A local aviator with his plane was employed and entered into the air derby and races. The lower right wing of his plane carried copy relative to the engagement of "Lilac Time." He flew three or four times Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Three smoke trailers were attached to his plane on as many flights and gave an effect of the plane afire above the thousands who visited the air port during the gala festivities.

A parachute jumper worked off this plane twice. On the back of his overalls (furnished by the theatre) the following copy appeared, "I am landing to see Colleen Moore in Lilac Time at the Florida four days starting Sunday."

Through special arrangements with the First National home office, two special records on the picture were used at the fair grounds on a giant electrola—the last day of the Florida State Fair. These records were talking records—giving information about the picture.

Another stunt that received plenty of publicity was a small French type wagon with two ponies. Two girls playing one of the talking records on a small portable Victrola passed through the busiest section of the city Saturday. These girls also passed out 500 rotos on the attraction.

Reference to Official Ban On "Hot Ads" Startles London

ADVERTISING that had the populace by the ears and gave Canadian Officialdom a distinct shock was used in the newspapers of London, Ontario, by R. S. Roddick, recently-appointed manager of the Capitol Theatre of that city for the presentation of "The Red Dance" as a sound attraction during the week of December 17. A sensation was caused by the naive references to the censor board, seizure of the advertising matter by the Canadian Customs and other hot stuff.

The newspaper display appeared as a telegram to Roddick from the Toronto film exchange and nothing like it had ever appeared in the Canadian press before—with the author still living. The facsimile wire signed by D. O. Byrne, read as follows:

If Dolores Del Rio's new picture "The Red Dance" is released without cutting by board you will have it for London to open Monday, December 17, exactly as shown in New York with complete sound and music accompaniment. Doubtful, however, if it will be passed without cutting. If they cut it then it cannot be shown as a sound picture. Picture rather daring so be careful in advertising. If it gets through complete it will be the best possible bet to bring in pre-Christmas crowds as picture is splendid romance of strong drama, big scenes, luxurious settings and packed with action and great thrills from start to finish. Original advertising held by Customs as too hot for Ontario but am rushing you special material from our own studios which will have to do. Will advise tomorrow if picture gets past Board. Regards.

Sweden Introduces Classy Idea in Ballyhoo

Raoul Lamat, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer representative in Sweden, informs this department of a novel street stunt used in Stockholm and other large cities of Sweden as a promotion idea for "A Certain Young Man."

Two good looking young girls who could climb a ladder and were not afraid to show a shapely calf were found and sent out on the streets to attract attention. The two girls would promenade slowly, pointing here and there, to focus attention upon themselves. Occasionally they would stop, and a small boy who followed them would immediately rush up to them and set up a small step ladder which he carried with him. One of the girls would mount the ladder and with a pair of field glasses look in every direction, as if searching for some one. When a large crowd had gathered about the group, one of the girls would unfurl a banner reading, "We are looking for 'A Certain Young Man.'"

Trailer Gained Exclusive Ad Rights at Ball Park

Now that the football season is over, Manager T. R. Earl, of the Imperial Theatre, Asheville, tells us how he had the exclusive advertising rights in the Asheville City Stadium in return for running a trailer on Thanksgiving Day.

Earl was given permission to advertise his pictures playing at the Imperial throughout the entire football season. The locations within the stadium were excellent—across the stand opposite the parking space and across the top of the score board.

Comparing the amount of attentive reading this space should get with that of the usual highway posting, Earl considers this most potent advertising.

Pathe Exploiteer Speaker at Women's Club Meeting

Dan Roche, Pathe exploitation representative at Chicago, was the guest at a luncheon given by the Chicago Woman's Club in their club rooms at 410 Michigan avenue, on Tuesday, December 11th. The occasion was a meeting of the Moving Picture Committee, and was attended by over 200 members of the club. Several Pathe short subjects were screened after the luncheon and Roche delivered a short talk on "The Problems of the Producer of Today." From one who was present we learn that Dan's talk was well received.

Usher Does Black Face Act to Plug "Fool"

WHEN Manager Norman Prager had his booking on "The Singing Fool" advanced one week, he was forced to act quickly and effectively when that picture played the Missouri Theatre, St. Joseph, Mo.

One of the ushers blackened his face such as Jolson does in the picture and then visited the grade and high schools, giving out stock heralds on the picture. Heralds were also given to people on the street and in public places during his travel.

Junior Film Board Organized in K. C.

THE organization of a Junior Film Board of Trade in Kansas City this past week, will prove a great step towards establishing a closer relationship between exhibitors and producers, it is believed. The newly formed board is composed of office managers, assistant managers and bookers. Tom Byerle assistant manager of the First National exchange, was elected president and Lee F. Durland, booker, of Midwest Film Distributors, Inc., vice-president, M. A. Tanner, booker at the Fox exchange being secretary-treasurer. The by-laws of the board will be adopted at a meeting in a few days. The regular meetings of the board will be at 1 o'clock every other Wednesday.

"Assistant managers, office managers and bookers are in closer touch with exhibitors in many instances than the exchange managers," said L. J. Doty, of United Art., president of the senior Kansas City Film Board of Trade, and the man who fostered the organization of the junior organization. "The new organization will not make any decisions which will affect the industry without first having sanction of the senior body. The junior board will meet regularly and discuss various questions and problems pertaining to their work and make recommendations. It also should prove a splendid plan to train junior executives for work in the senior film board."

Valley, Ga.; Lee Castleberry, Gadsden, Ala.; Nathan Morgan, Columbus, Ga.; Joe Wheeler, Cedar-town, Ga.; Henry Hury, Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Curry, Milledgeville, Ga.; W. H. Brewer, Lanett, Ala.; Bruce Snider, Bessemer, Ala.; Col. Thomas E. Orr, Albertville, Ala.

Louisville

The American Theatre at Bowling Green, Ky., is now being operated under new management, L. W. Bevel, of Palmetto, Fla., having purchased a half interest in the house with W. F. Toops.

The Dixie theatre at Lexington, Ky., had a fire last week but little damage was done.

The Gem Theatre at Mt. Olivet, Ky., has closed as a result of the prevalence of smallpox.

The Karlton Theatre at Whitesburg, Ky., has closed until further notice.

David Blunk, assistant manager at the Alamo Theatre here, has succeeded Herbert Morgan as manager.

Florida

In a recent issue of Motion Picture News there was printed an item in the Florida regional news to the effect that the New Park Theatre in Tampa was nearly completed, and that C. D. Dooley was engaged as manager. The owners of the Park wish to call attention to the correction that Mr. Dooley is not to be manager of the house. The Park Theatre will have its Gala Premier Opening December 22nd at 7:00 P. M.

Tampa, Fla.—John B. Carroll, formerly of Asheville, N. C., and for the last four years manager of a group of local theatres, has been promoted to a district manager for the Publix Theatres Corporation, he announced last Wednesday. Mr. Carroll will have charge of twelve theatres, including houses in Lakeland, St. Petersburg and Tampa. He will be relieved here Monday by Guy Kenimer, now manager of the Florida Theatre, Jacksonville.

F. C. Thompson, owner of the Ramon at Frostproof, was a Tampa visitor last week.

Sound pictures opened recently at the Tampa, Tampa, and the symphony orchestra will be discontinued. The new policy gives Tampa two talkie houses.

The Prince, on upper Franklin street, Tampa, are adding "tab" shows to their regular picture programs.

Charlotte

Terry McDaniel, for the past two years manager of the National and Imperial Theatres, Greensboro, N. C., last week left for Wilson, N. C., to take over management of the Wilson Theatre at that place, which was recently acquired by Publix-Saenger Theatres of North Carolina, Inc. Frank Wood succeeds Mr. McDaniel at the National and Imperial.

H. G. Campbell has taken over the Cameo Theatre at Belton, S. C., from J. W. Meldin.

D. M. Eaves, of the Eaves Theatre Circuit in Union, S. C., has discontinued the operation of the Opera House Theatre at Henderson, N. C., and W. E. Wood, who was manager of the house for Mr. Eaves, is running it.

Mrs. D. A. Stevenson has sold the Royal Theatre at Elizabethton, Tenn., to D. L. Quinn.

The Jefferson Theatre at Jefferson, S. C., is being operated by R. B. Miller and P. T. Gautt. The former owner was R. I. Ingram.

The Central Theatre at Anderson, S. C., has been transferred by W. S. Finch to Mr. Price.

F. M. Bryant has sold the Imperial Theatre at Branchville, S. C., to S. A. Hand, Jr.

10 Canadian Cities Hear Sound

STILL another addition has been made to the list of wired houses in Canada, this being the big Capitol Theatre, Regina, Pete Egan, manager, which introduced sound programs December 12. Synchronized pictures are now being heard in ten Canadian cities with two houses wired in Toronto.

After 27 years' continuous residence in Canada, Chris. Georgas, veteran manager of the Classic Theatre, Owen Sound, Ontario, is paying his first visit to his birthplace at Sparta, Greece, his holiday covering a period of four months.

Famous Players Canadian Corp., through B. C. Paramount Theatres, Ltd., Vancouver, a subsidiary, has leased the new theatre of the Prince Rupert Amusement Company at Prince Rupert, British Columbia, for a term of 15 years, with an option to buy the theatre at the end of three years for $150,000. The Prince Rupert Company previously had operated a theatre in Prince Rupert in a rented structure.

The Province Theatre, one of Winnipeg's leading houses, has installed new projection equipment at a cost of $3,500.

W. J. Stewart, exploiteer of Toronto, has been appointed director of publicity for Canadian International Films, Ltd., with offices at 15 Excelsior Life Building, Toronto.

John T. Fiddes makes a good fireman as well as a theatre manager. When fire broke out in the Playhouse Theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, after the night's show, Fiddes rallied his employees in an attack upon the blaze. With the house hose, Manager Fiddes and his men checked the flames until the department arrived on the scene. As a result the damage was comparatively slight and the theatre resumed business next day.

Feeling that other towns were getting the country trade because of the lack of an attractive theatre locally, the recently-established Board of Trade at Galt, Ontario, with its 353 members, has floated a new theatre project, an allotment of stock being sold to merchants and other business men within two weeks. R. O. McCullough, Galt manufacturer, has charge of the project.

Salt Lake Movie Activity Normal

IT is reported that Fred Young of the Liberty theatre, Utah, has installed an attractive new Neon sign above the entrance of his house.

The new theatre being constructed by the M. and M. Enterprises at Parawon, Utah, will be ready for the opening soon.

Manager Fred Gage of United Artists has sufficiently recuperated from an attack of influenza to leave the hospital.

Miss Barretts, bookkeeper for United Artists here, was also confined to her home with illness.

J. A. Connant, district manager for Tiffany-Stahl, is visiting the Salt Lake branch.

H. C. Borger, Western Division Superintendent for Tiffany-Stahl, is expected to arrive here soon.

Manager O. J. Hazen of the National Theatre Supply Co. is making a trip into the territory.

Manager Al O'Keefe, of the Pathe exchange here, is expected to return shortly from a sales trip into Idaho.

First National's Salt Lake office is leading the Western Division in the Fall contest at the end of the ninth week, according to report.

Jack Curry, ad-sales representative for Paramount Famous-Lasky, left this city last week for Los Angeles after having spent about two weeks at the local branch.

Harry Lustig, Warner Brothers district manager, left Salt Lake for Denver after spending several days in the local exchange.

Twin Falls, Kimberly, Filer and Buhl, Idaho, will open their theatres again after an epidemic ban.

It is reported that Edgington Brothers have taken over the Forum Theatre of Sugar House, Utah, from L. F. Brown.

'Frisco Regional Reports

MAX WEISS has taken over the lease of Godard's Theatre in Sacramento. Considerable renovating and changing in the house will be done.

Some of the out-of-town exhibitors seen along the Row recently were: Chas. Westcott, of Fortuna; M. Restano, of the Sonora Theatre; W. F. Rogers, of Corning; Gus Johnson, of the Star Theatre, Newman.

Andy Anderson has recovered from pneumonia and is back at his desk at Pathe.

W. J. Heineman, manager of the local Universal exchange, had an operation for appendicitis recently, and is now back at work.

Joe Cannon, cashier at First National, is home fighting the flu.

C. A. Dickerson, owner of the Isleton Theatre on the Sacramento River, and the Lyric Theatre in Sacramento, was in town recently.

W. R. Batchelder, exhibitor of Galt, is quite ill and expects to have to remain in the hospital for an indefinite period.

Inquiries and Comments

A Simple Solution of a Difficult Problem

DURING the past seven years the problem presented by the buckling of film in the course of its projection has come to be one of the first importance. But, like all obstacles which arise to challenge the inventiveness of man, it has been the direct cause of new improvements which more than compensate for the temporary lowering of the quality of projection which obtained until a solution was found.

One of these improvements is to be found in the more perfectly corrected projection lenses, especially those of large diameter. The reflector arc is directly responsible for this development.

Another, and probably the most important, improvement is the adaptation of the revolving shutter to a new position behind the aperture. As explained in a preceding article, this relocation of the shutter is the means of making the shutter serve two useful purposes instead of one and offers some degree of compensation for the light which is necessarily sacrificed to obtain the masking of the film while it is in motion before the aperture.

The aperture shutter, which already has been adopted by a number of projector manufacturers, will prevent at least fifty per cent of the heat present in the projector beam from reaching the film and is the only satisfactory method yet found for preventing the film buckling which raises hob with picture definition.

True Advancement in Projector Design

It marks a true advance in projector design and accomplishes a highly useful purpose without introducing complicated mechanisms into the present projector construction.

In opposition to the important advantages presented by this new construction certain slight disadvantages are involved which can, however, be sacrificed in favor of the marked improvement in projection quality which results when the film is permitted to pass the aperture in a perfectly flat plane.

The first of these minor considerations is the dissolving effect which is obtained when the light beam is alternately masked and unmasked at the aerial image location. Inasmuch as the aerial image acts as a secondary light source for illuminating the screen, the gradual diminution in its size as the shutter cuts across the light beam at this point is reflected on the screen in the form of an even reduction in brightness over the entire picture area.

Theoretically, this is an ideal condition although actually, its advantage is open to doubt because the masking of the shutter is so rapid in its action as to make the cut off appear to be instantaneous instead of perceptibly gradual.

The shutter, therefore, might well be located in another concentrated part of beam without incurring a lowering in the quality of projection.

The second disadvantage lies in the removal of the only ready means whereby the projectionist can instantly check the efficiency of the projector optic system in that it was always possible, with the shutter located at the aerial image, to observe the image of the illuminated condenser or reflector and so observe whether it was working to its best advantage.

The relocation of the shutter to a position immediately behind the aperture makes a dissolving cut-off impossible and prevents the shutter from serving as a screen upon which the condition of the optical set-up can be registered.

The preservation of the film and the more sharply defined projection which results from the absence of film buckling, however, more than offset these minor considerations and so throw the balance in favor of the aperture shutter.

The New Motiograph Barrel Shutter

The first aperture shutter to be applied to a modern professional projector was that introduced by the Enterprise Optical Company on their Motiograph projector.

This device represents a distinct advance in projector design. The Motiograph shutter is unique in point of construction and involves a more scientific application of the principles of mechanics than do the ones which followed it. The shutters which later appeared are all of the flat disc type and it can be said that the only change which these shutters present is one of shutter location rather than construction.

The Motiograph shutter offers certain advantages, chief of these advantages is the fan action exercised on the cooling plates in front of the aperture.

Without going into great detail regarding its construction, it can be said that the Motiograph shutter is of the revolving barrel or cylinder type. In the absence of a photograph showing details of construction it can be said that this shutter is similar in appearance to a closed metal cylinder with opposite side sections of its curved walls removed.

The ends of the cylinder, instead of being flat are curved after the fashion of an airplane propeller and a metal fin extends across each end to further assist the fan action established by the curved end pieces as the cylinder is revolved about its long axis.

Two more metal fins are placed inside of the cylinder, one in the center of each curved section of cylinder wall and extending for the full length of the cylinder.

The purpose of these fins is to suck air into one side of the cylinder (through the cut away sections of walls) and expel it out of the other so that a constant stream of air passes through the shutter when it revolves.

The shutter is supported at each end of the cylinder and directly behind the cooling plates of which there are two. Mounted in this fashion, the curved walls of cylinder sweep past the aperture and alternately mask and unmask the aperture from the light beam.

Between the shutter and the aperture, and constituting part of the shutter assembly are placed two cooling plates separated from each other by an open space. The reason for their separation is to permit cool air to be drawn by the shutter past the two cooling plates and so prevent the head of the projector from becoming unduly heated.

As the shutter revolves, air currents are set into motion which not only cool the film but also the metal surrounding the aperture and this reduction in heat is greatly augmented by the interception of more than fifty per cent of the heat present in the projector light beam.

Thus, the Motiograph shutter not only prevents heat from reaching the aperture but it also takes steps to reduce the effects of the heat which unavoidably passes the shutter and reaches the aperture.

The shutter is statically balanced to provide smooth and silent running characteristics and proper precautions are taken to prevent binding of the shutter as it comes up to full heat. The means for setting the shutter so that it will intercept the light beam at the right moment are also simple and adjustments can be made while the shutter is stationary or while it is running.

It goes without saying that the quality of masking as seen upon the screen must be fully satisfactory else this type of shutter would have died aborning.

In effect the general action of the shutter is the same as that of the double disc type in which the separate discs revolved in opposite directions so as to shorten the time required for beam to be masked and unmasked. This effect is translated into terms of slightly increased screen illumination since waste motion is thereby reduced.

2 Keith-Albee Theatres Opening on Christmas Day

ON Christmas two new theatres of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum chain will be opened to movie patrons for the first time. The new houses are the Keith Albee Palace in Rochester, New York, and the Keith Albee Flushing in the Flushing district of New York City. Thomas W. Lamb of New York City is the architect.

The Flushing theatre is described by the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation as something of a novelty theatre, being Spanish Renaissance in design. The house is located on Northern Boulevard. Its facade is done in greyish white cast stone, with projecting window bays trimmed with ornamental bronze. The grand foyer is shaped in a graceful semi-oval and in its center stands a display fountain in marble and polychrome terra cotta. Similar smaller display fountains are to be found along the grand stairways which lead from either side of the foyer to the mezzanine promenade. Here appropriate period furnishings are to be found.

The main auditorium is all fresco in feeling, there being a curved skyline ceiling with clever lighting effects to enhance its atmospheric coloring. Groupings of Spanish facades form the walls. The management is particularly proud of the rest rooms, cosmetic rooms, smoking rooms, etc., and their appointments. The same interior decoration extends to the back stage rooms, where some of the features are a recreation room, a kitchen, a laundry and a nursery.

Construction Notes and Theatre Openings

Bids have been taken for the construction of a theatre and commercial building to be erected in Dodge City, Kansas, by Otto Theis. This building complete will cost $150,000 and the theatre will include a main floor, mezzanine and balcony and will cover a site 125 by 115 feet. Ellis Charles and Co. are the architects.

The new Pickwick Theatre at Park Ridge, Illinois, was opened recently. The house seats 1,500 and is very unusually designed, being futuristic both inside and outside. Tax Commissioner Maloney owns the house.

The Uptown Theatre, new 3,000-seater at St. Clair Avenue and East 106th St., Cleveland, built by the Variety Amusement Co., opened last month. The Uptown is the finest suburban house in the city, it is said, and compares in architecture, furnishings, and policy with the first-run downtown houses. Thomas Carroll is manager.

Jacob and Isaac Silverman, of Altoona, Penna., have announced the purchase of the Central Presbyterian Church property in Erie. They will begin construction on February 1st on a new theatre with a seating capacity of 3,000. H. C. Hodgen and A. D. Rice, theatre architects, have been engaged.

Three new theatres have opened up down in Southern New Mexico. The Cannon Theatre of Elida, N. M., with 200 seats, has just opened under the management of E. R. Cannon, who has closed the old house. Charles McDonald of Lovington has opened the new Lyrie Theatre and closed the theatre which he has been operating. Terrero, N. M., has its first amusement house, called the Terrero Theatre. It will be operated by Joe Lopez.

The Liberty Theatre of Salt Creek, Wyo., has again been reopened, this time by a group of Salt Creek business men who were interested in seeing an amusement house operating in their city. The name of the new association is the Salt Creek Amusement Company and it is represented by William H. Jordie, who operates the drug store in the town. The Liberty Theatre was leased from J. G. Kittleson, owner of the building and former manager of the theatre.

The new Lincoln Theatre, Springfield, Ill., was opened by Dominick Fresna on Thanksgiving Day with appropriate ceremonies. This house, which seats 1,400, was formerly the Princess. It was entirely remodeled and redecorated, a new organ being installed and sound equipment put in.

E. W. Groesbeck, exhibitor of the Pacific Northwest has announced plans for a new 800 seat house at Cole and Myrtle Streets in Enumelaw, Washington. The theatre will represent an investment of $60,000, and will be designed by architect V. W. Vorhees of Seattle, especially for talking pictures. The Liberty, Mr. Groesbeck's present house will continue its policy of silent films.

Contracts were awarded recently to the Wheeler Construction Co. for the erection of the new Italian Club Building which will be built at the corner of Spruce Street and Howard Avenue, in West Tampa, Florida. Building will include theatre.

Ackerman, Harris, Oppen House Opened in Frisco

The newest theatre of the Ackerman, Harris and Oppen chain was auspiciously opened recently in San Francisco when the Amazon, on Geneva Avenue and Paris Street, threw open its doors to the public. With its policy one of presenting the finest of feature pictures the Amazon is expected to cater not only to the residents of the Crocker Amazon tract, but to the entire residential district of the city. The Amazon has daily matinees, opening at 1.30 P. M. daily except on Saturday and Sunday, when it opens at 12.30 P. M. Programs change daily except on Wednesdays.

Low Newcomb, for several years in charge of the Casino Theatre in San Francisco, is in charge of the house, the structure and decorations of which are a blend of Egyptian and Spanish styles.

Theatre's Interior Conveys Open Air Garden Effect

Something new in San Francisco theatrical architecture was introduced November 27th with the opening of the Daly City Theatre, Mission and Flournoy Streets. It is an atmospheric Theatre combining the effect of an open air garden with the practical arrangements of a completely housed heated and ventilated interior.

The garden idea is obtained through an illusion created by a series of eighteen alcoves or openings in a Spanish type of wall which completely encircles the audience section. Within the alcoves are painted scenes representing the garden, brought realistically into view by cleverly arranged lights. It seats 1250 and is owned by Barron and Nathan.

Griffith Vehicle Titled

The latest, and what is stated to be the permanent title of D. W. Griffith's recently completed production is "Lady of the Pavements." Thus far it has run the gauntlet of "La Pavia," "The Love Song" and "The Heart Song" to its latest.

Role in "Coquette"

Alan Connors will play the second male lead with Mary Pickford in "Coquette."

Option Taken Up

First National has changed its mind regarding Doris Dawson and her option with that company has been taken up. She was slated to be released at the expiration of her current contract.

Paul Muni Cast

Paul Muni, who was imported to Hollywood by Fox from New York's legitimate field where he scored in "Four Walls," will make his debut to pictures in "The Valiant." William K. Howard is to direct.

Fox Signs Harry Sweet

Upon completion of one Movietone talking short for Fox, Harry Sweet was signed to long term optional contract as director for that company.

Fairbanks Plans His Next

Now that "The Iron Mask" is nearing completion, Douglas Fairbanks is at work upon the script for a new story, an original as yet untitled. Lotta Woods is scenario editor.

Reicher's Wide Stage Experience

Frank Reicher, added recently to the cast of "The Missing Man," Pathe talker, is a veteran stage actor and director. He at one time directed "An American Tragedy" for presentation in Los Angeles.

Jannings in New Role

Emil Jannings' next picture for Paramount will have an Alpine background in which the star will portray an Alpine citizen betrayed by his friend. The story, untitled as yet, is based on an original by Victor Schertzinger, director, and Nicholas Soussanin, actor; Hans Kraly is preparing the adaptation. Lewis Milestone will direct.

Chautard in Cast

The cast of Tiffany-Stahl's "The Girl Who Came Back" includes Emile Chautard, the French actor and director.

Franklin to Direct for T-S

Chester Franklin will direct a picture tentatively titled "Life" from a story by Frances Guihan, starring Biardo Cortez.

And, History Will Repeat—

The original motion picture film ... workable long rolls... colored film base.. duplicating film.. panchromatic negative.... the history of the important developments in American motion picture materials is a factful story of this Company's cooperation with the cinematographic industry.

Obviously an association that has borne such fruits in the past can be expected to repeat in the future. For 1929 the Eastman resources and Eastman cooperation are pledged anew to the further advancement of the motion picture art.

"PARAMOUNT takes an easy lead in TALKING PICTURES"

SO stated the New York World the morning after "Interference," Paramount's first All-Talking Picture was shown. "A new experience in talking pictures" said the Los Angeles Times. The day of the quality talking picture is here! In Paramount's hands a novelty now becomes the greatest entertainment of the day! ¶ For Outstanding Broadway stars and directors whose stage experience would be invaluable were engaged. ¶ Before the first camera turned on "Interference" it was a foregone conclusion that Paramount Talking Pictures would be the leaders. It is only what you, who have known the supreme Paramount Quality in "silent pictures" for so long, had the right to expect. ¶ And "Interference" is only the beginning. With all Paramount's great resources and unrivalled manpower working in this new medium, and Paramount Quality to maintain, Paramount Talking Pictures of the future will exceed even your fondest imaginings. ¶ Soon you will see and hear "The Canary Murder Case," Jeanne Eagels in "The Letter," "The Doctor's Secret," etc. ¶ Paramount All-Talking SHOWS present, in addition, sound, singing and talking short features of the same Paramount quality. Watch for new-paper announcements and be sure you see them all. Until you do, you will never know what marvelous entertainment the quality talking picture is. Silent or with Sound—If it's a Paramount Picture—it's the best show in town!"

making Sound Pictures a success

WORKING shoulder to shoulder they have pioneered a new art to its present position as an outstanding box-office success.

Western Electric, the manufacturer who developed the only Sound Picture equipment in considerable use today, pledges a continuance of high electrical and mechanical standards and announces a rapid stepping-up of output to meet the pressing demand.

The Producer, naturally jealous of the quality of his Sound Picture releases, and the Exhibitor, who knows the popularity of his house is closely linked with a Sound Picture installation of high quality, will continue to look to the experience, the reputation and the organization of Western Electric.

Western Electric

OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS

The greatest individual record-crasher of today.
Joan Crawford marvel! The money hit of all time.

EXCESS BAGGAGE

Silent print plays Orpheum, Boston, to S. R. O.
after Sound at the State. Any way you play it, it's sure-fire b. o. Hooray Bill Haines!

Thrills!

SHOW PEOPLE

Continues its sensational performance. Two big

THE BOX-OFFICE BAROMETER!

Week after week Variety's theatre check-up proves M-G-M leadership!

WHITE SHADOWS (Stanley, Baltimore) reception justified another downtown showing, so moved to Valencia.

WHITE SHADOWS (State, Syracuse) Way out front. Real business.

MASKS OF THE DEVIL (Warfield, Frisco) Continued to lead town. About ten grand ahead of Granada.

SHOW PEOPLE (Hennepin, Minneapolis) Second biggest week since opening. Brought them in paying numbers.

DANCING DAUGHTERS (Fifth Avenue, Seattle) Whoopie, what a party!

MASKS OF THE DEVIL (State, Los Angeles) John Gilbert a natural. State was the downtown leader.

SHOW PEOPLE (Loew's Toronto) Regulars liked inside stuff. House built steadily.

THE CAMERAMAN (Orpheum, Topeka) Drew well.

EXCESS BAGGAGE (Orpheum, Boston) Very fine week. Put into house silent after being shown up-town with Sound.

CAMERAMAN (Loew's, Montreal) Picked this house out of the drums.

EXCESS BAGGAGE (Hipp, Buffalo) Rousing week's business with turnstiles clicking through entire period.

DANCING DAUGHTERS (Columbia, Washington) Took the three weeks gross record of this house that plays all the big money getters.

DANCING DAUGHTERS (State, Providence) Capacity all week.

WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS (Capitol, New York) Weather didn't boost picture house receipts. In only one case was there real offensive "While The City Sleeps." Leader of street and holding over.

SHOW PEOPLE (Warfield, Frisco) Rated one of the best entertainments in months. Jumped gross.

SHOW PEOPLE (Chicago, Chicago) Jumped to $50,000.

WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS (Loew's, Toronto) Opened with a rush. Film played silent here, but the Chaney name drew.

WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS (Century, Baltimore) Got back in stride with "While The City Sleeps." Chaney a favorite and picture liked.

DANCING DAUGHTERS (Egyptian, Los Angeles) This product just natural b. o.

WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS (State, Syracuse) Brought house back into paying class.

EXCESS BAGGAGE (Loew's, Toronto) Took town leadership. Excellent.

DANCING DAUGHTERS (Capitol, New York) At $189,750 for two weeks "Daughters" now holds top for any picture that ever lingered here a fortnight. Weather didn't help other places, but didn't keep them out here.

DREAM OF LOVE (Oriental, Chicago) Trend of better pictures here helping. Jumped to $46,500.

MASKS OF THE DEVIL (Palace, Washington) Big week!

WHITE SHADOWS (Roosevelt, Chicago) Started importantly, and bettered it second week.

MASKS OF THE DEVIL (Hennepin, Minneapolis) Gilbert magnet. Second biggest house in year.

SHOW PEOPLE (Fifth Ave., Seattle) Best in town. Started off at great clip.

WEST OF ZANZIBAR (State, New Orleans) Chaney remains corking card.

WEST OF ZANZIBAR (State, Syracuse) Within few dollars of "Masks of the Devil." Chaney on par with John Gilbert as drawing card here.

WEST OF ZANZIBAR (State, Providence) One of Chaney's best.

ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE (Astor, New York) Led the talking arrivals. Excellent.

WHITE SHADOWS IN THE SOUTH SEAS

Direct from 5 smash months on Broadway at $2. Extended runs! Baltimore 3 weeks. Chicago 6 weeks. Los Angeles, Frisco, Milwaukee, etc.

WHILE THE CITY SLEEPS

Rated by trade consensus as the best Lon Chaney draw of past few years. Buffalo, Minneapolis, Boston and everywhere it's record biz.

MASKS OF THE DEVIL

Hear those flappers flap. Sensational business nationwide. And oh boy, M-G-M has just signed Jack Gilbert for more box-office fun!

A LADY OF CHANCE

Perfect vehicle for the perfect star. It's full of pep and young ideas, the kind they like to see beautiful Norma Shearer in!

ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE

Solid sell-out at $2 since it opened at Astor on Broadway. William Haines' best! Great as a Talker—smashing silent drama too! You'll like this number!

DREAM OF LOVE

Grand title! Joan Crawford, starring. Directed by Fred Niblo of "Ben-Hur" fame. It's another Big One from the M-G-M showmanship boys.

THE FLYING FLEET

The last word in aviation thrills! Plus handsome Ramon Novarro. Directed by George Hill of "Tell it to the Marines." A pippin, gents!

WEST OF ZANZIBAR

Meet Mr. Chaney in his most fascinating role since "Road to Mandalay." "West of Zanzibar" is the kind of Chaney thriller that made him the biggest!

A WOMAN OF AFFAIRS

The trio that made "Flesh and the Devil," Gilbert-Garbo and Clarence Brown have made the picture about which you'll hear nothing else but in 1929!

Talker Features

Can They Be Made Box Office Successes?

By William A. Johnston

MAX REINHARDT goes to Hollywood to make a sound picture. That is important. If the sound movie is to attract producers like Reinhardt, then there can be little doubt about the great future of the new and greater motion picture.

But, equally important is Reinhardt's statement about the new art. He will employ music and dramatic sound effects—but not dialogue. As for the all dialogue film—he means feature length subjects, of course—that, he declares, is out of the question.

We note that some of our own producing heads are also putting out late warning signals on the "all talker" feature.

All of which is salutary—and, we trust, timely.

We cannot—and need not, agree with Reinhardt that all dialogue films are impossible. It is in fact quite possible that the right combination of producing genius, suitable subject and improved voice reproduction will result in a box-office success.

But the immediate job, unquestionably, is to make good sound pictures, regardless of dialogue.

The trade at large, we believe, has been confused right along on the matter of "talker" features. The two Jolson successes were not "talker" pictures. But, apparently they were so registered in the market places and the market talk of the business. A few months ago the exhibitor was demanding just two kinds of sound pictures—talker pictures and talker news reels. And so the producers began talking and planning just such a style of goods.

Jesse Lasky now comes to the fore and says he will not permit any dialogue in "Four Feathers" because it would destroy the sweep and action of the picture.

Exactly. You cannot do two entirely different things on the same stage and for the same subject. Each is fighting the other.

The movie replaced the legitimate stage in a great run of popularity because, for one and a most important thing, it widened the horizon of the stage. The movie expressed what the stage could not—sweep of action, color, realism, etc. That was its glamor. To express a story in dialogue is to go back to the very thing the movie superceded.

We have contended from the very first that sound—of any kind, should only come into the motion picture to give dramatic emphasis, that sound effects were virtually the exclamation points of the story. We still hold this first contention.

Obviously, the thing to do is to build sound into pictures, not pictures into sound. Then we will hold fast to all the picture has accomplished and add to its expression and its audience.

The sound picture situation is highly serious. The theatres are struggling frantically to give the public what it expects, but which, generally speaking, they cannot supply with satisfaction to their patrons. The styles in our business changed suddenly overnight and the studios do not know, as yet, how to make the new kind of goods. At least, however, the producer can watch his step and play as safely as possible. We repeat, the successes thus far are pictures with songs, personalities, and sound effects. The dialogue picture is a venture, a step in the dark at best and apparently a step backwards.

"In Old Arizona"

Reviewed by Edwin Schallert

(Editor of the Los Angeles Times Preview and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News)

"IN Old Arizona" sets the pace for outdoor sound pictures. Here is a feature broadly fashioned along the lines of a western, with conversation and effects that will make those who thought the horse opera dead sit up and take notice. It may not be 100 per cent class, but it is good 90 to 95 per cent entertainment, easily one of the best novelties produced during the year just closing. All of the old reliables of the movies are on display. There is a stage coach hold-up for example before the first reel is unspun. There is cattle rustling, vaquero romancing, gun battling and all the rest of the stuff of the great open spaces, but it is dressed up with sound effects, singing and dialogue.

The plot of this picture could be stronger and the finish better. It is unfortunate they are not. However, audiences won't complain because they'll find incidental interest abundant with Warner Baxter, Edmund Lowe and Dorothy Burgess in leading roles. There is some agreeable conversation as well as acting that will convince. Baxter and Lowe are rivals for the love of the heroine, who out-Carmens Carmen and is ultimately shot when she becomes too intriguing.

"In Old Arizona" won't perhaps go down as art in the estimation of critical audiences, because it has its cruder side. But for those who have growing interest in talkies it will prove great. The sound effects, donkeys braying, steers bellowing and pigs squealing are just about the last work in the unique, and the songs help a lot. There is plenty of funny repartee between Lowe and Baxter. It's talkie or nothing in this case.

If exhibitor isn't equipped he would hardly be interested.

Tiffany Plans Circuit

Negotiations Under Way for Theatre Sites in N. Y., Philly, and Chicago; Co. Enthusiastic Over "Lucky Boy"

ANNOUNCEMENT on the part of Tiffany-Stahl of their entrance into the field of theatre operation came this week just prior to the opening of the picture organization's sales convention in Chicago. The announcement in effect is that they have under negotiation sites in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. Exact location of the sites are a secret as also is the source of the finance which might make possible the theatre building program. Unofficially in the Tiffany-Stahl home offices it is stated that they are to have theatres as fine as anything on Broadway with a capacity of at least 4,000 seats, also that their New York site is on Broadway between Times Square and 53rd Street.

It is believed by the T-S insiders that in their sound production, "Lucky Boy," they have a picture that is going to perform a miracle for them as did "The Jazz Singer" for the Warners. They state that their advance sales for the picture indicate that it will do a gross of $2,000,000, and that they believe that George Jessel will duplicate the Jolson success. The picture however will not be previewed in New York until after the sales convention is closed.

The vagueness of information as to just when and where the theatre building operations are to begin and the lack of any statement, except that the Third Dimension Pictures will revolutionize the entire field, makes it appear as though the theatre building announcement is something that will add additional enthusiasm to the T-S sales convention.

M. H. Hoffman, chief production executive of Tiffany-Stahl, stated in Hollywood several weeks ago that his organization was going to hold back on any third dimension activity until the industry as a whole had assumed something of a normalcy following the present excitement regarding talking and sound productions.

Gaumont Selects Toronto Theatre Site

On his way to St. John, N. B., to open a new office there, Edward Auger, of Toronto, general manager of Gaumont British Corporation of Canada, Limited, announced that his company would build the first of a series of large theatres in the downtown section of Toronto, a site having been secured at Yonge and Dundas Streets. This will be the official first-run outlet in Toronto for British film productions. Other large Canadian centers are to have Gaumont Theatres within the next year or 18 months.

$100,000 for Film Bureau

Renewed activity on the part of the Ontario Government Motion Pictures Bureau, with studio at Trenton, Ontario, in 1929, is foreseen in the announcement of Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer, that the Bureau would have an appropriation of $100,000 during the year.

U. S. Charges Oklahoma With Conspiracy

The U. S. Government has filed restraint of trade charges against the M.P.T.O. of Oklahoma in connection with the organization's activities in the service to non-theatrical accounts. No individuals were named in the petition, but it is charged the association has banded together to restrict to their members trade in pictures in Oklahoma and Northern Texas.

It is alleged a conspiracy exists against non-theatrical exhibitors and declare that interstate commerce is involved as all films are made outside of Oklahoma and shipped to distributing agencies from New York, New Jersey and California. It is charged that the defendant and certain individuals have banded together "to prevent every non-theatrical exhibitor of motion pictures securing such films."

Tilt Between DeForest and Paramount Still On

While DeForest Phonoflms of Canada, Limited, was denied an injunction at Montreal, Quebec, to restrain Famous Players Canadian Corp. from using the Movietone at the Palace Theatre, Montreal, the issue between the two companies is still technically alive, it is stated.

While the injunction was refused, the action for $25,000 damages against Famous Players for alleged patent infringement has not been decided in the courts, it is asserted.

Heavy Fee for Traveling Shows in Sheldon, Ia.

The city council at Sheldon, Iowa, has passed an ordinance which has proved helpful to the resident theatre men, in a law which requires $100 daily as fee from traveling shows.

High London Court Reserves Decision

WORD has been received in Toronto from London, England, that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has reserved decision after hearing the appeal to the Canadian Performing Right Society, Limited, Toronto, from the judgment of Mr. Justice Rose of the Canadian Courts which dismissed with costs the suit of the society against Famous Players Canadian Corporation for alleged infringement of two musical copyrights which the society claimed to control. The two compositions were used at the Regent Theatre, Toronto, under the direction of Famous Players, one of the pieces being the Colonel Bogey March.

In giving his decision, Mr. Justice Rose declared that the plaintiff society had not complied with the clause of the Canadian Copyright Act which requires all assignments of copyrights to be registered at Ottawa at $2 per registration. If the Privy Council decides in favor of the Canadian Performing Right Society, it is probable that all Canadian theatres would be called upon to pay the rate fixed by the society in order to obtain the use of considerable music.

Woodhull Hopes for Solid Front

M. P. T. O. A. President, Claiming 7,000 Theatre Members, Fears Two Organizations Will Injure Industry

W. F. WOODHULL, president of the M.P.T.O.A., in his New Year's statement, deprecates the advent to the industry of the Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, headed as president by Abram F. Myers, who last week tendered his resignation as presiding officer of the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Woodhull fears that without an allied front damage will result to the exhibitor interests.

In the course of his lengthy statement Mr. Woodhull claims that the M. P. T. O. A. numbers among its members 7,000 theatres. However, he says, "With an undivided front against our greatest foe the industry will suffer and the individual will find that block booking, contract clauses and some of the other timeworn ballyhoos are mere details to his success.

"Legislators, badly-advised or selfishly inclined reformers sincere and otherwise, have given us several close calls at Washington and State Capitols through the folly of divided ranks in the past. I hope this danger will not be increased by this new movement. This is one of the many important and dangerous reasons why the constructive minds of our industry deplore the idea of two organizations.

Asks Will Allied Bar Chains

"I want to ask those interested in the new movement one direct question. Will it be the policy of their new Allied States Exhibitors' Association to bar all affiliated and chain theatre owners from membership and to counsel all state organizations as may join with them, to also bar from membership the chain and affiliated theatres?

"If the latter is so we can simply sit back with sympathy for those who have been led to contribute and watch the new organization die of its own futility. There are more independent theatre owners in the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America

Poor Judgment Shown in Curtailing Trade Paper Ads, Says Showman

COMMENTING upon the articles in the Motion Picture News on the curtailment of the producers ads, B. E. Gore, operating two neighborhood houses in Tampa, Florida, says, "The first thing I look for when I open my News is the advertising of the producers. I am always anxious to see what they have to say about their latest releases and I study these ads to decide on what I believe will please my patrons.

"Just last week I found one of the News ads so attractive, and felt the pictures advertised would appeal to my patrons, I wired for and obtained three of the pictures advertised. Naturally I am sold on the pictures I selected and have preserved the ads to use in connection with my own advertising. I certainly feel the producers are showing poor judgment in cutting down on their trade paper advertising."

than there are ever likely to be drawn under the new banner. This is not a test for supremacy as a "Czar" of independent theatre owners between Mr. Myers and myself. I have never been able to visualize myself as a Czar; neither can I see Mr. Myers on any such throne. I wonder also if Mr. Myers still believes in rubles and how many it will take to pay the rumored $100,000 annual salary. I am afraid the travelling troupe will be dependent for continued support on keeping in the limelight, ignoring the proven fact that the problems of this industry can be settled within the industry through peaceful negotiations.

"Let us go into the New Year firm in the conviction that we as individuals progress only as the industry thrives. Let us spread this gospel to the unbelievers. Let us rededicate ourselves to every activity that will reflect credit to our business and watch with unceasing vigilance and strongly entrenched, the slightest movement that will bring reproach upon it."

Funds for Film Bureau

Motion Picture Section of Dept't of Commerce Can Be Given Higher Status If New Bill Is Passed

ADDITIONAL funds whereby the motion picture work of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., can be given the status of a division, instead of a section as at present, have been provided in the appropriation bill for the Department of Commerce for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, just introduced in the House of Representatives.

The need for the higher standing of the work was explained to the House Committee on Appropriations during recent hearings on the bill by Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau, who explained that the peculiar problems of the motion picture industry made it advisable to have a separate division for the work.

The motion picture industry has been one of those suffering most keenly from trade barriers abroad, the committee was told. "When the question of blocking our film trade was up for discussion in various legislatures in Europe not long ago," Dr. Klein said, "the paramount issue was the potency of the motion picture as a vehicle for promoting commerce; and there is ample evidence of the wisdom of the committee in sending a trade commissioner of this department to Europe a year ago on that problem."

Discrimination against American motion pictures by foreign governments has been largely prevented during the past year by the activities of George R. Canty, European representative of the motion picture section, Dr. Klein told the committee.

6 New Directors Join Stanley Company

Six new directors were elected to the board of the Stanley Company of America last week to fill vacancies due to resignations. Harry M. Warner was named chairman and Albert Warner was elected a director and a vice-president. The new directors are: W. Stewart McDonald, Henry Rudkin, Abel Carey Thomas and George E. Quigley. Samuel Carlisle was named whose places are taken by the new directors whose places are taken by the new directors are: John J. McGuirk, Louis J. Kolb, Etta V. Mastbaum, Clifford B. Hawley, Harry Crandall, Jacob Fabian and James B. Clark.

E. Cohen a Committeeman at Aviation Show

Emanuel Cohen, Paramount News editor and director of the Short Features Department of Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation, has received and accepted an appointment to serve on the general committee of the New York Aviation Show which is to be held at the Grand Central Palace early in February.

De Mille Victorious in Damage Suit

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—De Mille Pictures Corporation won the decision in the suit brought against the concern by Nils Chrisander, Swedish director, who asserted the company owed him $44,626 back salary. Ruling in the action was made by Superior Judge Schmidt.

Chrisander asserted he was engaged by the De Mille Studios over two years ago to direct one picture, the agreement calling for an option on his services after the film's completion. The director stated he made the picture, and the company exercised the option and had him make another production. Cecil De Mille testified that the engagement for the second picture was not under the optional agreement; but that the company had given Chrisander another chance to make good before studio officials could decide on the optional term contract.

A Christmas Present for Censors in Hollywood Party

NEWSPAPER dispatches from Hollywood this week contained a distinct Christmas present for the advocates of censorship and blue laws in the detailed accounts of the Christmas Day brawl in which Lottie Pickford, Jack Daugherty and others were involved. Newspapers justified the front page position given the story by the line "Lottie Pickford, Sister of Mary Pickford."

Without mention of Mary Pickford, the story would never have reached the telegraph wires in Hollywood.

Such is daily journalism, and, unfortunately, it is quite within its rights.

But that doesn't carry consolation to Mary Pickford, the real victim in the public mind. And it doubles the degree of resentment bound to exist within the industry, toward those directly responsible for the happening.

Here is a situation demanding prompt and effective action by the Hays organization, by the Producers' Association in Hollywood, and by every thinking member of the production colony there.

Jack Daugherty has been in newspaper headlines before.

If Lottie Pickford continues to show a dangerous lack of discretion in her choice of guests, and inability to control their actions in her home, and has so little regard and appreciation for the moral obligation she owes to the fates that made her the sister of America's Sweetheart, so little sense of the importance of her family name to a great industry, she deserves a social chastisement by every professional in Hollywood. She is not active professionally, so there is nothing the industry can do officially to express its resentment.

Daugherty has been the beneficiary of studio payrolls.

From this point on, his connection, directly or indirectly, with any reputable motion picture company, is something the public will regard as an act of forgiveness by the entire industry for the part he has played in dragging the name of Mary Pickford into a police case.

Meantime, Mary Pickford, the innocent bystander, has what little consolation she can derive from the sympathy of the industry.

More Houses For Warners

Negotiations Reported Under Way in Several States for Acquisition of Chains

RUMORS continue thick and fast with regard to the acquisition of theatres by Warner Bros., but no confirmation can be had on them from the Warner home office. It is said that negotiations are under way and have been for some time for the houses owned by the Gottesman Theatrical Enterprises of New England. Word is also on hand that the Gottesman circuit is being extended to include two additional houses in Norwich, Conn., and another house or two in Middletown. Negotiations are also reported under way for another chain of seven houses in Massachusetts. These, if the Gottesman deal is finally consummated will eventually be in the control of Warners.

L. K. Brin is said to be operating in the interest of Warners in the Northwest territory. He runs Garden and Majestic Theatres in Milwaukee and word from there is to the effect that he closed a deal last week for the Fischer circuit which operates in many cities in Wisconsin. Eight houses were involved in the transaction, including the Majestic, Madison and Parkway at Madison, the Appleton at Appleton, the Home and Portage at Portage and the Fischer's Fond du Lac at Fond du Lac and Fischer's Oshkosh at Oshkosh.

Another rumor of a chain to be acquired by Warners comes from Cleveland to the effect that negotiations are under way for the Silverman circuit, which includes the State at Akron, the Alhambra at Canton and the Palace at Lorain.

Skirboll Organizing World Wide Sales Force

Joseph Skirboll, general sales manager for World Wide Pictures, Inc., spent last Monday in Atlanta, Ga., on the second leg of a long journey which will take him to the Pacific Coast and having for its purpose the organization of World Wide's field sales force.

Following his stop in Charlotte, where E. F. Dardine, veteran exchange man, was chosen to head World Wide's sales efforts in the Carolinas, Mr. Skirboll came on to Atlanta where he conferred with Arthur Lucas, head of Educational in this territory, and Jas. H. Butler, manager of the company's Atlanta branch.

Photophone, W. Electric Join Hays Group

RCA Photophone, Inc., the subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, has joined the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., of which Will H. Hays is president.

John E. Otterson, President of Electrical Research Products, Inc., which is the manufacturer of the synchronizing process of the Western Electric Company, was also elected a member.

The two new members were admitted at a special meeting of the board of directors Thursday. David Sarnoff, President of RCA Photophone, Inc., was elected to the Board. Changes in the Board were made by the election of Harry M. Warner, representing Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and Vitagraph, Inc., and Albert Warner, representing First National Pictures, Inc.; also Hiram S. Brown was elected a Director, representing FBO Pictures Corp.

New Paramount Building Going Up at Astoria

An additional building, covering space 50 by 200 feet, is being erected by Paramount at its Long Island picture studio, where Paramount talking films are now being made. It will be finished by March 1.

The motor generators and heating plant, carpenter shop and all of the mechanical departments now located in the basement and wings of the studio will be removed entirely.

The new studio will more than double the available floor space for picture sets on the lower stage. It will consist of a basement and one story, with foundations for additional stories. All sets will be built in the shops and will then be rolled to the stages to eliminate noise.

Corinne Griffith, Alice White Sign Contracts

Alice White and Corinne Griffith have been signed to new long term contracts by First National. Miss White is to appear in four big pictures this year, all with dialogue, and Miss Griffith's contract calls for two special productions each year. The latter will also be with dialogue.

Schnitzer Strengthened by New FBO Officers

AT a meeting of the board of directors of FBO Productions, Inc., held Thursday the position of Joseph Schnitzer as president of the organization which is now controlled by RCA was materially strengthened by the election of Lee Marcus as vice-president with headquarters in New York. Charles Rosenzweig was appointed general sales manager and B. B. Kahane elected treasurer and secretary. Clinton P. Scollard and Thomas Delehanty, former secretary and treasurer respectively resigned. Herman Zohbel was elected assistant secretary and treasurer.

B. B. Kahane is also treasurer and secretary of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., and Herman Zohbel was connected with the U. S. Leather Co. for 24 years as auditor and assistant comptroller.

Broadway Legitimate Theatres Wiring for Talkies

Installation Already Made in Four Shubert Houses, While Erlanger Will Close for Equipment Shortly

BROADWAY legitimate theatres are to enter into active competition with the picture houses playing sound and talking productions by the time summer arrives. Four of the theatres controlled by the Messrs. Shubert have already contracted for the installation of Vitaphone, while the Erlanger office states that A. L. Erlanger has the matter under consideration and that he will close within the next few days for the installation of sound amplification and projection devices in the houses controlled by that office. In an announcement issued this week by George E. Quigley, vice-president of the Vitaphone Corp., 179 theatres recently contracted for Vitaphone, which will bring a total to approximately 1,800.

The Shubert theatres are the 44th Street, the Booth and the Shubert, as well as the Sam H. Harris. Just which of the Erlanger houses are to be wired has not been divulged as yet, but there is a strong possibility that the Liberty on 42nd Street is to be one of the houses. This is the house which has always been favored by picture producers ever since "The Birth of a Nation" made its debut there. The Gaiety, an Erlanger house now under lease to Pathe and sub-leased to Fox, is wired, as also was the Globe theatre last summer during the Fox tenancy there. The Gaiety, with its sub-lease to Fox, will house productions of that company until December 31, 1929, under its present terms.

Legitimate theatre operators, knowing that all of the special productions for the screen will be either with synchronized scores or in dialog, will be in a position to demand greater rentals from the picture producers if their houses are equipped to present those productions. Likewise they will fortify themselves against a condition such as exists in the legitimate theatre field today with the business all shot to pieces. With their theatres equipped, should a like condition occur, they would be in a position to step out into the picture field and take talking pictures at any time during the regular season when they were faced with a series of stage failures.

There have been a number of rumors that the Warners were interested in the marketing of a Junior Vitaphone. This report, however, is denied in toto at the Warner home offices. However, admission is made of the fact that there were a machine on the market that would adequately reproduce and amplify the Vitaphone productions and were the Warners and Western Electric to get together on the question of the adequacy of such a machine, the Warners would be ready to permit of the showing of Vitaphone productions on such a machine.

In the face of this there are reports that certain of the Warner executives are interested, with an inventor named Payson, in a reproducing device and it is expected that shortly after the first of the year an announcement will be made to the effect that this machine will be available to exhibitors at an installation cost that will not be in excess of $2,500.

At the same time reports are to the effect that the installations of various Western Electric devices for amplification are running behind schedule due to the lack of man power. Exhibitors who were promised installations during the current month have been told that they cannot possibly have their machines until some time in February.

John E. Otterson, president of the Electrical Research Products, Inc., stated in Chicago this week that his organization has sold in excess of $20,000,000 worth of equipment in 1928, that there were 1,000 houses wired in the country at present and that during the coming year 3,000 additional would be wired by his company. There would be also 600 wired in European countries. On the coast 30 studios are now installing sound production equipment and there are 140 sound recording trucks ordered by various producing organizations. Some of these will be utilized for news reel work, while the majority will be assigned to outdoor production shots.

The prediction is that next year's production output will have more than 200 features that will be made in dialog and sound.

The list of theatres that have just signed contracts for Vitaphone equipment are:

Sam Harris Theatre, 44th St. Theatre, Booth Theatre, Shubert Theatre, New York City; Avalon Theatre, Farragut Theatre, Midwood Theatre, Marine Theatre, Patio Theatre, Brooklyn; Grove Theatre, Freeport, N. Y.; Huntington Theatre, Huntington, N. Y.; Merrick Theatre, Jamaica, N. Y.; St. Albans Theatre, Long Island City, N. Y.; Beacon Theatre, Port Washington, N. Y.; Oasis Theatre, Queens, N. R-K-O Head Wars on Surcharge Ruling Abolishing Excess Booking Charges May Effect Motion Picture House Presentations

THE split-commission policy in the booking office of Keith-Albee-Orpheum is to be ousted under the new regime that has taken over the combined vaudeville circuits which are now known as the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. That much was apparent in a brief talk that Hiram S. Brown, former president of the U. S. Leather Corp. who has been placed at the head of the combined amusement interests, made last week to a group of assembled newspaper men.

The abolishment of the 50 per cent surcharge made on artists' representatives by the Vaudeville Collection Agency, which was a subterfuge conceived during the early days of the Booking Agency Law, will tend to but one thing in its effect on motion picture theatres, and that is in such houses as are booking vaudeville attractions either as individual acts or as part of their presentations these attractions might in the future be more difficult to obtain. That at least would appear on the surface to be the aim of the new directors of the combined vaudeville chains.

The advent of the presentations in motion picture theatres of the country gave long suffering vaudeville acts a new outlet for their talents. The old regime in vaudeville held that the actor was to be held under thumb at all times and that their salaries were to be regulated by a salary fixing committee that functioned in the home offices here. Then came the question of percentages to be paid by the artists first to the booking office itself and then an additional percentage to their personal representative.

The Law fixed commissions at five per cent. That five per cent was deducted by the Booking Office for its own coffers. Then it charged the personal representative of the act or artist fifty per cent of an additional five per cent that the artist was paying him, this in turn made the agent turn to the act and personally demand anywhere from five to fifteen per cent in addition to the ten per cent that had already been deducted from the salary of the act.

These are the tactics that made it possible for the motion picture theatre to choose and pick as it pleased from the ranks of vaudeville such acts as it wanted.

Morris Vice-President

Former General Sales Manager Is Also Appointed General Manager of Warner Bros.

SAM E. MORRIS, who for several years past has been General Sales Manager for Warner Bros., was last week appointed Vice-President and General Manager in charge of distribution for that company. The announcement was made by Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Bros. For the past seven years Mr. Morris has built up the Warner sales organization to its present status of efficiency.

Mr. Morris is well qualified to handle the duties of his new executive post. He has served as an executive in many branches of the film industry. A native of Oil City, Pa., he spent most of his boyhood in Cleveland. Upon graduation from school he went with the American Tobacco Company and as foreign manager of that concern traveled all over the world.

He entered the motion picture industry as an exhibitor in Pittsburgh. He later acquired the Home Theatre in Cleveland and eventually operated three other houses there. In Cleveland he was elected Chairman of the Film Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

From exhibitor Mr. Morris became an exchange manager in Cleveland for the World Film Company and later came to New York as Vice-President and General Manager of Select Pictures. When Warner Bros. underwent its first expansion seven years ago Mr. Morris assumed charge of the sales department. One of his first accomplishments was the reorganization of the selling force when Warners acquired the old Vitaphone Company.

The enormous popularity of Vitaphone pictures is also attributed largely to Mr. Morris' efficient selling methods. Vitaphone pictures have amassed unheard of grosses that have advanced the company to its present prosperous condition.

Ezell Warner Sales Chief

Old Company Employee Succeeds Sam Morris, Just Named Vice-President of Organization

ONE of the first steps taken by Sam E. Morris, newly appointed Vice-President and General Manager of Warner Bros., was the naming of Claude C. Ezell as his successor as General Sales Manager. Mr. Ezell has been with the Warner organization for a number of years and has already assumed his new duties.

The new General Sales Manager of the Warner organization has had almost twenty years of experience in the film industry. He started his career with the Bass Film Company in New Orleans and later served as branch manager and Southern Division Manager with General Film Company.

Since joining Warner Bros. a number of years ago, Mr. Ezell has occupied the post of Southern and Western Sales Manager. In commenting on the promotion of Mr. Ezell, Mr. Morris said:

"No one is better equipped both in experience and initiative to undertake the responsibilities of this post than Claude Ezell. It is a great pleasure to me to announce the appointment, not only because of his own capabilities, but because it gives us a chance to exercise our policy to give promotions to members of our own personnel who have proved their value to the organization."

Netoco Files Plans for New Waltham Theatre

Plans for the foundation of a new theatre to be constructed on East Moody Street, just west of Gordon Street, Waltham, Mass., were filed recently and the office of Superintendent of Buildings Cole has issued a permit for the construction of the house.

Approximately $35,000 will be the cost of the theatre, details of which have not been completed. The theatre will be the new Netoco Oriental Theatre and in front of the house itself, which will extend easterly almost to Union Street, there will be a two-story business structure with five stores, the theatre entrance on the ground floor and a restaurant on the second floor. The stage of the house will face Moody Street.

The architects are Krokyn, Browne and Rosenstein, of Boston. The builder is Benjamin Steinberg.

Censors Pass "Dawn" for Montreal Showing

"Dawn," the British production, has just been passed by the Quebec Board of Moving Picture Censors and is booked for early release in Montreal. The Ontario Censors continue to keep it on the black list, however, and it has also been condemned by the Saskatchewan censor board.

M-G-M Issuing Five Films During January

Five feature productions will be released to exhibitors by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer next month. The five are as follows:

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," the picture now playing at the Astor with William Haines and Lionel Barrymore in talking and silent sequences, "The Flying Fleet," starring Ramon Novarro with Anita Page; "The Loves of Casanova," a continental drama with Ivan Mosjoukine in the title role; "Morgan's Last Raid," a Tim McCoy western vehicle; and "A Single Man," a Lew Cody-Aileen Pringle vehicle.

"U" Engages Dance Director
Maurice Kusell has been signed by Universal to stage the dances in "Broadway."

H. B. Franklin Predicts a Profitable Year

HAROLD B. FRANKLIN, president of West Coast Theatres, forecasts "greater stability and continued growth" during 1929. In his statement, issued at the Los Angeles office of West Coast, he predicts that the year will witness a continual improvement and development in both the sound and silent pictures and a new assortment of talent introduced through the talking screen. He declares new advances will be made in technique and more of the practices of the stage will be absorbed by the screen. All producing and exhibiting organizations, he says, will be geared to meet the new condition brought about by the sound film. Mr. Franklin complimented the Warner Bros. and the Fox organization in fostering the sound film.

"Never in recent years have the Coast states been in so favorable economic position as they are today," asserted Mr. Franklin. He believes that 1928 will go down in movie annals as "the year when talking pictures talked themselves into the motion picture industry."

Ore. Exhibitors Meet to Discuss Legislation

IN order to present a solid front to combat any state or national legislation detrimental to the motion picture industry, the Oregon Theatre Association met at the Benson Hotel, Portland, Ore. and discussed a number of national and state bills that are expected to come up at an early date. They agreed that each exhibitor should "put his house in order" and be ready to help defend their business and the industry at large against any and all adverse legislation.

Some thirty members were present at the meeting, and listened to Harry Poole, exhibitor of Klamath Falls, discuss block-booking and other timely subjects. Another meeting will be held on Jan. 4th. Mrs. Pearl Potter was elected permanent secretary.

Seven Short Subjects from M-G-M in January

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is releasing seven short subjects during January in addition to the regularly semi-weekly issues of the M-G-M News.

A Ufa Oddities, "Kisses Come High," is the first release, being set for January 5. "Going Ga Ga," with Ed Kennedy, Marion Byron and Max Davidson, is also scheduled for the same date.

"Manchu Love," a Great Events story, is a Technicolor two-reeler set for January 12, at which time "Election Day," an "Our Gang" vehicle will be released. "Uphill and Downhill," another Oddities, is to be released on January 19. Charley Chase appears in "Ruby Lips," set for January 19, also. "Liberty," a new Laurel-Hardy comedy, completes the group of releases and is scheduled for January 26.

In addition, 8 Metro Movietone acts are to be released, beginning January 5.

Bancitaly Stock Listed as Trans-America Corp.

The withdrawal from the board of the Bancitaly stock has caused no little concern to a number of holders of those certificates who were not entirely familiar with what was happening. As a matter of fact all of the Bancitaly stock has now been transferred to the Trans-America Corp. and is now listed under that name.

The certificates of the Trans-America Corp. will be ready for distribution to the stockholders during the coming month.

All stockholders of the Bancitaly who have not already done so should immediately turn in their Bancitaly certificates to the Bank of Italy depositories or depositories designated by the corporation and receive certificates of deposit for the same. These deposit certificates can be used for trading purposes until the new Trans-America Corp. certificates are issued.

A Correction

In the MOTION PICTURE NEWS Check-Up, published in the December 8th issue, the percentage value of "The King of Kings" (Pathe) was incorrectly given as .74. The reports for this picture properly totaled give a percentage rating of .84.

Warner Booking Office for Theatre Talent

IT was reported yesterday that the Warner Bros. were forming their own booking offices for the engaging of vaudeville and musical talent for their own theatres as well as those of the Stanley circuit. This office will also handle booking of talent for the Vitaphone productions that are being made in the east under the direction of Bryan Foy who came from Hollywood several weeks ago.

E. A. Darling, who was the principal booker for the Keith-Albee theatres until the recent acquisition of these theatres and the booking office by R.C.A., is reported as having been placed in charge of the Warner's booking offices. Al Lloyd who came east with Foy will also undoubtedly be attached to the office.

Otterson Concedes Interchangeability on Proper Equipment

J. E. OTTERSON, president of Electrical Research Products, has taken the blanket off interchangeability. He has come to an agreement with the licensees of Western Electric Company which concedes that their picture products may be shown on theatre equipment that in their judgment reproduces satisfactorily. He reserves the right, however, to demonstrate that the quality of the equipment may not be up to the standard, and in such event the companies will be ordered to cease service.

Mr. Otterson's statement follows:

"We have reached an understanding with the producers licensed by us that they will play their productions on any equipment which in their judgment gives results of satisfactory quality. If they find or we demonstrate that the quality is not up to standard then they will cease to serve such equipment.

"To the Exhibitor we say if you can get an equipment as good as ours for less money, buy it; but if it is of lower quality do not buy it at any price. Wait until you can offer your public the best.

"The continued success of talking pictures depends upon the maintenance of quality. Indeed, I may say it depends upon an improvement in quality. As the public taste develops it will become more exacting and critical, and it is essential that there be continued improvement in the quality of production and of apparatus to meet these more exacting requirements.

"If the producer, the exhibitor or ourselves compromise on this question of quality and accept quality lower than our present standards, the cause of talking pictures is lost.

"If the exhibitor installs equipment that gives inferior quality of reproduction, he has not only wasted the cost of that equipment but he has injured the good name of his house and ruined his market for talking pictures. He cannot afford to pay less than the cost of the best.

"We will not in the interest of sales put on the market apparatus of lower quality than the best we can build. Our first efforts will always be directed toward higher quality and this quality will never be sacrificed to lower prices.

"If other manufacturers can build and sell equipment as good as ours for less money and it is equipment that does not infringe on our patents they deserve the business and will get it."

What the forthcoming means is that the exhibitor fight in New York for the rights to play all product on whatever sound projecting and amplifying device they may be able to secure for their theatres is bearing fruit. The executives of ERPI evidently recall the days of the old Motion Picture Patents Company and the fate which finally befell them when they tried to intimidate the entire exhibitor field.

Right now the exhibitor can go out and get any machine he wants that is capable of filling his needs, and if the question arises as to the standard of quality of reproduction, then there is certainly left the field of arbitration on that question.

30 Productions Lined Up by Schnitzer for New FBO Program

AFTER several weeks spent in negotiations with Broadway producers and novelists, Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of FBO, has lined up 30 special productions for the program of 1929-30. The company began acquiring forthcoming product after the ascension of Mr. Schnitzer to the president's chair, formerly occupied by Joseph P. Kennedy. With the recently created Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, a new policy in pictures has been adopted by FBO.

The titles of the new material have not been revealed by Mr. Schnitzer as yet, but just as soon as final contracts have been signed, an announcement of their consummation will be made. Sound and silent neg-atives will be made of each production, it is said.

William Le Baron, vice-president of FBO in charge of production, returned to the Coast last week after several weeks' conference with Mr. Schnitzer concerning the firm's widened scope of operation. He announces that the program of expansion will be inaugurated with the sound-proofing of the present stages at the FBO Studios in Hollywood. In addition, a new sound-stage will be erected. Construction to begin as soon as plans and specifications are ratified within the next few days. As equipment for FBO's sound operations, Photophone outfits are enroute from New York.

Instructive Films Non-Paying

University of California Representative Holds No Company Operates at Profit Handling Such Films

"THERE is not one company today in the United States distributing educational motion pictures at a profit," according to the statement of Edward Mayer, executive secretary of University of California's Department of Visual Education, in a lecture delivered before the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

This condition exists despite the fact that there are over 23,000 schools, churches, clubs, farm bureaus, and other organizations equipped with projection apparatus and using educational films, continued Mr. Mayer, who further stated that it is an economic impossibility to distribute educational motion pictures through a commercial organization at the present time. An educational film distributor would have to maintain extensive exchanges with an overhead that would not justify itself in rental returns.

"The Past, Present and Future of the Educational Motion Picture" was the subject of Mr. Mayer's lecture, which covered the history of the educational film in detail.

After tracing the historical background of pictures, Mr. Mayer declared that the United States government was among the first to utilize motion pictures for instruction, producing in 1906 and exhibiting at the Jamestown Exposition in 1907 a number of pictures covering the U. S. Reclamation Service. Since that time the department of Agriculture has developed a large number of films and maintains a production laboratory at Washington.

Universities Distribute Film

Some 20 years ago, a few universities maintained distributing centers for slides as part of their extension work. With the development of motion pictures, it was a natural step for these few universities to undertake distribution of educational films. The University of Wisconsin, which now maintains the largest non-commercial distributing unit in this country, was one of the original pioneers; and was followed by Universities of Iowa, Kansas and California, with 21 prominent universities now carrying on this work.

In giving statistics on the work of the University of California in the educational film field, Mr. Mayer presented the following figures: Over three hundred organizations are being supplied each month with educational films. Distribution averages about 1200 pictures monthly between September and June. Since the University established the Department of Visual Education ten years ago the annual distribution of films has been:

The University of California is allowed only $4000 annually for purchase of pic-

Demand Stage Hand for Ontario Talkies

SOMEWHAT of a crisis has been reached in the Province of Ontario between exhibitors and the union men with the advent of the sound films. The kick has not come from the projectionists nor from the musicians, it is declared, but from the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

The demand has been made for the placing of one stage hand in theatres presenting sound pictures exclusively and the union is asking that three stage hands be employed in houses having stage presentations in addition to the sound pictures. In one instance the manager of a theatre which has no stage has been asked to hire a stage hand. This manager had just engaged two more projection machine operators, making four in all, after wiring the house.

tures; with average cost per reel of $100. This makes it necessary to purchase used prints from various sources. The department also acts as a clearing house for information on all matters pertaining to motion pictures.

Educational motion pictures are now on the verge of a revolution, however. At the present time, with but few exceptions, the standard width film is the only kind used by schools. It will be only a matter of two or three years before the schools will be using the 16mm or narrow width film exclusively.

Two or three reels of the 16mm film can be purchased for the same cost as one reel of standard width film. Distribution of pictures on the narrow gauge stock will be materially reduced on account of elimination of insurances, special storage vaults and heavy shipping cases. The films can be rented at a much lower cost, which should triple the present scope of distribution within three or four years.

The film industry can be of inestimable value in allowing certain films with historical backgrounds to be re-edited so that the educational features of the pictures would be made available for instructional work. At the present time, negatives of many productions with potential educational qualities are lying idle in the vaults of the various film companies.

After the lecture, highlights of which have been detailed above, Mr. Mayer, who is one of the best informed educators in the visual instruction field, declared that the exhibition of educational pictures in any city or community should not endanger the business of the picture theatre; in fact, he has encountered many instances whereby the local exhibitor has gained both prestige and profit by co-operating with those interested in the exhibition of educational films.

Lupino Lane Stages Revue During Christmas Week

A revue along the lines of the Music Box Revue in which he made his stage debut in Los Angeles about two years ago, is being presented during Christmas week by Lupino Lane, Educational comedy star. His schedule of work at the Educational studio is said to be so far in advance that the comedian will possibly not resume work on any of the pictures until the run of his revue is completed.

Moviephone Given First Public Demonstration

The Moviephone, Dr. S. N. Baruch's device for recording and reproducing sound and the human voice, was given its first public audition last Friday night at the Little Carnegie Playhouse in New York in conjunction with the premiere of "Lucrezia Borgia." Sound Pictures, Inc., headed by Dr. Baruch, is sponsoring the device.

The Moviephone employs the spool system of operation. The recording instrument operates on a driven wire from spool to spool passing through two magnetic telephone magnetic poles. The entire process revolves around the magnetic wire which is some 10,000 feet in length. The telephonic system reproduces all of the magnetic fluxes.

At the Carnegie Playhouse demonstration, the Moviephone reproduced the voices of personages in the house with satisfactory fidelity as to timber and feeling.

Dr. Baruch claims that his device can register accurately for recording in the open air, that it can record telephone conversation, and that it can be used in connection with television. He asserts that his machine does not have to rely on a key wire with which to make copies and that the same can be made with perfect ease.

No definite plans of selling has been made to date but exchanges will shortly be established, it is said.

Graves and Costello Are Signed for Levine Serial

Nat Levine, producer, has signed Helene Costello and Ralph Graves for the leads in his new serial, "The Fatal Warning," which goes into work on January 2 under the direction of Richard Thorpe and the production management of Ben Schwalb as a Mascot production. Levine is now selecting supporting players for the story, which will have action against a society background.

Warners to Abandon Program Pictures for Extended Runs, Specials

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—Warner Bros., it is reported, will publicly announce shortly that the 1929 production plans contemplate abandoning the making of program pictures entirely by that studio and Warners will concentrate entirely on making specials and extended run productions only.

It is said that $15,000,000 will be spent on thirty-five of these productions, fifteen of which will be extended runs and twenty specials. Last year's program cost slightly over $10,000,000. Every one of the thirty-five will be 100 per cent Vitaphone and there will also be silent versions, according to Jack Warner, production chief of Warner Bros.

The stars that will be used in these pictures include Al Jolson, John Barrymore, Dolores Costello, Sophie Tucker, George Arliss, Ted Lewis, Thomas Meighan, Grant Withers, H. B. Warner and David Lee.

New German Restrictions on Film Imports

Reduction in Number of Permits for Features; Shorts Not Affected; Other News of Berlin Trade

By HEINRICH FRAENKEL

(Berlin Correspondent, Motion Picture News)

THE new settlement of the German import situation just decided on by the authorities is on the lines of the old settlement providing for a numerical restriction of imports. As the present term expires on June 30th of next year, the new settlement holds good from July 1st, 1929, until June 30th, 1930. During that time the total amount of foreign pictures allowed on the German market is limited to 210. For the time being, however, 160 import permits only will be available, the remaining 50 to be a reserve to be used at the discretion of the authorities. This is a reduction compared with the previous year allowing 210 and a reserve of 50.

The available permits will be shared by individual companies according to the amount of German features handled by them during the last two calendar years, the reserve of 50 permits being meant, among others, for new companies.

As heretofore, there is no restriction in importing short comedies and news reels to the German market as long as they do not exceed a footage of 1,500, that means to say that the considerable business done by American short slapstick comedies on the German market will not be impeded.

Whereas, however, educational films have also been unrestricted under the old settlement, the new one provides for rather a severe restriction of imports, inasmuch as in order to import a foreign full-size educational feature the Germany company handling it will have to prove that during the last year it has handled two German educational features of about the same footage.

It must be borne in mind that the new settlement of the German import situation is by no means a definite one, but only provisional and pending the time when the decision reached at during the international Geneva free trade conference will come into force. As the German government has failed to enter the film industry for exemption, the new German import settlement will obviously be illegal as soon as the Geneva decisions come into force, which may be the case even before the end of the new term, i. e., June 30th, 1930. It seems likely that the German film industry will fall back on the old quota system (probably 1:1).

The German trade is generally pleased about the statement that a Berlin exhibitor who incidentally happened to be a member of the Reichstag is preparing a bill which, it may be hoped, shall considerably alleviate many troubles of the trade. The bill is said to provide for the creation of a special government office for films. The bill requires the amount of Mks. 1,000,000 ($250,000) to be collected by Government funds for supporting educational film production.

According to a report from our Berlin correspondent the Austrian authorities have complied with repeated complaints from foreign importers, chiefly American companies, by way of eliminating the restrictions as to the number of imported prints.

Whilst so far talkies have been shown intermittently only in the Berlin first run houses, a cinema is now about to be opened which will exclusively show sound pictures. The Cinema is being built in Potsdam. Generally speaking German public opinion seems to be still rather reluctant, not to say skeptical about the "talkies."

Establish Cueing Service in Chicago

The Exhibitors Cueing Service, which specializes in cueing motion pictures in conjunction with double turntable devices, has established headquarters in Chicago. Marie Pierson, in charge, supervises the cueing of films submitted and the exhibitor is informed of the name, number and manufacturer of each record and is also given a detailed cue sheet, with full instructions. The cueing service is available for any single film or for an entire year's booking, it is said.

Additional Exhibitor Reports Recount Sound Problems

Motion Picture News Survey Shows Theatre Managers Well Pleased With Reproducing Devices

Editor's Note.—This is the second of a series of reports to MOTION PICTURE NEWS from Key City exhibitors whose houses are equipped with sound reproducing apparatus. The series is intended as a guide for those exhibitors who have not yet made installations. It contains much valuable information as to experiences, overhead costs, projection and service problems. Much grief may be forestalled by any exhibitor by a careful reading of the entire series.

ADDITIONAL advice is given by exhibitors who have sound reproducing equipment installed, in this second batch of reports in the survey inaugurated by MOTION PICTURE NEWS. As in the first reports printed last week they all attest to the higher cost of operation, but find it justified by the remarkable increase in attendance.

Various problems in installation, lighting and the successful reproduction of the talkies are outlined and intelligently answered here. All reports show that such problems have been easily overcome in some instances by the house operators themselves and in others through the splendid service given by the installation companies.

This week's reports follow:

Year's Experience With Sound

TAMPA.—"Sell yourself, and then you will have no trouble in selling sound pictures to the public," says George B. Peck, manager of Tampa's talkie house, the Victory.

The talkies have been on trial in Tampa for practically a year now. They are a genuine success. Two of the talking features have been given two consecutive weeks showings, while most of the others have played a full week, which was unheard of before the advent of the sound films.

There are 26 theatres in Tampa. All but five of them are playing motion pictures. The four big down-town theatres, and one of the finest of the neighborhood houses, are operated by one company, Consolidated Amusements.

In January of this year Consolidated gave Tampa its first talkie. The company was fortunate in having a house of physical construction for the successful reproduction of the sound films. This house was the Victory, with the height, breadth and width, plus a seating capacity of 1600.

After the equipment was installed in the Victory, Mr. Peck did a great deal of experimental work to determine the best location for the horns. They were placed, and tried out, in many different positions.

It was finally decided that the ideal location was directly back of the screen.

Asked about the overhead, Mr. Peck said:

"Naturally our overhead was reduced. We discontinued our orchestra, organist and stage crew. The only extra help needed with this form of entertainment is the extra men in the booth."

Praises Service

"We get excellent service. An inspector visits us every week or ten days and his route is always before us so that we can reach him promptly in case of an emergency. In the year's showing we have had but one accident that might have tied us up. A 'short' developed in the system one night at the close of the performance. We wired for the inspector, who arrived in the morning, and succeeded in locating the trouble and starting our show just a few minutes after our regular opening hour.

The lovers of a Verne story. June Daly and Lloyd Hughes in a romantic scene from M.G.M.'s "The Mysterious Island," in which Captain Nemo and the vivid Verne imagination provide a vivid entertainment

"I think this Vitaphone and Movietone entertainment is simply Manager' Heaven. I believe every exhibitor should install the sound equipment as soon as he can get it. After he has the equipment all set, his troubles are practically over."

DES MOINES.—"Improvements have been made since the introduction of sound pictures and will continue to aid the exhibitor who is showing the talkies," says Sidney Sigelbaum, manager of the Des Moines Theatre. "While the overhead is increased in our case by $750 a week by the addition of the sound pictures and newsreels, the exhibitor who comes into a virgin field with a sound equipped theatre can knock off the cost of his installation in four to ten weeks if he is any showman at all while after that the increase in business of 50 per cent to 100 per cent with no average of less than 30 per cent over the previous year's business shows that the theatre profits with the sound pictures."

The mechanical department of the Des Moines theatres have met a number of emergency situations so that there has been no serious break in the program of pictures since the installation last April.

More carbons are used and there is more need of replacement of lamps with the stronger light used at the Des Moines and it is estimated that replacements weekly average $15.

Adds One to Booth Crew

It is necessary to have two men in the booth instead of one as previously and these men state that they are not only kept busy but that it requires a man of some intelligence and preferably one of mechanical skill to meet all the situations arising promptly and aptly. This extra man is, of course, an addition included in the estimate of the overhead. The service charge to the producing company is about $200 a week and estimates include larger amounts. There is also the newsreel. The service charge to the engineer of the Electric Research Company who keeps the mechanisms of a chain of theatres in order visiting them sometimes weekly, varies according to the number of theatres reached each week. The engineer who covers the Des Moines theatres has ten theatres to look after and the exhibitors report that he has given them very good service.

SALT LAKE CITY.—The local theatres which have been equipped for sound productions have been tremendously successful in this venture. The Victory Theatre which was the first house here to present the talking pictures and which is equipped for the Vitaphone productions, broke house records continuously for many weeks in succession after this change of policy and is continuing to enjoy an in-

MOULIN ROUGE

Brings gay Paris to America

Dupont rented the famous night resort and its entire beauty cast of the daring "Paris-New York Revue"—the show no visitor to Paris misses—for the background of the strange love-triangle of his story.

It's like a night at the Moulin Rouge.

Mlle. Checova runs the gamut of human emotions in her characterization of the stage beauty who unwillingly fascinates her young daughter's fiance.

The love story climaxes in a motor race with death that is a triumph of cinematic art.

A rare and stirring entertainment.

PAWNS OF PASSION

On snow-swept Russian steppes

The story opens with a smash as the persecuted beauty with her little son escaping across the Russian frontier in a sleigh are caught in a running cavalry battle of the Bolsheviks, crash into a shell hole, and in the ensuing melee are separated.

After weeks of weary searching for her child she attempts suicide in Paris but is rescued by an artist. Bohemian art studio love follows. At the wild artists' ball the villain again finds her. He is thwarted and the child recovered in the most thrilling ice scene since "Way Down East".

Exhibitors Offer Advice On Sound

Answer Problems for Benefit of Theatres Not Already Equipped crease of at least forty per cent each week over previous records, it is reported.

No trouble whatsoever has been experienced at the Victory, and an inspector looks over this equipment once a week. The booth had to be entirely remodeled and enlarged somewhat for this installation.

The Pantages theatre which has just recently added sound equipment in the form of the Movietone device, reports very satisfactory results with business very much increased. Some difficulty was experienced during the first week of the installation, but this was very soon and satisfactorily overcome.

The Pantages theatre underwent a great deal of remodeling for the purpose of installing this sound device. A good portion of the back of the theatre was changed and some enlarging done and the projection booth was entirely remodeled.

The American Theatre expects to have their sound device installed by March 1 it is announced, and according to reports the remaining houses of the Louis Mareus Enterprises here in addition to the Victory, consisting of the Paramount Empress and Capitol theatres, will be equipped for sound within the near future.

Cost Too High for Small House

CLEVELAND—A survey of the Cleveland theatres emphasizes the fact brought out at the Ohio exhibitors convention by a leading exhibitor that the sound equipment now installed and operating in Cleveland theatres is too costly for the small house.

Six Loew houses in Cleveland are sound equipped. Of these, four are downtown houses, and two are uptown houses. None of these houses required any physical alterations for sound equipment. Acoustics, in most cases, were satisfactory. In some instances additional horns had to be properly placed to take care of occasional dead spots. But on the whole the theatres required practically no alterations when sound policies were adopted.

Aside from the high cost of sound installation, the cost of operating a sound

"The Leathernecks" bob up again as a theme for a movie. William Boyd (center) and Robert Armstrong and Alan Hale are seen in a new Pathe release which deals with the adventures of Uncle Sam's marines policy is vastly higher than a silent policy, according to a statement made by William A. Haynes, assistant general manager of the Loew Theatres. Two additional operators and a stage hand are required where sound is used, in addition to the regular operators and electricians. These additional workers are required alike for both small and large houses, so that the overhead is greatly increased. The high cost of records also materially increases the operating overhead of the sound theatres, says Haynes. Add to this the increased price of sound features, over silent features, as well as the added cost of sound short subjects, and the total operating increase is tremendous. Only those houses with large seating capacity are able to stand this increased overhead and reap any profit from sound programs, in Haynes' opinion. A small house playing capacity all the time cannot overcome this increase. Therefore it is impractical for the small-houses to install the present available equipments with any sense of optimism.

Grindell-Matthews Will Form Talkie Firm

H. GRINDELL-MATTHEWS, English inventor, has organized the Grindell-Matthews Speaking Film Corporation with a capitalization of $25,000. The process to be used is sound-on-film. Matthews became famous as the inventor of the death ray and claims to hold patents on sound producing and reproducing equipment. On his last visit to New York some months ago he threatened to bring suit for infringement on some of his patents against leading producing companies.

Director Talks In "On Trial" Trailer

Archie Mayo is the first director to appear in a talkie trailer for a feature picture. He will be seen and heard when the trailer for Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture, "On Trial" is presented. Mayo directed this feature. Others who talk for the trailer are: Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson, Holmes Herbert, Richard Tucker and Jason Robards.

"U" to Star Rubin in Historical Talkie Series

Universal is preparing to produce a series of Movietone short subjects dealing with characters in history, Benny Rubin to star. Emphasis will be placed on comedy characters. Rubin will finish his engagement at the New York Colony within a week and will then entrain for Universal City to start production on the first subject under the direction of Jacques Rollens. Stories are being written by C. Jerome Horwin. Rubin is supplying the dialogue himself.

New Title for Powers Cinephone Production

"Chopin's Passion" supplants "White Lilies" as the title of the first Powers Cinephone all-sound production. It is now in its final stages of editing and cutting under Harry Revier's direction.

"Synthetic Sin" Trailer

An audible trailer for "Synthetic Sin," First National's current Colleen Moore release, has been issued by the advertising and publicity department. The miniature First National Ad Man is animated in this novelty sales talk, which relates the story. Music and sound effects are also included.

Will Investigate Voice Secrets Via Talkies

A NOVEL use for talking films is planned by Professor G. Oscar Russell, director of the Ohio State University phonetics laboratories, Columbus, O. By means of a special apparatus designed by Dr. Russell and called the "laryngo periskop," motion pictures will be made of opera stars' vocal cords, the films to synchronize with records which will be made simultaneously with the tests. X-ray photos will also be made of the singers' throats.

Professor Russell is making the tests at the instigation of the American Academy of Teachers of Singing and is working in cooperation with the Carnegie Foundation. The research is expected to take about two years.

"U" is Pleased With Sound System

Scientific Handling of Talking Pictures Revealed in Making

UNIVERSAL'S new sound-proof stage system which has been in operation for a month has been found to be flawless. The first stage group consists of four sub-units: two stages for the actual filming, each 60 by 100 feet; a combined theatre and monitor room, 35 by 50, located between the stages; and an apparatus and office section, 73 by 53, located between the stages and across the hall from the theatre section.

Communication between the various sections of the stage group is through a double series of sound-proof doors, each separated by a vestibule so that it is impossible to have the two doors open at the same time and thus permit sound of any nature to penetrate from one section to another.

The stages are of the truss type, the walls being built of sound-insulating material. The interiors are covered with an inch thickness of a special cork-felt composition and padded with soft material.

Probably the best way to get an idea of the size and efficiency with which the plant operates is to watch a company filming dialogue sequences and trace the sound recording.

Spectators Barred

No one is permitted to enter the stage while a company is working. People with colds are refused admission for a sneeze or a cough would ruin a scene.

The actors have rehearsed their lines and are ready. The powerful silent incandescent lights are switched on. The cameras are in sound-proof cages, five feet square and seven feet high. These are padded cells set on rollers with two plate glass windows in the front, one for the camera to shoot through and the other for the director to observe the action. The door is of the refrigerator lock type and makes the cell air tight. There is sufficient air to last for a long scene without discomfort to the cameraman and director.

The director and cameraman are locked in, the scene is almost ready. A series of a half dozen microphones are held out over the set by long counter-balanced arms. These are just above the camera range. They are set wherever action and spoken lines are to take place. Other microphones are set off stage near various sound devices. In this scene there is a storm outside. There must be lightning, the roar of thunder, the patter of raindrops on the windows and roof, and the whine of wind. One microphone is set near a suspended sheet of tin which gives the thunder; another near a sprinkler gives the patter of rain and a third near a canvas roller wind-effect machine.

Sitting on the set watching you merely see the scene start, hear the effects and hear the call of "Cut" over a loud speaker. But the shooting of a dialogue sequence is a more complicated matter than that.

Microphone Outlets Abundant

The walls of the stage are literally dotted with electric sockets where microphones may be plugged in as convenient.

On a balcony on one side of the stage is a glass enclosed monitor room where the sounds from the various microphones are properly "mixed." The microphones are plugged in on different lines which run to a large control device on the balcony. Each microphone is connected with a rheostat by which the volume of sound from that particular microphone can be regulated. In this way the wind device will not be recorded louder than the thunder and the thunder will not drown out the dialogue in important dramatic moments, yet, when dialogue stops momentarily, an unusually loud clap of thunder can be recorded with telling effect.

Blank Record on Film

In the Movietone method which Universal uses, the sound is not recorded on the film which shoots the scene. A blank is left on the sound strip on the edge of the film. The sound is recorded on another film on which the blank represents the scene. The positive print which is run in the projection machine is obtained by double printing the scene negative and the sound negative. The wires continue on from the monitor room to a recording room in the apparatus section of the stage system and it is here, 100 feet from the stage and separated from it by a half dozen thickness of soundproof walls, that the sound is actually recorded on film. The camera in the cell on the stage and the camera in the recording room are on the same switch and are started together by the monitor on a signal from the director.

In another recording room, at the same time the sound is being recorded on the film, it is being recorded on a wax record. Immediately after the scene is completed this record, which is a test record, is played back to the director and if it is satisfactory and contains no flaws in speech, lost syllables, mispronounced words, poor pausing between words or hesitation on an actor's part in recalling his lines, the scene is approved and production progresses to the next scene.

M-G-M Averaging Eight Shorts Weekly in N. Y. Studios

THE newly-organized Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in New York City are turning out lots of short product under the new regime which recently took charge. Major E. J. Bowes and Louis K. Sidney are in dual control of all activities and are making a good job of it. They are spending practically all of their time at the studios. Nick Grinde, recently imported from the west coast is director-in-chief, Ira Morgan, west coast photographer is head of cameramen and Edward Brophy is production manager.

While these executives are furnishing all of the product possible their policy is not to sacrifice quality for quantity. They are getting quality, as some of the late acts made and heard at the studio show, and at the same time they are completing eight, nine or ten acts a week. The short subject field has hit a lively stride lately, according to Director Grinde. "We are making an ordinary act that runs seven minutes on the screen in about four and one-half hours now," said Mr. Grinde, "and we will improve on that time shortly."

In that four and one-half hours are included the time necessary for makeup, rehearsal and the instructions that go to the artists. It also includes a preliminary test which is recorded on a wax disc and played back for possible errors.

"We have gotten this thing down to pretty much of a science now," said Mr. Grinde. "During the past week we have brought acts over from Brooklyn after they had completed their night shows and we had a full record of those acts by 4 o'clock in the morning."

"We have had to run on a day and night schedule for the reason that many artists are occupied with their regular work all day long and only have spare time after eleven at night. On this schedule we can make three acts in the course of a day's work."

Among the problems that confronted the sound producers was salaries for acts.

"There was a lot of feeling on the part of the artists that we were not paying them sufficiently at first," said Mr. Grinde. "They felt that playing in sound pictures might be hurting them on the vaudeville stage, but they realize now that it is an actual benefit to them. I know one team that was getting $350 a week in vaudeville. They made a sound picture that was shown in Australia and as a result they got an offer from there for a long term contract to appear in vaudeville at $600 a week."

Sound Devices Wreak Havoc With Musicians

MACHINE displacement in industry has reached the stage where the artists have begun to suffer, according to statements made to the Senate Committee on Education and Labor in Washington, D. C., by William Green president of the American Federation of Labor, during hearings on a Senate resolution authorizing a survey of unemployment throughout the United States.

"Musicians have begun to suffer through the introduction of sound devices," said Green. "Men who are artists, who have given their lives to their art, have begun to find they are losing out."

Dr. I. Lubin, of the Institute of Economics, said this was true. "In one theatre we found 10 musicians who lost their jobs in one week," said Lubin.

"What are we going to do with them?" asked Green. "How are we going to induce the artists to go back to the farm or to go into manual labor?"

Educational Maps Extensive Program

Silent Films Lined Up; Sound Comedies Are Assuming Shape

EDUCATIONAL Film Exchanges, Inc., is planning big things for the New Year. A representative silent program has already been lined up and the sound pictures of the company are rapidly assuming shape. Mack Sennett's first all-talking comedy, "The Lion's Roar," has met with splendid success wherever it has been displayed. The first of a new series produced by Coronet Comedies, an Educational unit, is due in the immediate future. A Lupino Lane and a Jack White talking comedy are now in production. Discussing the situation, E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, says:

"We have contemplated with infinite care the balancing of our production schedule for the forthcoming year, and we have formulated our plans only after weighing and considering every possible contingency. There are today demands for two distinct types of entertainment—the silent comedy and the comedy with sound. These demands we are endeavoring to meet without sacrificing one to the other."

The latest addition to its sound product comes with the announcement of a new series of comedies to be called "Coronet Talking Comedies," of which there will be six. This announcement is made after work has been completed on the first of the series and while the Home Office is awaiting arrival of prints from the coast.

Under the supervision of Sidney Brenneke, for years Mr. Hammons' personal representative in the west coast, the Coronet Comedies, Inc., operating as an Educational unit, will produce the Coronet Talking Comedies. The first subject in this group, "The Eligible Mr. Bangs," features Edward Everett Horton supported by a cast including Johnny Arthur and Florence Eldredge.

Lupino Lane's Audible

One of the most significant developments on Educational's program is Lupino Lane's entry in the sound field. Lane's efforts in the past year have embodied the ultimate in comedy, both in idea and construction and characterization. However, for the benefit of the unwired houses, Lane will continue to make silent comedies as well.

The Jack White Talking Series promises something distinctly novel in short subject entertainment.

Jack White's Mermaid Comedies have for years been popular two-reel favorites. Added to such comedians as Al St. John, George Davis and Estelle Bradley, the Mermaid Comedies this year will offer Monty Collins. "Big Boy," the wonder kid, has five more of his two-reel fun-fests forthcoming.

Jerry Drew is scheduled to make several more Ideal Comedies for release during the coming year. Forthcoming from the Educational Studios are also several Tuxedo Comedies. Dorothy Devore will also contribute further to the season's output.

A number of new Cameos, "Russ Farrell Aviator" films, Hodge-Podge and "The World Today" releases as well as the Kinograms will appear as customary.

Renewing his acquaintance. E. W. Hammons, president of Educational, visited "Big Boy" and Lorraine Rivero, the young star's leading lady, on his recent visit to the Coast. They gave their "Boss" a warm welcome.

First National Completes 2 New Features

"Children of the Ritz," a co-starring vehicle for Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, and "The California Mail," a Ken Maynard western, are two newly completed First National feature productions. They are now in the cutting rooms being edited and titled.

Talkies Limit Universality of the Screen, Says Reinhardt

THE universality or internationalism of the film—that pure pantomime which is understood in all climes—is not to be found in the talking film, declared Max Reinhardt, the creator of many stage spectacles, upon his arrival in New York last Monday. After meeting Lillian Gish, the United Artists star, who will play in his first cinema effort, the German theatre magnate departed with her two days later for Hollywood on the Lake Shore Limited.

Halperins Plan to Make Third-Dimension Films

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—Victor and Hugo Halperin now producing with Inspiration Pictures, are planning formation of company to make third dimension pictures in natural colors and with sound synchronization. Studios are planned for both Hollywood and New York.

The Board of Directors of the new company will include: Henry King, film director; William Walker, treasurer of M. P. Capital Corporation; Clifford Horne, bond broker; Mayo Rice, investment broker; Arthur S. Friend; A. S. Temple, former banker; Marcus Marshall, capitalist; the Halperin brothers; and Serge Midvani, husband of Pola Negri.

Pathe Releasing 5 Feature Talkies in January

Five sound and dialogue feature productions have been scheduled to make their appearance before the public during the month of January. Dialogue sequences as well as the musical synchronization have been recorded by the RCA Phonophone system.

The releases and their dates are as follows: "Sal of Singapore," starring Phyllis Haver, January 4; "Ned McCobb's Daughter," featuring Irene Rich, January 12; "Geraldine," co-starring Eddie Quillan and Marion Nixon; "The Shady Lady," another Phyllis Haver vehicle, January 20; "Noisy Neighbors," in which Eddie Quillan again stars, this time with the late Theodore Roberts and Alberta Vaughn, January 27.

Watson in "Syncopation," New Title for FBO Special

The chief masculine speaking and singing role in "Syncopation," the FBO dialogue special which entered production last week at the Sound Studio in New York under the direction of Bert Glennon, was won last week after several screen tests by Bobby Watson, stage and vaudeville entertainer.

"Syncopation" is a new title for the picture formerly known as "Stepping High."

The inability of speech to bring a response in the minds and hearts of those not familiar to the language spoken was stressed by Mr. Reinhardt. "I see two dangers in talking pictures," said he, "One is that the films which are universal in appeal and really international, can only tend to be destroyed as an international art through the addition of the limitation of language. Talking pictures, by bringing to the screen stage plays, almost in their entirety, with dialogue, tend to make this independent art a subsidiary of the theatre and really make it only a substitute for the theatre instead of an art in itself. Talking pictures, in their relationship to the stage, seem to me like reproductions of paintings."

Mr. Reinhardt compared the films as a universal medium of expression to music. He plans to use both in his motion picture for United Artists.

While in New York, Professor Reinhardt saw and heard "Interference" and "The Singing Fool." He spoke in optimistic terms of their future.

Accompanying him to Hollywood, where he expects to get his picture under way sometime in February, are Raymond von Hofmannstahl, son of the Austrian poet, who wrote the story Reinhardt is to make, and Louis Simon, graduate of Professor George Pierce Baker's dramatic course at Yale.

Stage and Screen Compete for Writers

Composers of Vaude Material Are Most Sought After Now

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—Film producers who have been raiding the vaudeville and legitimate field for talkfilm dialogue writers, will find plenty of competition from producers in those fields to retain the best writers of original stage material.

First steps of Keith-Orpheum to compete with film companies in contracting established writers of vaudeville material were taken last week when the vaudeville circuit closed a deal with Al Boasberg on a long-time basis.

Boasberg has been a writer and comedy gag man in pictures for the past four years, after establishing a reputation as a writer of original vaudeville material for many headline acts. Although film producers have been combing the vaudeville field for prospective writers of short and feature dialogue pictures during the past six months, no consideration has been given the number of former vaudeville writers who have had experience in the picture field.

With the reviving of big time vaudeville and the need for originators of needed material, it is understood that Keith-Orpheum will establish a staff of contract writers for its own protection against the inroads of the talker.

Opinions Differ Over Stage Stars' Chances

VARIED opinions as to the stage star's chances of winning out over the screen star's with the arrival of the talkies have been expressed by Cecil B. DeMille, Bayard Veiller and Willard Mack, who are now engaged upon production at the M-G-M studio.

"Perhaps the stage star will have an advantage," believes Mr. De Mille. Most screen personalities have splendid voices and while the trained stage elocutionist may win out—he'll know he's had competition."

Mr. Veiller, the author and director, declares that it will be easier for screen writers and stars to learn talking technique than for stage people to do the reverse.

An entirely opposite view is taken by Willard Mack, actor and playwright, who says that stage folk will have a distinct advantage in the talkies.

Talking Picture Hysteria About Over In Hollywood Studios, Is Report

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—According to reports emanating from a number of the studios here the hysteria over the talking picture has passed the crest and apparently is on the wane, with retrenchment plans already under way in several of the studios.

Among those mentioned as about ready to abandon the talkie is Fox. It is said to have been decided that that company will make no dramatic pictures including spasmodic talking sequences, but instead will use sound effects only. Shorts and musical comedy productions will be made with talking sequences, but no dramas nor straight talk feature length films.

Paramount is also reported reconsidering talkie plans, following the decision to make "The Four Feathers," one of the year's biggest productions, with sound effects only and absolutely minus talking sequences.

Warners seem to be the only studio going ahead full blast with talkies, with M-G-M and others said to be changing their minds regarding many intended talking films.

Talkies Developing New Type of Cameraman, Survey Shows

EVERYTHING changes in the motion picture business, it has been said. Hollywood's limbo of defunct customs is well filled. Now even the old type of cameraman is threatened with extinction. With Hollywood plunged heart and soul into the manufacturing of talking pictures, the man who responds to the call of "camera" has undergone a transformation. Not only must he be an expert in light perspective, but he must also be a musician and must know the lines of the play he is filming as well as the director.

This the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on the Coast has found out in a recently-finished survey. At this plant entirely new organization of cameramen have been formed.

Batteries of 6 Cameramen

Six cameramen, each in a sound-proof booth with a different lens which registers all the graduations, are used. These are grouped in semicircles, while the head cameraman stays outside and signals his men. As the play goes on, one man films the "long shot" scenes, then at a signal the "medium" or "close" cameras cut in.

Lighting scenes has been changed, because every scene must be lighted for not only one camera, but six in different positions. According to John Arnold, head cameraman for "Broadway Melody" unit at the studio, the new system has entirely revolutionized the art of scene lighting.

Cinema Finance Files Suit Against Playwright

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Dec. 20.—Richard Walton Tully, playwright
Dec. 20.—Richard Walton Tully, playwright and author of "Bird of Paradise," was named defendant in a suit for $75,177 filed by the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles. The company claimed Tully owed the balance on loans totaling $107,500 made in 1922 to finance a film production of "Omar, the Tentmaker." The latter film was released by First National several years ago.

Moxie Folk Donate $126, 000 Community Chest

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

Hollywood, Dec. 27.—The motion picture colony has contributed $126,000 to the Los Angeles Community Chest in the drive for funds to support various civic charities for the next year. Cecil B. De Mille, heading the picture division, assured Chest officials that the film industry would likely reach its quota of $200,000 by the first of the year.

Metropolitan with "Some One to Love" Leads in Los Angeles Grosses

(Hollywood Bureau, Motion Picture News)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—The Metropolitan continues to lead Los Angeles houses in gross business for the past week, doing $30,000 with "Some One to Love," starring Buddy Rogers. Warners and Loew's State follow, the former with $26,500 with "The Home Towners" and the latter with $26,000 with "The Romance of the Underworld."

"The Trail of Ninety Eight" at United Artists, grossed $13,000, while "The Barker" did the best business the Carthay Circle has done in the past eight weeks, with $15,500.

"Noah's Ark," the tremendously costly production of Warner Bros. had a poor week with the low gross of $14,500. "In Old Arizona" opened Christmas day at the Criterion, getting $3,800 on the day, which was almost as much as "The Wind" grossed there in its entire second week, with slightly over $5,000.

B'way Recovers from Box Office Slump

Pre-Xmas Week Off,
But Strong Features
Pull Business Again

NEW YORK CITY.—Broadway business was hit a wallop during the week just ahead of Christmas. It is quite evident that the managements felt that the opposition of pre-holiday shopping would be too much for them to overcome, and therefore they held over their attractions from the previous week. There was one exception, and that was the Paramount, where "The Haunted House," a First National feature with synchronized sound did a nose dive, the box-office return being disappointing, even though it was expected that business would be off.

There is a certain set "nut" at the Paramount, and to meet it the attractions must very nearly touch $75,000 on the week. The First National picture was decidedly below that figure. At the Roxy, due to the illness of S. L. Rothafel, "The End of St. Petersburg" was held over, even though the business of the previous week did not warrant it, the reason being that with Rothafel away it was decided to let the show that was current remain, and the natural result was that the house did one of the worst weeks that it has had in a long time.

The Capitol likewise held over its attraction, "White Shadows of the South Seas," which managed to weather the attack in imposing manner, the box-office falling off being only that which would mark a normal drop for a second week of any picture. "Lilac Time" at the Strand was also a second week attraction, but even Colleen Moore could not face the Broadway slump and make a showing against it.

Both the Rialto and the Rivoli held their attractions for a third week. The former had "Behind the German Lines," a Ufa-Paramount production, which went all to pieces at the box-office, while "Revenge," the United Artists production, with Dolores Del Rio as the star, may have shown a public reaction to the death of the star's former husband. The business there could only be termed fair. It is going to be interesting to watch the manner in which the fans will greet the little Mexican star with her husband's death in a foreign clime coming so closely after she had divorced him.

The Colony held up very nicely with the F B O production "The Circus Kid," in the face of the universal slump all along the line, while at the little Cameo the Sovkino picture, "The Yellow Pass," fell below what was expected of it.

In the run picture houses and the legitimate theatres playing film attractions, a total of seven, the general opinion is that both "Alias Jimmy Valentine" at the Astor, and "The Barker" at the Central will return to normal receipts with the influx of visitors to Broadway this week. Both of these were off last week. "Interference" at the Criterion little felt the lack of business, and remained almost on an even keel. This one is certain to jump right back to the pre-holiday level this week. Two pictures passed over rather quietly. One of these, the Fox production, "The Four Devils," was succeeded by "The River," with Charles Farrell and Mary Duncan, which was rather severely burned by the daily newspaper critics, but which did good business nevertheless. Miss Duncan came in for the major share of the panning. The other feature to wash-up was "On Trial," succeeding which was Fannie Brice in "My Man" at Warner's. "On Trial" passed on just as quietly as did "Four Devils," but the new one with great reviews accorded it looks like a real winner. "The Singing Fool" at the Winter Garden had the lowest receipts of its run to date, and "The Viking" at the Embassy, a picture that really never got under way since opening was decidedly off at the B. O.

Another newcomer to the street this week for a run was "Give and Take," which opened Christmas Day at the Colony. It is a Universal feature with talking sequences that has a lot of laughs, and should do very nicely indeed for about four weeks at the house.

Zero Temperature Makes Attendance Light in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE.—Another dull week in Milwaukee theatres has just been completed. It was no disappointment however, for theatre managers generally expect a decided lull just before the holidays. The weather did much also to keep patrons from the theatres. The week began with some rain, then a bit of snow and ended with zero temperature.

"Sunrise" at the Strand is drawing about the best business of any picture house down town. "The Midnight Taxi" at the Alhambra did fair business. The Merrill, newly wired for sound, offered an all sound program with "Riley the Cop" heading the bill. Business was poor.

"Dream of Love" at the Wisconsin did not pull the patronage the picture merited. Things were very dull here. "Little Wildcat" at the Garden did fair business. "Revenge" at the Majestic was fairly well received. Patronage was moderately brisk at the Orpheum where "The Crash" was featured. Business at the Riverside was dull. "Taxi 13" was the picture here.

Neighborhood houses also experienced slow business. "Wings" was featured at the Oriental and Tower. Business fair. "Women They Talk About" played to poor houses at the Uptown, Modjeska and Garfield. "Masks of the Devil" drew fair patronage to the Venetian.

Talking Pictures Bring Relief to Tampa

Tampa.—Two talkie houses in Tampa now, and both pulling real nice business. The Tampa opened with the sound films last Sunday, using "Mother Knows Best" as the feature, and packed them in, piling up the largest gross of the day. The show went over fine and pulled good business for the entire four days. "Lonesome," featured the last half, had the night opening of the stores to buck, and then the picture did not seem to click, so the business was not up to the usual takings of this house.

The Victory featured "Lilac Time" with the synchronized score, Vitaphone acts and the Movietone News. Sunday was big and the entire week held up to good. An excellent show and everybody pleased.

"Companionate Marriage" drew better than average for the Strand Sunday and Monday. "Beware of Married Men" opened Tuesday to about the average business, then Wednesday it jumped to above average and Thursday fell off a little. "Freedom of The Press," used the last two days was well liked but did not pull the average business.

Attendance Reported Fair in Oklahoma City

Oklahoma City, Okla.—With bad weather prevailing, theatrical business was only fair in Oklahoma City the past week.

"The Wedding March" at the Capitol, featuring Von Stroheim, Fay Wray and George Fawcett, with sound effects, pleased the crowds at the Capitol. "The First Year" played by the National Players and feature picture, "Dream of Love," featuring Joan Crawford, enjoyed good business at the Criterion.

The Victoria had "Restless Youth" with Marceline Day, Ralph Forbes and Norman Trevor.

Fannie Brice in caricature. Gard, the caricaturist, gives his conception of the star of "My Man," the Warner Bros. Vitaphone film which last week enjoyed its world premiere

Philadelphia Slumps With Holidays

Met Only House to Have Good Business During Week Before Christmas

PHILADELPHIA Philadelphia motion picture theatres last week experienced typical pre-Christmas business, with the exception of The Met, which had an excellent week with Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky in "Two Lovers," and an elaborate Syncopation Frolic on the stage.

Adolphe Menjou in "His Private Life" at the Stanley shared honors with Rose's Lilliputians on the stage and played to well filled houses most of the week. The Karlton had just an average week with "The Night Watch." "Kriemhild's Revenge," a spectacular U. F. A. production with some unusual photography, did a sufficiently good business to be held over for a second week at the Little Theatre.

A program consisting exclusively of photoplays, with "The Air Circus," shown some time ago at the Fox Locust, as the main feature, comprised the entertainment at the Fox this week, the usual presentation acts being omitted. Business was fair.

"Abie's Irish Rose," with sound effects, is just as entertaining on the screen as it was on the stage and succeeded in attracting good business to the Aldine, where it will be held over for a second week.

The Arcadia had a fair week with "The Ware Case," an English mystery play.

The Fox-Locust will re-open with the premiere on Christmas Day of "Four Devils," with Janet Gaynor, which has created a sensation on Broadway for the past three months.

The Forum had as its main attraction "The King of Kings" as the photoplay feature, the length of which caused the curtailment of the surrounding features, "The Five Crooners," a musical organization, being the only other attractions.

"The Syncopated Gambol" an unusually elaborate revue, headed the bill at the Carman, the photoplay feature being "The Foreign Legion." Business at both the Forum and the Carman was affected by pre-holiday shopping.

Salt Lake Has Brisk Week Despite Cold Spell

SALT LAKE CITY.—Very good results were enjoyed as a general rule by the first run motion picture houses here last week. Cold and snowy weather has been the rule.

The Capitol theatre did highly satisfactory business with "Scarlet Seas," starring Richard Barthelmess and Betty Compton, and also with the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation, "Artists Idea."

The Pantages theatre screen offerings consisted of the talking production "The Night Bird" and the Pathe sound newsreel, and very good results were had.

"The Air Circus" at the Victory theatre drew good sized houses throughout the week. This is a synchronized production. The Vitaphone acts and Movietone news were also presented.

Greta Nissen, Gertrude Astor and Jack Mulhall in "The Butter and Egg Man" and also "The Virgin Queen" were well received at the Paramount Empress and played to good sized houses.

The American Theatre entertained a satisfactory number of patrons this week with the feature production "Satan and the Woman." The second showing here of "The Fleet's In" drew very well at the Gem theatre. "Show Girl" with Alice White and Donald Reed filled the Rialto theatre throughout the week, as a second run. Peter B. Kyne's "Foreign Devils" and "The Patsy" were shown at the State theatre with fairly pleasing results.

A domestic scene from "Saturday's Children" (First National). Director Gregory La Cava instructs Corinne Griffith and Grant Withers, who is her husband in the play

Des Moines Registers at Low Mark for Week

DES MOINES.—The records of previous years show a decided pre-holiday slump for this week and comparison with other years shows this one conforming with the low score.

At the Capitol the stage show was "West Point Day" with Paul Spor putting across a peppy show. Lon Chaney is a consistently good draw but "West of Zanzibar" did but average.

At the Des Moines Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge" was also neglected, with the box office, however, doing as well as ever at this season. At the Strand "Companionate Marriage," a First National feature, did probably as good an average as any of the pictures for the week.

Over the state the theatre men are registering howls as to business but the evidence seems to prove that one must expect the slack season and at the same time put on a good show for the faithful few.

Big plans are being made for the special New Year's shows with the three Des Moines houses registering capacity registrations for the holiday shows.

Epidemic and Hockey Games Combine to Hurt Buffalo Attendance

BUFFALO.—Business here continued to lessen more each week, reports are that the "Flu" has been spreading somewhat in this territory which might be the cause. Hockey games are being played three nights a week, and being the first year Buffalo folk have been able to see a "pro" game.

"The Awakening" starring Vilma Banky at Shea's Buffalo last week was the big gross attraction in the first run circles.

Hippodrome played, "Someone to Love" and brought in a big week's business.

The Lafayette received fairly big reports at the box office with Norman Kerry and Pauline

"White Shadows" Tops San Francisco Houses in Dull Week

SAN FRANCISCO.—"White Shadows in the South Seas," shown at the St. Francis theatre did a wonderful business in spite of the fact that a great many of the first run houses did not do so well, because of the excitement always caused because of Christmas. Some, however, did better business than contemplated as the days were clear and cold, which drove many in the warm rooms of the screen.

"The Awakening" drew many to the California Theatre, but not as many as contemplated

Baltimore Has Good Week With Poor Weather

BALTIMORE.—First-run theatres here fared pretty well during the worst week of the year beginning Monday, December 17. The majority seemed intent on shopping. The weather started warm with rain, turned cold and then rain on Friday and very cold Saturday.

"Dream of Love," with Joan Crawford and Nils Asther shared honors with Singers' Midgets on the program at Loew's Century and business for the week was excellent considering it was the week prior to Christmas.

But at Loew's Stanley "Manhattan Cocktail" with Richard Arlen and Nancy Carroll just did about half the usual business of an average good week.

"Tropical Nights" was the feature film attraction at the Hippodrome. Business was poor for the week.

Two Sovkino Russian pictures were offered at the Little Theatre by the Motion Picture Guild: "Potemkin," shown in Baltimore previously, and "Three Comrades and One Invention." Business was fair for the week.

"Honeymoon Flats" was the feature film on the program at the Keith-Albee New Garden. Business was fair for the week.

After having been shown at the Metropolitan here for nine weeks, "The Singing Fool," was booked into the New Theater as a sound, talk and song picture, with a 50 cent top price at night. Business was fairly good for the week and was considered much better than it had been at that house during previous weeks.

"The Home Towners," offered as an all-talking picture went over very good during its second week at Warners' Metropolitan. This picture took the fancy of all who saw it and it was proclaimed as the best all-talkie so far offered.

"Land of the Silver Fox," starring Rin-Tin-Tin, was offered as a talk and sound picture at the Rivoli, but business was only about fair for the week.

"The Mating Call," starring Thomas Meighan with Evelyn Brent and Renee Adoree, proved a flop at Loew's Valencia.

Starke's "Man, Woman and Wife," this went big with the women.

The Great Lakes Theatre turned in a little over the average week's business with "Caught In The Fog." Elmwood screening "The Women Disputed" brought in good business. "Shepherd of the Hills" made the box office reports go higher than usual at the Regent theatre.

Kenmore theatre enjoyed a goods week's business with "Our Dancing Daughters." Victor McLagen's picture "Mother Machree" went over big at the Victoria. The other neighborhood houses are enjoying fair business.

and the Granada Theatre, reported good business with "Adoration" on the screen and the Publix Revue on the stage. Loew's Warfield reported a crowded house all week. Here was shown Charlotte Greenwood in person in "Her Morning Bath." "Hit of the Show" on the screen and the Fanchon & Marco Idea, "Hit King."

Judge Ben Lindsey attracted thousands to the Panatages theatre, where he appeared in person.

Seattle Enjoys Average Holiday Week

First Runs Do Fairly Well Under Conditions None Too Favorable

SEATTLE.—An average good week was registered by a majority of the first run houses last week, with Clara Bow in "Three Week-Ends" stacking up the biggest gross. This film played at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, where Bow films have always been tremendous box office attractions, but it did not equal the drawing power of previous Bow pictures, despite the very good business for the week. "Fuzzy" Knight in a Movietone act (M-G-M) kept the house laughing. The musical end of the show, featuring an amateur dance act, was very weak.

At the Seattle Theatre, the "talking screen" was used for the first time, despite the fact that equipment has been in for many months. The big Publix house played "Varsity," which was just a fair attraction. On the stage Fanchon-Marco's "River Idea" was very pleasing. Business average.

"On Trial" in its third week at the Music Box Theatre continued to do a very pleasing business, although waiting lines have disappeared. One more week is scheduled. At Hamrick's other house, the Blue Mouse, "Battle of the Sexes" played to one week's good business, although it was not a strong attraction. Business was just about average.

"Smoke Bellow" at the Coliseum pleased the fans who like plenty of action in their film fare, and business was fair. At the Embassy, "The House of Shame" was billed as a thriller but patrons found nothing exciting but the name. Business just fair here, too. The vaudeville houses both had very entertaining films. "Annapolis" at the Orpheum was a fair program film on the service school type and rated better than most of the pictures at this house. "Power of the Press" was well accepted at Pantages, where it bolstered up a weak vaudeville program to a very pleasing extent. This house, which announced a few weeks ago that talkies were coming on December 3, seems to have forgotten about that statement, and no more has been heard about the "noisy" pictures since the original ads announcing installation of sound equipment.

Portland Hold-overs Hit During Slump Week

Portland, Ore.—A deep-wide channel has been made by the Christmas buying in which the dollars have steadily rolled away from the theatres which have felt a decided slump in attendance during the past week, yet in part this was due to continued holding over of the pictures. Managers are making extensive preparations for big bills on New Year's Eve Midnight shows, which will undoubtedly make up the shortage in receipts during the past week.

Pantages received the best attendance of the week with a most enjoyable composite picture "Lonesome" with Glenn Tryon and Barbara Kent in the leads.

The playlet "Garage Love" played by Eugene Strong and Hazel Mann, opened the picture "The Wise Wife," but only drew enough to make a fair showing at evening performances. The preview of vaudeville acts on Monday night helped receipts.

A number of mirthful offerings in the Fanchon & Marco stage show and the feature "Adoration" composed the bill at the Portland. But with all of this high class talent only half-houses prevailed.

At the Broadway John Gilbert and Greta Garbo registered well in "A Woman of Affairs." Business was good, dropping to fair at week-end.

"The Lion and the Mouse" returned to Blue

A peppy bunch of boys. Warings Pennsylvanians who can turn out hot jazz with the best of them. They have been engaged by FBO to do their stuff in "Syncopation," an all-talkie which Robert Kane is supervising at the Sound Studios, New York

Mouse for two-weeks, but on account of only fair showing was cancelled at end of first week.

The special road screen attraction "Simba" had a fairly good week at The Helig, with $1.50 top. Brought out a large student body and excellence of animal picture deserved much better attendance.

The "Music Box" continued their showing of "Home Towners" but only evening performances came near the usual run enjoyed by this popular house.

The United Artists held over for just five days Vilma Banky in "The Awakening" with steadily decreasing attendance.

"The Port of Missing Girls" proved to be one of the best drawing cards put on at the Capitol Theatre, and Manager Jones states that this is only the first of a number of the better attractions under their new policy.

Suburban houses without exception reported a drop in business due to Xmas buying.

Harrisburg Better Than Former Years

Harrisburg, Pa.—The expected holiday slump in business was reflected to a marked degree in the Harrisburg theatres, though it set in later than usual and was, perhaps, not as bad as in some former years. The widespread presence of a mild form of flu also reduced theatre attendance. Due to the fact that talkies are comparatively new, the Colonial sustained receipts there to a pretty fair degree, the feature attraction being "Lights of New York."

At the Victoria, Pola Negri in "The Woman from Moscow," offered rather ineffectual competition to the attractions of the stores and shops with their Christmas wares at Loew's Regent. "Dream of Love," with Joan Crawford, Nils Asther and Aileen Pringle in the leading roles, had some pulling power, particularly among feminine patrons, but there, too, the inroads of the competition of Santa Claus were felt.

At the State the film feature the first half of the week was Nita Naldi in "The Model of Montmartre," and the last three days "Prep and Pep," starring David Rollins and Nancy Drexel. The latter attraction made a distinctly favorable impression in Harrisburg.

Charley Murray, in "Do Your Duty," attracted fair sized crowds to the Rialto, while the Broad Street had fairly good success with Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady," in spite of the counter attraction of Yuletide activities.

A particularly strong appeal was made by Milton Sills in "The Crash," a railroad thriller, which appeared at the National, due perhaps to the fact that Harrisburg has an exceptionally large percentage of railroad workers in its population. The Grand bolstered its receipts somewhat by offering a double bill consisting of "The Canyon of Adventure," starring Ken Maynard, and "The Police Reporter," The Capitol's chief attraction was "The Forbidden Hour."

Cincinnati Believes There Is a Santa Claus

Cincinnati.—Whether any of the Cincinnati exhibitors penned letters to Santa Claus, the deponent sayeth not, but the fact remains that old Kris was liberal towards the aforesaid gentlemen, by sending unusually good business for the week before Christmas.

The Albee with Richard Barthelmess in "Scarlet Seas," aided and abetted by a vaudeville bill of considerable merit, snapped up the attendance record to a high mark for this particular season of the year.

"A Woman of Affairs," at the Capitol, where Movietone and Vitaphone in addition to specially selected numbers by the Capitol orchestra, were featured, did a remarkably good business, in fact, so good that the picture will be held over. The original story of "The Green Hat," on which the picture is based, was seen here in stage form sometime ago, which did not mitigate against the picture, but had the opposite effect of drawing patrons into the house.

"Wings," at the Lyric, with sound effects, in its second week, did a most satisfactory business, especially considering that hundreds had seen the picture previously when road-showed here. The business, however, justifies a hold-over.

Keith's fared nicely with "Romance of the Underworld" (sound) which was thoroughly enjoyed by the customers. "Someone To Love" piled up a nice gross at the Strand, which house is soon to swing into the sound column.

Over at the Palace, "Sinners in Love," with a good vaudeville program, drew all the regulars in addition to many others, with the result that this house enjoyed a really record pre-Christmas week.

Both legitimate houses were dark during the week, thus undoubtedly diverting considerable "trade" to the movie houses. Neighborhood houses likewise report an appreciable improvement over last week.

Christmas Slump Hits Cleveland

Flu Epidemic Adds to Woes of Exhibitors in Poorest Week Recorded

CLEVELAND.—The usual week before-Christmas slump reached Cleveland. Only this year it was worse than previous years because, in addition to the seasonal competition, a flu epidemic has been rampant. Schools closed prematurely, and people were urged by doctors to keep away from crowds and to refrain from participating in public gatherings.

Fortunately, no very fine picture suffered by this state of affairs. There was just the usual run of photoplays on display, and none of them boasted anything better than fair business.

Al Jolson and "The Singing Fool" brought its seven week engagement at the Stillman to a close. Business was nothing to brag about the last week, but as the picture had previously broken all house and all attendance records, one must not complain if, under the circumstances, it closed rather lamely.

"Show Girl" was given the first place as an entertainer by local critics. It played at the Hippodrome, and, although labelled a "wow," it just got by.

"Dream of Love" didn't do anything very exciting at the Allean.

"Waterhole" was well liked by the patrons who attended the State last week. They liked the beautiful scenes, and the fundamental characteristics which were well pictured. But there weren't enough people attending the theatre to make their favorable opinion go far.

"Blindfold" proved just a mediocre under-world picture at Keith's Palace, was given correspondingly fair support. Irene Franklia as the headline attraction on the vaudeville bill succeeded in bolstering business to average.

Keith's East 105th St. theatre managed to pull through the week with fair results, showing "Celebrity," good light entertainment, well done in its silent form, the first half of the week, and "The Last Haul," as the attraction the last half of the week.

"The Awakening" and "His Private Life" divided the week's honors at the Park. Neither did good business during this, their first neighborhood house run.

Pittsburgh Reports Average Business for Week Before Christmas

PITTSBURGH.—Loew's Penn fared better than any house in town during this week of the pre-holiday slump. The Penn had a very good week's business, with a very ordinary picture, namely "Just Married." However, the Publix Unit "Stars," was exceptionally good and helped the show a lot.

"The Midnight Taxi" did a little better than average business at the Grand, the "talkies" still being a winning novelty here. Loew's Aldine had just about an average week with "Dry Martini," a fairly pleasing comedy production. George Bancroft in "The Docks of New York" at the Stanley didn't arouse as much enthusiasm as other Bancroft pictures Legitimate theatre business suffered just the same as the movie business. The Ohio theatre was dark and the Hanna presented "Follow Thru" a new musical comedy presented by Schwab and Mandel. Other attractions suffered similarly.

have done, however business for the week was satisfactory.

Corinne Griffith in "Outcast" got by fairly well for the week. The Regent business has increased greatly since the new policy of sound and talkies only. Charlie Murray in "Do Your Duty" got an average week's business at the Olympic. Liberty—first half: "Sawdust Paradise," last half: "Women They Talk About." Business for the week was not so good. The Cameraphone played "Masks of the Devil" to disappointing business.

"Tenth Avenue" brought but average business to the Alhambra. The Harris and Sheridan Square, offering combination policies, as usual, played to capacity.

All Forms of Entertainment Hit Snag During Week in Ottawa

OTTAWA.—"The decrease in box office receipts this week would make a good salary for the average man for a whole year. The week before Christmas is the worst in the showman's calendar," declared one Ottawa, Ontario, exhibitor with reference to business during the week of December 17 and the situation was general all around. The week preceding Christmas is worse than Holy Week ever was but there is one consolation in the fact that sports and other forms of entertainment suffer likewise.

The brightest bit of the week was "The Butcher and Egg Man" at B. F. Keith's Theatre and those who went shopping missed a very enjoyable feature.

One of the best comedy-features in weeks was "Steamboat Bill, Jr.," in which Buster Keaton showed some new stuff. The best crowds of any theatre, relatively speaking for the week, took in Keaton at the Imperial Theatre, where an added incentive each evening was a turkey draw.

The Regent Theatre did fairly well with "West of Zanzibar" but Lon Chaney was altogether too villainous to suit some minds. The morbid theme was relieved by the presence of an instalment of "The Collegians" on the same bill.

The Centre Theatre split the week with "Craig's Wife" and "The Crash." The former carried a good moral but the general result of the whole feature was not so good. "The Crash" served the purpose of a stop-gap for a few days and did not arouse any wild excitement.

A shaking up has occurred at the Avalon Theatre, Ottawa's new suburban house, but Manager Ambrose Nolan is finding the going rather tough. Only fair crowds took in "Beau Broadway" during the first half and the same applies to "Shadows of the Night" during the last half.

The "flu" scare made a deeper nick in receipts at neighborhood houses than at the downtown palaces because parents kept their children home from both school and theatre. The pick of the open spaces was the fourth local run of "The Big Parade" at the Rex Theatre, followed by "Rinty of the Desert" during the last half.

Sickness did put a damper on patronage at the Columbia Theatre where the split week features were "A Million Bid" and "The Bushranger." The Fern Theatre held up fairly well with "Fashion Madness" and "Revel Rider" but the crowds weren't anything to write home about.

Only once in a year do Ottawa stores keep open at night and that period is the three or four days before Christmas. This brought many shoppers downtown but they walked right by the theatre lobbies.

Albany First Runs Have Prosperous Week Despite Unfavorable Conditions

ALBANY.—Although about everybody in Albany appeared to be on the streets last week doing their Christmas shopping, the motion picture theatres fared better than in years past from the standpoint of attendance. Of course there was a noticeable falling off from the packed houses that have been the rule during the fall, but on the other hand the theatres, especially the first run houses, were well filled during the entire week during the evenings, but the matinees were off.

The Strand played "The Woman Disputed," during the week and found Norma Talmadge still a big drawing card. The Mark Ritz used "Women they talk about" and had absolutely no complaint about the business done. The Leland used "Across to Singapore" during the week, and played to packed houses practically every night. The week before Christmas is regarded in Albany as second only to Holy Week as a tough proposition. This past week, however, did not see the slump that managers expected and from now on during the winter, business will probably remain topnotch.

In Troy, the first run houses played to exceedingly good business. The Troy theatre used "State Street Sadie" and it went across in fine shape despite Christmas shopping. Persons were advised to drop into the theatre for a rest while doing their afternoon shopping and many appeared to avail themselves of the invitation.

Opinions on Pictures

Give and Take

Synchronized with Talking Sequences
(Reviewed by Freddie Schader)

LOOKS like a couple of talking sequences of about a reel each which have been inserted into this feature which was originally intended to be released as a silent picture, will have the effect of helping its box office effectiveness. Had it been turned loose on the market as a silent picture it would have just fitted in with the general run of average comedies of feature length. Undoubtedly its two principal characters, enacted by Jean Hersholt and George Sidney, would have had some box office value, but even Carl Laemmle would not have attempted to place the picture on Broadway in his own house if it wasn't for the talk. In this respect the picture had its dialogue made to order, for, "Give and Take" was in its original form a stage play by the late Aaron Hoffman, than whom there was none more adept in turning out dialog in dialect.

Your audiences will undoubtedly get a kick out of the talk sequences, but as they are interposed between stretches of silent footage, there is considerable of a let down when the characters continue to move their lips and no sound issues. This is the case despite the fact that a synchronized musical score continues during the non-dialog stretches of film.

But the Universal studio executives must be given credit for having done very well indeed when they reshot a couple of reels of this picture in sound with their sparse equipment and turned out as effective a picture as they have. There are moments when their synchronization of voice is a little off, but the general public has not been sufficiently educated in this phase of the new picture business to become critical on these points.

Jean Hersholt and George Sidney acquit themselves with honors as far as the talking sequences are concerned. It was expected of Sidney, but Hersholt's work is surprisingly good. George Lewis and Sharon Lynn however cannot be looked upon as anything to rave about as far as handling talk is concerned. This is particularly true in the case of Lewis, who has a tendency to mouthe his words with a slight lisp resulting. Miss Lynn may develop with further dialog to handle and more experience.

Drawing Power: If you play the talking version play it up as the first talkie with dialog in dialect; if you play the silent you can stress the fact that Hersholt and Sidney are the new Weber and Fields of the screen. Exploitation Angles: If yours is a manufacturing town you might get the manufacturers to send their working crews to see this one because it is a keen satire on the communizing of plants. If not a manufacturing town go after the laugh angles. In "canning factory" communities this will be a wow because the story is laid in a canning plant.

THEME: College youth returns home from school with plans for revolutionizing his father's business. Result almost a financial disaster which is averted through the intervention of big business. Love interest at a low ebb with the story played for low comedy laughs.

Entertaining Throughout
(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

ROD LA ROCQUE has a splendid story in this new Pathe feature. It starts with some splendid shots of the star in an air duel with the leading German ace and it never lags in interest through the final fadeout with Sue Carol in La Rocque's arms. There is action every foot of the way and the variety changes often enough to make one wonder just what is coming next. And with it all there is some splendid comedy and a bit of clever romance.

There are parts of the story that are just a trifle implausible, but one hardly stops to think of them until it is all over. It is just downright good entertainment, well directed and well acted. La Rocque is everything the title suggests. First he is the ace of aviators, then the daring holdup man, later the Russian dancer in the cabaret and then the hero of a daring holdup of the cabaret.

All the time Sue Carol is just her sweet little self; a cabaret girl out of luck, befriended by the star when he holds her and her amorous companion up on an automobile ride in New York. Her role does not call for much in the way of acting, but she does manage to win complete sympathy. It is a picture abounding in thrills, air raids, holdups and rescues predominating and there seems no reason why it should not elicit in any house.

Drawing Power: An exceptionally good feature with plenty of action and all other elements to make for success. With music synchronization and sound effects only and without dialogue it cannot miss in the house equipped for sound reproduction. Exploitation Angles: The airplane battle; the cabaret holdup; the dancing; the good cast and splendid direction.

THEME: Daring devil-may-care aviator goes broke following New York night life, decides to turn bandit, meets girl on first holdup, befriends her, makes her his dancing partner and eventually wins her love.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Length, 6,124 feet. Released Nov. 18, 1928. Produced by Hector Turnbull. Story by Leonard Praskins. Directed by Edward H. Griffith.

The Shady Lady

Has Thrills, But a Poor Story
(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THIS Pathe feature in which Phyllis Haver is starred is not without thrills but the story is very illogical and at times is so poorly told as to be almost ridiculous. It is a gun smuggling and hi-jacking tale of the type that has box-office appeal but it is handled in such a manner as to make it all very unconvincing.

Miss Haver has what is meant to be a sympathetic role. She is supposedly a fugitive from justice, wanted in New York for murder. One knows she is probably not guilty of the murder, but she enters too readily into the agreement with Louis Wolheim, the smuggler, to assist him in his operations by curbing the efforts of his rival in the racket. This rival, Robert Armstrong, can hardly be sympathized with either, as he, to all appearances, is a racketeer himself. And there is nothing of an explanatory nature to make him otherwise. One wonders how Phyllis and Armstrong are going to get by when they overthrow Wolheim and his gang and return to New York to be married.

An impossible reporter, the Havana representative of the New York Times is one of the heroes, but he is such a sap that the Times has good grounds for canning him at any stage of the proceedings. He recognizes the girl as the one wanted in the celebrated murder case, but he is too soft hearted to turn her in. There is no fault to be found with the way the players handle their roles. They make the best of a poorly handled and poorly directed story.

Drawing Power: It is the type of story that has box-office appeal and it may do fairly well with an audience that is not too critical. Exploitation Angles: The battles between the smugglers and the hi-jackers; the gambling sequences.

THEME: Melodrama in which former Broadway girl is wanted for murder. In Havana she is recognized by gun smuggler and is persuaded to assist him in his operations by winning the rival smuggler. Instead she falls in love with the latter, is cleared of the murder charge and the happy pair depart for New York to be married.

Produced and distributed by Pathe. Length 6,132 feet. Released Jan. 20, 1929. Story by Jack Jungmeyer. Directed by E. H. Griffith.

Wishing You All a Happy and Prosperous New Year

—Charles E. Lewis, Editor-Chairman

"The Voice of a Nation" Becomes International

I have presented a marvelous group of letters and articles on the all important subject of "sound," but those letters already published were almost entirely from membership within the boundaries of the United States. I now offer one from far off Australia which gives still another angle to "sound" as it is viewed from a country where it is still just talk, not talkie. Read it over and then compare it with some of the previously published letters.

To pass an opinion at this juncture on the success or otherwise of "sound" or "dialogue" pictures is, so far as I am concerned, an extremely difficult one. In the first place we in Australia have had but little opportunity of obtaining first hand knowledge of this new adjunct to motion picture entertainment. Secondly—and I think that it is the most important proviso of all—our cash customers—the members of the picture-going public—have not yet been able to cast their vote for or against this innovation.

From trade organs I gather that certain productions accompanied by the Movietone or Vitaphone have been enormously successful. English trade-journals received by the last mail eulogize such pictures describing them as "amazing," "wonderful," etc. While all this is encouraging and leads one to believe that the future of "synchronized sound" and "talking pictures" is a rosy one, still most showmen will agree that it is not until such pictures have outgrown the novelty stage—in which they undoubtedly are at the present moment—and until the public as a whole has had an opportunity of voicing its approval or otherwise, that one can say "sound pictures and talking pictures have come to stay."

The above remarks mainly refer to "dialogue" pictures. Regarding these I feel there is a considerable amount of doubt. Much depends, of course, on the voices of the stars, the vehicles selected, the manner in which the pictures are presented and so on. Just as to how the public will react to a "silent art" suddenly become articulate is a prophecy which only a rash man would care to make at this stage.

Productions in which "synchronized sound" only is used would appear to have a very successful future before them. Back in the early days of the motion picture business in this country every conscientious showman worked "effects" with his pictures. Many of the present leaders of the industry

Thanks, in Advance

WE have again selected a group of members and have written them a special letter pertaining to a certain phase of "sound." We are confident that the response will be better and greater than the last letter we sent out on this important but also, vital subject.

Thank you boys, in advance, for a prompt and helpful answer to the letter.

in Australia and New Zealand made their entry into the business in the role of an "effect boy." Such effects were, as most of us remember, crude and frequently at the wrong time. Still they were an effort to give realism to the flickering shadow shapes.

To-day "synchronized sound" gives us those effects as part of the picture, synchronized to the action of the film and simulating the real thing as perfectly as possible. We are told that in "sound pictures" we will hear clocks ticking, revolvers being discharged, the cheers of crowds and the roar of breaking surf. In this case sound becomes an accessory or an adjunct to pictorial motion and so far as one can judge at the present moment should provide motion pictures with new interest and give the whole industry a fresh impetus.

There is one thing, however, which I hope the producers will always bear in mind. It is this. The whole world has been educated to the entertainment value of motion pictures—silent pictures. Picture making has become an art, and is appreciated as such. A great edifice has been erected—on silence! Now comes sound! Which is to take precedence? The old love or the new? Will dialogue and sound be regarded only as something with which to embellish and improve silent pictorial motion or is it to be given first preference? If the basic principle—silent drama—on which the industry is founded is overlooked then a hybrid may be produced which will alienate the picture-going public and fail to captivate those who prefer spoken drama with living actors. In other words the motion picture industry has spent many years and much money in creating a kingdom for itself. Now it is embracing an invader. Which will rule, the former occupant of the kingdom or the newcomer?

Such are my personal views on the subject which is exercising the minds of the leaders of the industry in every part of the world. At present we in this country, have to be shown. We have yet to learn at first hand what "sound" and "talking" pictures really amount to. So has the public. And again I repeat that no matter what we may think ourselves; what high hopes we may hold, everything depends on the public—they pay the cash and they have the final word.

About Kiddies Xmas Shows

I am going to ask the members who successfully put over one of these shows to kindly send me some clippings or other publicity on the show they ran. After receipt of the above I will then compile the "Honor Roll" of members who put this stunt over right. In the meantime, those members who have already sent me such information will please pardon the delay in publishing the list, but I do not want to list only a few names at a time.

Club Service Bureau

In connection with the CLUB'S Service Bureau, I want to call attention to the fact that we have answered upwards of 200 letters regarding various sound devices and non-synchronous machines. For the benefit of those readers who did not know that such questions could be addressed to the Round Table Club, we wish to state that this service is opened to both members, and non-members. If you wish to secure authentic information concerning any phase of sound or sound equipment, kindly write direct to the Club Service Bureau and your letter will receive every attention and consideration.

DON'T BUY A "CAT IN THE BAG" when it comes to sound equipment. Investigate carefully any proposition that may be presented to you and make sure it is all that is claimed before you sign any contracts or pay out any money.

Here's One Worth Trying Anytime

Our attention was recently called to what we might call a mighty fine business building stunt. It consisted of lining up a list of all automobile owners outside your own city or town limits and covering a radius of from 15 to 30 miles, send them a personal letter inviting them to drive to your town and theatre and witness a show as your guests. Enclose two passes for this purpose.

Now, I ask you, isn't this a corker? If your theatre is at all worthy of such a title, and you present your shows as they should be presented, and your staff are of the kind that you like to talk about—then make a connection with your state license department and get a list of auto owners in the radius you decide on, send them the letter and the passes and then see if you can't make some of them regular auto patrons for your theatre. You can utilize this a dozen different ways.

Introducing Some New Members

Among the latest to join the now famous ROUND TABLE CLUB, is Elmer E. Vosburgh, of the Tivoli Theatre, in Mishawaka, Ind. I must of missed that town on my trip but I'll look it up before the next one.

Also welcoming Ed. J. Cangle, manager of the Sayre Theatre in Sayre, Penn. Mr. Cangle uses a most timely method of introducing himself as a new member. He sent me a story about his Xmas Kiddie Party and at the same time tells us about some other novel special matinees he has put over with great Box Office success. I'll tell you about them in an early issue.

Also Mr. V. J. Mollica, Opera House, Lebanon, N. H.

Mollica Letter Came too Late

Our old friend Fred Johnson from Cambridge, Ohio, came to life again and so we have cause for feeling in a holiday spirit once more. Hearing from Johnson, or in fact any of the "boys" from out in the middle West and who I met on my trip last summer, always pep me up considerably and means being cheerful for the rest of the day. Therefore all this joyous exclamation for friend Fred.

Johnson from Cambridge

This time he writes to tell me that he is still as active as ever in the various civic and business men's organizations out his way. It is both interesting and pleasant to call other exhibitors' attention to men like Johnson because he is without a doubt the type of man who capitalizes on every conceivable angle and rarely misses a chance to combine a theatre tie-up through his wide and varied activities. As a director of the Kiwanis Club he is always seen by the leading business men of the town, both at meetings and other Kiwanis affairs.

His description of the Kiddies' Xmas party will make interesting reading in an early issue, but rest assured, if Johnson gets behind it, then it's 95 per cent a success even before the party comes off. That's what I think of him.

V. J. Mollica wrote us for information about the kiddie shows but his letter was delayed in transit and did not reach my desk until the Saturday before Christmas, so it was futile to try and get him the information he requested in time. We are, indeed, sorry Mr. Mollica, but we are always at your service. Don't delay too long when you want some help, give us a little chance to send it on the right way.

Our old friend Fred Johnson from Cambridge, Ohio, came to life again and so we have cause for feeling in a holiday spirit once more. Hearing from Johnson, or in fact any of the "boys" from out in the middle West and who I met on my trip last summer, always pep me up considerably and means being cheerful for the rest of the day. Therefore all this joyous exclamation for friend Fred.

Don't "hide" away for so long a time, Fred, and best holiday greetings to Mrs. Johnson as well as yourself.

Are you interested in seeing a mighty fine Holiday program that is a credit to the manager and the theatre? Then drop a line to Bill Levey at the Beacon Theatre in Port Washington. Just ask for a copy of his Christmas program. It's neat, it's novel, and it will find its way into the patrons home without any too much coaxing.

In reply to the letter we received from Mr. Rudolph Norelius, we wish to advise him that practically every member publishes some form of theatre program or house organ. It would be best to communicate with the members direct.

Norelius Letter Received

Freedmann Resigns from Loew's Ohio Theatres

Al Freedman, for the past seven and a half years associated with Loew's Ohio Theatres has resigned, effective February 1st. Freedman, one of the original stockholders of the company which last year was absorbed by Loew's Theatres of New York, has had complete charge of the management of the eleven Loew theatres in Cleveland. In addition he has booked all short subjects for these houses. His plans for the future are not yet announced, but he will probably spend the rest of the winter in California.

Mansfield Made Wesco's Portland Manager

Jack Mansfield, after several years' association with H. B. Franklin and many months at the Wesco home office in Los Angeles, has been transferred to Portland to take over the duties of divisional manager of that district. He assumes his new post with the new year. Richard Spier will be brought to the main office.

Travis Educational's Canadian General Head

James Travis, formerly western supervisor in Canada for Educational, has taken up the duties of general manager of Canadian Educational Films, Ltd., the post left vacant by Oscar Hanson, who resigned last week to become sales manager for Tiffany-Stahl. His headquarters are at Toronto.

Mr. Travis began his career at the Educational Toronto office as a sales representative and then as a special agent.

New Paramount Marquee to Shelter Line-Up

Paramount is spending a neat sum of $50,000 to insure comfort for those who stand and wait outside the Paramount Theatre during the wet and snowy days of the approaching winter. A complete new marquee is being erected on the 43d Street side of the theatre, extending from the front and present canopy, to the canopy to the rear at the 43d Street entrance. A distance of about 250 feet.

Chaney Plays "Personal Appearance" by Wire

Ripley Broadcasts Message from Coast Through Sound Installation in Longview Theatre

An unusual "personal appearance" stunt was used with great success at the Columbia Theatre, Longview, Wash., to promote the Lon Chaney starring picture, "While the City Sleeps." The stunt was put over by Manager William Ripley, of the theatre staff, and an M-G-M exploiter.

Five thousand extras were distributed two days before the opening of the picture. The lead story told of Chaney's heroism during the gun battle with local gangsters. Additional yarns included on the page revolved around the incidents following Chaney's thrilling experience in rescuing one Myrtle Sullivan (the character played by Anita Page). Though no press sheet material was used for the stories appearing in the Extra, the star "heads" and cartoon mat were invaluable for "make-up."

Ads Pay for "Extra"

The entire cost for this stunt was realized by selling the back page to three Longview merchants.

A co-operative page was used in the Daily News one day preceding the opening of picture. Each "ad" on the page prominently displayed the title, "While the City Sleeps."

Two days in advance of opening the Daily News carried a story to the effect that the local theatre management had attempted to induce Chaney to make a personal appearance, but being unsuccessful arranged to have the star's voice transmitted from Hollywood to the Columbia Theatre via a special telephone connection. As a follow-up the News gave this announcement front-page representation. At the appointed hour for Chaney's long distance address, his picture was flashed on the theatre screen and "his" message communicated to a capacity house.

Sound Installation Used

This stunt was put over through the aid of an Electrical Research synchronous machine, which has been installed in an ante-room of the projection booth.

Lon Chaney, looking suspiciously like a public relations counselor, was perched before the microphone of said machine and, in a series of strange guttural sounds, emitted a conventional speech, which was carried to the stage over the regular synchronized equipment. The illusion, according to comment, was a success from all angles. Only the newspaper publisher, theatre manager and projectionist shared knowledge as to the true nature of this broadcast.

Six- and three-sheet cut-outs, as well as a twelve-foot banner, were used for a special lobby display.

Mail Plane Makes Special Stop to Deliver Print of "Wings"

THE highlight in Manager T. Y. Walker's campaign for his showing of "Wings," at the Ritz theatre in Anniston, was an arrangement whereby a mail plane made a special stop in that city to deliver a print of the picture to the theatre.

This stunt was arranged by Walker with the manager of the Chamber of Commerce and it was the first stop ever to be made at the local airport since the inauguration of service between Atlanta and Birmingham.

Walker was all set with a cameraman and a committee of officials on hand to welcome the airman with the print of "Wings." The cameraman, however, wasn't of much use as the plane arrived at a much later time than expected, making the taking of pictures almost impossible on account of the darkness.

Although there were not actual photographs of the stunt taken, the newspaper reporters did the next best thing by painting a vivid word picture of the proceedings in the columns of their respective newspapers.

In addition to the newspaper publicity, the stunt caused a lot of favorable comment and reacted very favorably in publicizing the picture.

Radio Stunt for "The Wind" Uses Novel "Sound" Idea

A novel radio broadcasting stunt was used to exploit "The Wind," when it played at the Allen Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio. Manager Fred Clary of the theatre staff was assisted by an M-G-M exploiter.

It was arranged with the local broadcasting station, on Tues.-Weds.-Thurs. night between New York programmes to announce "Look Out," then a long wind whistle, Whewee—The Wind is Coming" with direct announcement on Friday night that Lillian Gish and Lars Hanson in "The Wind" would open at the Allen Theatre.

INDIANAPOLIS theatergoers who have followed the career of Colleen Moore and who visit the Circle Theatre this week will find the contest the theater is putting on rather easy. In conjunction with the theater, an Indianapolis newspaper printed a collection of pictures of Colleen Moore as she appeared in a number of her pictures. The theater offers a prize of $15 for correct guesses as to the picture from each particular pose printed in the collection. Second prizes of $10 are to be given and $5 will be the third prize. In case of ties, equal awards are to be given.

TO safeguard patrons and to encourage public confidence during the flu scare, Manager Ernie Moule of the Brant Theatre, Brantford, Ontario, hit upon the novel policy of asking any person who gave a sneeze during a performance to leave the theatre, the admission price being refunded at the box office. Ushers were instructed to listen-in for sneezes and, if any patron was unable to choke it, he or she was immediately asked to leave for the sake of others. The idea made good copy for the local newspaper.

MANAGER J. L. CARTWRIGHT depended upon an aeroplane stunt and a special shadow box as his best bets in publicizing his presentation of "Wings" at the Florida Theatre, St. Petersburg, Fla. A local aviator was engaged to throw heralds out of his plane. This was done for five days in advance. The shadow box was built like a stage set with yellow curtains and white translucent cloth for the screen. On the screen was the Paramount trade mark and a flasher behind it flashed out the title "Wings."

FRANK GREENWALD has put Saturday Matinee on the map at the Moreland Theatre, Cleveland, by the simple process of letting the children get on the stage and do a stunt. Every Saturday, Greenwald says, he has from 600 to 800 children at the theatre. Anyone who wants to can perform, and as most children think they can do as well as the professional, many of them claim the privilege extended. And, of course, the fond parents come along to see their young hopefuls perform.

ALL persons bringing an article that would fit in a Salvation Army Christmas basket were admitted free last Tuesday afternoon to the Olympic Theatre in Watertown, N. Y., and on Wednesday to the Avon Theatre. The idea originated with Walter L. Powers, district manager of the Schine houses.

GIRL Scouts of Harrisburg acted as ushers at the State Theatre on December 15 when the third of the children's morning matinees, sponsored by the Harrisburg Civic Club in co-operation with C. Floyd Hopkins, district head of the Wilmer & Vincent Company which owns the theatre, was held in the presence of a big audience.

Notes Names of Phone Callers to Build Theatre Mailing List

MANAGER DEMPSEY of the Strand Theatre, a suburban Boston operation in Dorchester is building a bona-fide mailing list by taking the names of persons calling on the telephone to inquire about his shows. When the patron calls, his name is solicited and he is told that he will be put on the mailing list to receive information about coming attractions. Dempsey then mails him the weekly letter which he prepares.

Local Orchestra Leaders Talk Up "Singing Fool" Showing

MANAGER ROY SLENTZ had a unique tie-up with six orchestra leaders in which they plugged "The Singing Fool" when that picture played at the Colorado Theatre, Pueblo, Colo.

Every time one of these orchestras played a song hit that Jolson sang in the picture, the leader would announce that this was one of the songs sung by Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" playing at the Colorado Theatre the entire week starting Sunday, Nov. 25th.

All of the orchestras plugged the picture for two weeks in advance of play date and throughout the picture's engagement. It made excellent publicity for the picture—getting over to a certain class that probably wouldn't have been reached in some other ways.

Another good stunt that worked to the advantage of further publicizing the picture was a tie-up with music stores. These stores dressed their windows one week in advance to feature cut-outs and stills from the picture as well as records and sheet music and cards announcing the star, title of picture, theatre and play dates. The windows were on display throughout play dates. In return for this tie-up, Slentz agreed to allow each of them one day apiece during the run of picture to sell music featured in the picture in the rear box office. This particular theatre has two box offices; one facing the sidewalk and the other facing the entrance doors. The music store proprietors used the one facing the entrance doors.

Football "Letter" Men Invited to See "Win That Girl"

KNOWING that "Win That Girl," playing at the Carolina Theatre, Charlotte, N. C., would appeal to high school students, Manager Warren Irvin sent personal telegrams to the football "letter" men inviting them to see the picture.

The telegrams embodied congratulations upon winning their letters, the title of the picture, which was a football comedy as well as mentioning that Jack Garber and His Orchestra would be on the stage.

The boys at the school appreciated the telegram as well as the invitation which also was good for the boys' girl friends. The boys being filled with an over amount of enthusiasm were glad to show the 'grams to their friends and relatives. In fact, the news spread all over the school with the result that not just the team but most of the student body came to see the show.

Harrisburg School Band Is Feature of Special Show

Manager C. M. Gible, of the State Theatre, Harrisburg, presented the boys' band of the William Penn School in a concert as a special attraction at a children's Saturday morning matinee on December 22. The feature film was "Wolf's Fang," and the show was sponsored by the Educational committee of the Harrisburg Civic Club.

A boosters' club for the Earle Theatre, Allentown, composed of sixteen popular young persons of that city, has been organized by Frank H. Mickley, manager of the house. The members pay fifty cents a month in dues. This entitles them to attend the theatre as guests of the management every six weeks and they hold social gatherings under Mr. Mickley's auspices at which they are told a lot of interesting things about the theatre industry. They frequently are presented with stills and photographs of motion picture scenes.

Xmas Parties at Canadian Theatres Stopped by Flu

Various features have caused an unusual situation in Canada with regard to the holding of special holiday shows for orphans and poor children. Because of the "flu" epidemic, the annual Christmas Cheer performances at the Regent and Imperial Theatres, Ottawa, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club have been indefinitely postponed. The annual Christmas show at the Imperial Theatre, Montreal, under the auspices of the Montreal Motorists' League, usually a big yearly treat, was also called off. Plans for similar gatherings in other cities were also curtailed.

Another contrary influence in the Province of Quebec has also been found in the new law prohibiting the admission of all children under 16 years of age from moving picture theatres. Manager George Rotsky, of the Palace Theatre, Montreal, did stage a Saturday morning free show for poor children and the house was crowded with youngsters who were delighted with the Movietone entertainment. No action has, as yet, been taken by the authorities in the matter but other exhibitors have not shown an inclination to offer free shows.

'Frisco Drive for "Woman Disputed" Hits All Angles

The San Francisco campaign for "The Woman Disputed," at the Granada theatre, hit every form of exploitation billboards, newspaper advertising and publicity, radio, street cars, windows, theatre trailers, fashion layouts and serialization in papers, tire covers for autos, and display on original gowns worn by Norma Talmadge in picture and shipped up to 'Frisco from studio. The Bulletin ran serialization, art with each instalment, for six days. The News ran fashion series on Norma for six days, crediting picture in caption. Song "Woman Disputed I Love You" plugged twice daily over two radio stations. Cards on front of 250 Market Street cars and special tire-covers on 100 taxicabs.

Fifty-five window tie-ups, a trailer announcement for three weeks in advance and a concluding feature in the form of a luncheon preview for newspaper critics completed the drive.

Charlie Davis Try-Outs for Local Talent

THE Indiana Theatre in Indianapolis is sponsoring a plan for the encouragement of local talent. Charlie Davis, master of ceremonies at the theatre will give try-outs to all ambitious to appear on the stage. He also will render a verdict after the trial as to whether, in his opinion, the neophyte has any chance to make good. In cases where promising material is found proper steps for further advancement will be recommended. The trials will be conducted weekly backstage at the Indiana at 8 o'clock each Monday night. Aspirants will report to Ed Resener, conductor of the Indiana concert orchestra, who then will arrange the schedule of appearances before Davis. Singers, dancers and those who do comedy turns will receive trials.

Club Takes Over Town Theatres for Day

AS a Christmas treat for all the children of the borough of Steelton the Kiwanis Club engaged both the town's theatres—the Strand and the Standard—for all day December 28. Five free shows in each theatre were given for the youngsters, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning. Members of the club were at the theatres all day to look out for the welfare of the smaller children.

Flu Strikes Hard in Kans. and Mo.

NEVER before have theatres in the Kansas City district suffered as they now are suffering from a widespread epidemic of influenza. Columbia Mo., and Lawrence, Kan., probably have been hit the hardest as those towns are the seats of the University of Missouri and Kansas, respectively. Both universities temporarily have closed, meaning there are 4,000 probable patrons lost to theatres in each town, as all students have gone to their home towns.

Other towns of Western Missouri and Kansas, large and small, also have been hard hit. There are 2,000 cases of influenza reported in Emporia, Kas., while Ft. Riley, Kas., has had a quarantine placed on it. In Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., the attendance at first run down town theatres has not been suffering quite as much as the suburban houses, due to the fact that thousands of out-of-town persons in the city for Christmas are serving to keep attendance figures normal. The epidemic is reported to be decreasing.

Bids have been opened on a proposed theatre in Dodge City, Kas., to be built by Otto Theis. Ellis Charles of Wichita, Kas., is the architect. The theatre will be 126 x 115 feet with a seating capacity of 1,100. Construction work on the new Blair theatre, Bellville, Kas., being erected by Sam Blair, is progressing rapidly. The Lone Star theatre at Vermillion, Kas., has been decorated and re-opened. Work on a new theatre at Ellis, Kas., is well under way. THE Boyd Theatre, the newest addition to Philadelphia's downtown theatres, operated by Alexander R. Boyd, former vice-president of the Stanley Company of America, opened on Christmas Day. The Boyd Theatre is located a few doors from the Stanley Company's Aldine Theatre at 19th & Chestnut Sts. and the competition that may arise from this selection of a site is being watched with much interest by the motion picture fraternity in Philadelphia. The Boyd has a seating capacity of 3,000 and represents the most advanced ideas in modern theatre construction. It is looked upon as one of the finest theatres in the city and the central idea of the decorations is the triumph of woman.

Edwin N. Johnson's new $500,-

000 theatre, the Keswick, at Easton Road and Keswick Avenue, Glenside, Pa., which is considered one of the most beautiful suburban theatres in the vicinity of Philadelphia, had an elaborate opening during Christmas week. The Keswick has a seating capacity of 1,700. It is of old English architecture and represents the very latest in modern theatre construction. It was designed by Horace Trumbauer, of Philadelphia, and built by the Turner Construction Co. Edwin H. Johnson, the owner, has been a successful real estate operator for many years. In the rear of the theatre there will be free parking space for several hundred cars, which it is believed will contribute largely to the success of the undertaking.

The Orpheum Theatre, Germantown, one of the Stanley Company's houses under the management of Buck Taylor, has adopted a picture and vaudeville policy but will revert in a short time to straight pictures to be continued throughout the winter.

Construction has just started on William Friehofer's new Oak Lane Theatre at 6700 North Broad Street, which, with a seating capacity of 4,000, will be Philadelphia's largest neighborhood motion picture house. The new theatre will have the most up-to-date equipment and will furnish both photoplay and stage presentations, with orchestral accompaniment. Hodgins and Hill are the architects.

Joseph C. Dougherty, who for 28 years was associated with the B. F. Keith interests, has resigned as manager of the Grand Opera House and has assumed the management for Harry C. Schwalbe, former secretary of First National Pictures, of the Riant and Forrest theatres in the Conshohocken section of Philadelphia. Mr. Dougherty has been succeeded at the Grand Opera House by E. R. Hanley, who has been connected with the Fox interests in New York.

Percy A. Bloch, Philadelphia branch manager for Famous-Paramount Lasky Corporation, has returned to his duties after a short illness.

Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, who is affiliated with the Stanley Company and William Friehofer, and is interested in a chain of theatres in this city, has returned from a two-weeks' visit in St. Louis where he and Mrs. Nirdlinger were the guests of the latter's parents.

Baltimore Reports New Theatres

WALTER J. COULTER, of Richmond, Va., who has purchased all of Charles A. Somma's interests in the circuit of seven theatres in Richmond, will open a new de luxe neighborhood house, the Byrd, in the near future. This is one of the finest neighborhood theatres in the South, seating 1,550 people. An important feature of this house is that it is fully equipped for the opening with Vitaphone and Movietone, also a feature of mostly all of Mr. Coulter's houses in the above mentioned chain. Mr. Coulter is also completing another smaller neighborhood theatre to be called the New Bluebird. This circuit consists of additional houses, namely, Bluebird, Hippodrome, Globe, Brookland, also the Bluebird Theatre at Petersburg.

Benjamin Pitts, of Fredericksburg, Va., is rushing to completion his new Leader Theatre. This will be a modern type house, offering about 800 seats.

A theatre is to be built at Morgantown, N. C. The design was drawn by Benton & Benton, architects, Wilson, N. C.

A theatre to cost about $70,000 will be built at Parkersburg, W. Va., by Joe Park and E. P. Chancellor, it is announced. A site on Juliana street is said to have been taken over for the building.

Fire practically destroyed the Arcade Theatre and the Tuxedo billiard parlor at Norfolk, Va., recently, with a loss estimated at about $12,000.

Theatres are to be built at Clifton Forge and Harrisonburg, Va., by the Shenandoah Valley Theatres Corp., of which Isaac Weinberg, Staunton, Va., is the head. This company will also redecorate and equip the New Theatre at Staunton.

Work has been started on the theatre being built at Harrisonburg, Va., by the Shenandoah Valley Theatres Corp., of which Isaac Weinberg, Staunton, Va., is the head. It will measure 42 by 180 feet, and will cost $150,000. J. Neilson was the architect.

Jack Milligan, general press representative of the Motion Picture Guild, Washington, D. C., operating theatres in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington and Detroit, is now at the Sinai Hospital, here, suffering a rundown condition.

Wesley Eddy, who acted as master of ceremonies at Loew's Century here for the week beginning December 10, has returned to Loew's Palace, Washington, D. C. There was no master of ceremonies at the Century during the week beginning December 17.

Fred Stark, formerly associate musical director at the Fox Theatre, Washington, D. C., has been transferred to the Fox in Detroit in same capacity. Samuel Korman has succeeded Stark in Washington and Henry Sokolove has succeeded Korman as concert master at the Washington Fox.

The Bristol Amusement Corp., Bristol, Va., was chartered recently with an authorized capital stock of about $150,000. Officers are H. M. Pullford, president; Walter R. Lupton, vice-president.

Week in Southeast Active

CHANGES in operation and ownership of theatres in the Southeast, reported this week, are:

R. J. Booth has taken over operation of the Palace Theatre at Clearwater, Fla., the house formerly operated by Mrs. Criet Jordan. The Huckabee Theatre at Aragon, Ga., has been taken over from R. S. Huckabee by Mr. Engler. Operation of the Washington Theatre at Deland, Fla., has been taken over by A. W. Beadle.

The Royal Theatre at Hurtsboro, Ala., is now being operated by J. O. Park. The former owner was L. Goldstein. P. M. Lord has taken over the Elite Theatre at Parsons, Tenn., from E. D. Rains.

Atlanta

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elwell offer their congratulations to them upon the arrival of a daughter, who has been named Lois Virginia, which took place December 13 at the Georgia Baptist hospital.

The Capitol Theatre at Montgomery, Ala., operation of which was recently taken over by DeWess & Katz, reopened last Sunday.

According to news reaching Film Row this week, W. M. Atkinson, well-known Florida exhibitor, planned to open his new house at Panama City, on Thursday, December 20.

E. F. Dardine, dean of local exchangemen, will head the World exchange when that company opens in Charlotte, N. C., January 14. Appointment of Mr. Dardine to the post was announced by Joseph Skirboll, sales manager for World Wide Pictures, Inc., following his visit here for the purpose of choosing a sales representative for his company. Mr. Dardine will have his office in the Educational exchange at Poplar and Second street.

B. D. Lodge announced that he is preparing to operate the Crescent Theatre at Wrightsville, Ga.

Clark Strickland, who at one time operated a house in Jacksonville, Ala., has been appointed manager of the Ritz Theatre, colored house, Montgomery, Ala., and assumed his duties last Sunday.

R. M. Savinin, representing Sonora-Bristolphone, arrived in Atlanta, Sunday, December 23 for a stay of five days during which time he will maintain headquarters at the Hotel Ansley, in order to be available to exhibitors who are interested in getting first-hand information on the Sonora-Bristolphone sound reproducing equipment.

Ben Y. Cammack, Atlanta branch manager for Universal, left last Friday for New York, where he will spend the holidays with his sisters.

Elizabeth T. Aitkin, of Gault, Ont., Canada, joined Tiffany-Stahl's Atlanta branch personnel as cashier, succeeding Julia Harbin, resigned.

E. L. Cole, executive secretary of the Atlanta Film Board of Trade, left last Tuesday for New York for a conference with officials of the Film Boards of Trade.

The Community Theatre, operated by the Milstead Manufacturing Company at Milstead, Ga., is reported closed temporarily as a result of an epidemic of "flu."

Theatre men seen along Atlanta's film row recently were P. J. Henn, Canton, Ga.; Nathan Morgan, Columbus, Ga.; Nick Economou, Montezuma, Ga.; Edgar F. Boyd, Adel, Ga.; Mrs. L. W. Holland, Madison, Ga.; J. J. Powell, Toccoa, Ga.; Roy Martin, Columbus, Ga.; Houston Thompson, Cedartown, Ga.; Frank V. Merritt, Marvin Wise circuit, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. H. T. Wood, Washington, Ga.; W. H. Mitchell, Pelham, Ga.

Florida

The symphony orchestra, used at the Tampa theatre until last Saturday, when that house went over to the sound pictures, has been engaged by the City of Tampa for a winter concert season of ten weeks at a reported price of $8,000. The orchestra will give daily concerts in the band shell in Plant Park.

The inauguration of the sound films at the Tampa, now gives this city two talkie houses. The organist is still retained and is giving the usual organ concert.

Paul Earl, auditor, is spending a couple of weeks in the Universal exchange, Jacksonville.

The stage was all set for the formal opening of the new Park Theatre, Tampa, Saturday evening, December 22, at 7 o'clock, special inaugural ceremonies being planned to precede the regular program. The new Park is the latest link in the chain of houses operated by Southern Theatres, Inc., of St. Petersburg, Fla., of which A. Shimko is president.

Frank Morris and his Florida Grand Orchestra returned to the Florida Theatre this past week and were warmly received.

It is reported in Miami that the Arcade Theatre at West Palm Beach, Fla., has been turned back to Public Theatres Corporation by E. J. Sparks.

Charlie Morrison, new manager of the Florida Theatre, Jacksonville was elected this week to the chairmanship of the 1215 Club of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Morrison's term as president of the Masonic Club has just expired.

Manager Charles Lester, of Universal, and Salesman Harry Simpson were in Miami recently.

Cleve Adams, general salesman for FBO's home office, visited the local exchange last week.

Sunday Shows Lose at Madison, Minn.

THE petition which was presented to the Madison, Minn., City Council, requesting passage of an ordinance permitting Sunday shows in the city was turned down by that body. It is undecided what action will be taken by the theatre management to force the issue to a showdown.

When Warner Bros. assumed control of First National and replaced the majority of the officials with Warner Bros.' production and distribution heads, two Northwest men were among those displaced. These were M. L. Finkelstein, of F & R, and A. H. Blank, of the Blank Circuit in Iowa.

Recent visitors in Minneapolis included Charles Echerwin, home office representative of Columbia Pictures, and Jack Woody, assistant sales manager for Fox Films. Both of these sales officials were successful in closing some important deals in the Northwest territory, it is understood.

The new theatre in the City Hall, Heron Lake, Minn., was opened by the American Legion Post early this month. There are 500 seats in the new house.

The lease of the Max Theatre at Max, N. D., has been taken over by H. O. Hagen.

The Star Theatre at Madelia, Minn., has been closed for improvements by Miss Isabel Getter, who purchased the house recently.

The theatre at Danvers, Minn., was opened this month after having been closed since August, when it was damaged by a cyclone.

The Lanesboro Theatre at Lanesboro, Minn., has been sold by Carlton L. Bier to A. J. Muecke, who has been managing the Murray Theatre at Slayton, Minn.

A. O. Lona has sold his interest in the State Theatre at New England, N. D., to his partner, Arvid Wiklund.

The management of the Liberty Theatre at Fosston, Minn., has been taken over by Vern Lang.

The name of the Amuzu Theatre at Spring Valley, Minn., has been changed by the owner, Joe Milnar, to the "State." Extensive remodeling has been done to the house and new equipment installed.

The Auditorium at White Bear Lake, Minn., which housed the theatre belonging to Mrs. J. L. Jensen, was burned to the ground recently. Mrs. Jensen said that her loss was fully covered by insurance.

Panic Averted in Seattle Fire Scare

A NEAR panic was averted in Universal's Columbia Theatre in Seattle, Wash., recently when smoke from a burned out motor in the ventilating system poured into the auditorium of the house through the ventilators and threw the 1,200 members of the audience into an uproar.

When the smoke was noticed by theatre employees, Manager Melvin G. Winstock was immediately called. He hurried to the stage and asked the patrons to file out in an orderly manner and wait outside the theatre until the smoke could be cleared. Theatre ushers marshalled the march to the exits and kept order as best they could, reassuring the patrons that there was no danger. Work of the firemen and house staff had the theatre reopened within forty-five minutes.

The Twin Falls city council has passed an emergency ordinance banning public gatherings of any kind.

Pete Carroll, formerly in this territory as manager of the Columbia exchange, returned last week with E. M. Beck representing Photone, which he plans to demonstrate to Northwest exhibitors at a private preview to be held at a local theatre soon.

Roy Cooper, manager of the Colonial Theatre for John Danz's Sterling Chain Theatres, last week celebrated the arrival of another baby daughter, his second.

H. Neal East, manager of the Paramount Famous Lasky exchange, returned last week from his jaunt East to confer with home office officials.

Wallace Rucker manager of the Educational Exchange, received word last week that he will soon be visited by Joseph Skirboll, former district manager for First National in this territory, and now touring the Educational exchanges in the interests of World Wide Pictures, Inc. He is general sales manager for this company.

W. B. McDonald, former exhibitor of Eugene, Ore., plans to open a new house at Port Townsend, Wash., within a short time, according to reports on Film Row last week.

Mickey DeLeo, of Stevens & DeLeo, operating the Rose Theatre in Port Townsend, spent a few days on Film Row buying and booking attractions.

A. J. Sullivan, film man in the Northwest territory, last week resigned his position with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to assume the management of the local Columbia exchange.

Charles Beale, former Columbia manager, will soon announce new connections with a company selling sound equipment, according to report.

Art Adamson, well known among Northwest exhibitors, was last week selected as manager of Pilz and Swanson's Star Amusement Company houses in Everett, succeeding "Chuck" Charles.

Despite the fact that the influenza epidemic has reached serious proportions in certain districts of the Pacific Coast, only one city in the Pacific Northwest has been seriously threatened. This was Latah, Wash., where so many families were ill that the Princess Theatre and the public schools have been closed.

W. B. McCurdy, manager of the Vancouver Theatre, Vancouver, B. C., has been appointed to the management of the Dufwin Theatre in Portland, Oregon.

Charles Dentebeck, chief projectionist of Famous Players Canadian Corp., Toronto, has again been honored by election to the presidency of Local No. 72, Toronto, of the Projection Machine Operators Union, this making the 12th successive year that he has headed the organization.

There are many other booth veterans in the list of officers for 1929 as well, the board comprising the following: Vice-President, D. Elliott; Secretary-Treasurer, J. H. Jones; Business Agent, W. P. Covert; and executives, Bert Higgins, Harry Dobson, Charles Ayres, Arthur Milligan and Sam Wyles.

The distinction of having been the first exhibitor in Canada to offer a double-feature program and to have maintained that policy in the one theatre over a period of more than 13 years, is claimed by Sam Bloom of the Bloom and Fine Theatre Circuit, Toronto.

4-Screen Theatre Planned for Greenwich Village, N. Y.

A NEW motion picture theatre that will incorporate such revolutionary ideas as four screens, interior architecture that can be changed at will through slides flashed on some of its screens, and with an interior fashioned after that of the inside of a camera, is rapidly nearing completion at 52 West Eighth Street, Greenwich Village, New York, by the Film Arts Guild for opening late this month. The house will seat 500.

Ideas that he entertained several years ago in Europe and that he has developed further since taking up residence in America are being applied to the theatre by its designer, Frederick Kiesler, architect and stage designer, formerly with the International Theatre Exposition. He is directing the construction of the house.

In his plans for theatres, Mr. Kiesler has worked out three different types of cinema houses—the "ray," the "double cone," and the "megaphone." The new theatre is one of the last-named type. Its innovations have been kept secret and will not fully be revealed until the opening, it is said.

With its "megaphone" shape, the theatre, says its designer, will solve the problems of sound and will also increase scene surface. All four of its screens can be used simultaneously, it is said. The interior of the theatre will have parallel walls which the spectator will not be able to see, as they will be covered from his gaze by black screens, 55 feet long and 20 feet high; they will be joined over head by another black screen that will shut off the entire ceiling. This ceiling screen will slope down to the top of the stage arch and will be 55 feet long and 38 feet wide at the back and 27 feet and 6 inches wide at the stage arch. All of these 3 screens will be black and the white screen will be back of the stage arch. This stage screen will be saucer shaped and round, its special construction permitting a correct angle of vision from any part of the house, it is promised.

The stage is said to be in a new form, which Mr. Kiesler calls the "screenoscope."

House Designed Primarily for Sound Pictures

The first theatre especially constructed for sound pictures in Scranton, if not in the entire state of Pennsylvania, was formally dedicated in that city on December 6, with the formal opening of the Riviera, the newest link in the big chain of houses operated by the M. E. Comerford interests. It is an ornate structure, modern in every respect, and located on Lackawanna Avenue in the heart of an important business district. The theatre cost $300,000 and is luxurious in its appointments. It is of Spanish type of architecture, and is equipped with every facility for sound devices, the acoustics having been especially designed for this purpose. It includes also a huge pipe organ, and a recital on this instrument by Professor Lawson Reid was a feature of the opening program. The main film play of the initial program was "Lilac Time," starring Colleen Moore. It will be the policy of the house to offer daily continuous performances from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

New 2,500-seat Philly Theatre Opened on Christmas

THE new Boyd Theatre, Philadelphia's new 2,500-seat house, erected on Chestnut Street west of 19th by Alexander R. Boyd, was opened for the first time to the public on Christmas Day at 2 o'clock. Its policy is the presentation of motion pictures with and without sound accompaniment. Performances will be continuous from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. at pop prices.

The house has an ornamental front on Chestnut Street on the site of part of the old Aldine Hotel. The lobby leads back to the theatre proper which is 154 by 125 feet. Its frontage on Sansom Street which is actually the rear is richly decorated. Twenty floodlights of constantly changing colors light up the Chestnut Street front.

Beyond the orchestra is the foyer with marble walls and pilasters. A marble and glass fountain stands in the center and at either end rise broad marble stairways leading to the promenade back of the balcony which overlooks the foyer. The walls are decorated in the modern manner with brilliant coloring against a background of gray and gold. A lower mezzanine is beneath the orchestra and is made up of a lounge and smoking room for both sexes, retiring rooms and a cosmetic room. The last five rows of the orchestra chairs consist of especially reserved wide armchairs, a feature long used by the West Coast theatres but new to the East. The stage is equipped for footlight presentations.

Wesco May Begin Visalia Theatre Next Spring

Construction on West Coast Theatres, Inc.'s proposed new theatre at Visalia, Cal., may be started next spring, if the plans presented before the Visalia Chamber of Commerce recently are carried out. Engineers are now said to be preparing the specifications. Advance estimates on the cost of the building put the sum at $200,000.

Begin Excavation for New Ravenna, O., House

Excavating has already been started for the new theatre to be erected at W. Main Street, Ravenna, O. The Schine Enterprises Inc. of Gloversville, N. Y., are said to have taken a 20-year lease on the proposed structure, which is being erected by Tony and Frank Esposito of Ravenna. Negotiations for the lease were made by Adler and Laurensen of Canton. Edmund Herrman of Canton is architect.

$100,000 Theatre Planned for Long Beach, Cal.

A $100,000 motion picture theatre, of Spanish design to cover a ground area of 100 by 144 feet, with a 35-foot tower reaching to a height of 70 feet, is planned for Belmont Shore, near Long Beach, Cal. The proposed theatre will be erected at the southeast corner of Second Street and St. Joseph Avenue. There will be stores on the ground floor and 30 apartment rooms above. Woodworth Brothers are the owner of the property. G. T. Gayton has the contract. R. F. Inwood is the architect.

Building along the California Coast for this season of the year has already passed the $140,000,000 mark.

A "Close-Up" of Vallen Noiseless All-Steel Track

3.—This hole for use when track is to be swung.

9.—Note that Sliding Hangers are not made of machine steel but two-piece Malleable Iron Castings, rigid, durable.

4.—The Vallen Cushion Roller developed two years ago.

6.—Only metal parts employed. Spacer of heavy hose spun into casting prevents wheels from binding, supports pull line.

7.—Swivel allowing for play in curtain so it may fold without twisting or binding carriers in track.

1.—Without additional expense or parts, Vallen Track may be anchored against ceiling, employing two holes shown.

2.—Loosening one nut permits sliding hanger to align with ceiling construction.

10.—Note that Channel is accurately fashioned for Curtain Track purposes only. Made from rigid steel, its particular shape insuring strength. Cannot bend or twist, thus binding curtain carriers.

5.—Malleable Casting Carrier. Will not split or warp.

8.—The Vallen "trimming" feature. Curtain may be raised or lowered five inches.

These features, all protected by patent, obtainable only in Vallen Noiseless All-Steel Track for your important lighting circuits

A "Diamond H"
Type "G" double throw remote control switch

Can you insure your lights?

What happens if your lighting system fails at a critical time? Did you ever think that you could insure your lighting so that it will never fail, no matter what happens? Well you can.

The "Diamond H" Remote Control Switch is your insurance. No matter what means you take to provide current for lighting circuits, whether you use a motor generator, emergency lighting circuit, or additional circuits from several sources, "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches should be used.

They throw over automatically from one circuit to the other and back again automatically when the main current supply resumes. They are reliable and you can depend upon them absolutely.

The important lighting circuits you need to insure are the exits, aisles, stairways and lobbies. "Diamond H" Remote Control Switches are also useful for many places in the theatre, for instance, to control your exterior signs and marquees, organ heaters, stage lighting and control of effect lighting from booth.

THE magnificent new Brooklyn Paramount is but one of the many Rapp and Rapp designed theatres in which you will find Heywood-Wakefield theatre seating.

Specially designed seats for the Oriental and Palace-Orpheum in Chicago, the Michigan in Detroit, and several more exceptional showhouses were developed in co-operation with these outstanding architects. Rapp and Rapp have confidence in Heywood-Wakefield seating, because they know how comfortably and how well it is built, how attractively it is designed and finished, and how it brings big dividends to the box office.

May we tell you more about this world's largest selling line of theatre chairs? A note to a Heywood-Wakefield sales office will bring an experienced representative who will be glad to explain the box office appeal of Heywood-Wakefield theatre seating.

MR. HAMID pursued the course we would advise every prospective purchaser to follow. Organ music in your theatre is a too important feature of your performance to be dealt with lightly. Link welcomes a thorough investigation on this important subject—in fact urges a comparison of the Link theatre organ with others, point for point.

The new Queensboro Theatre Beautiful has installed a Link after thorough investigation and its patrons are assured of the best organ music available.

Gentlemen:

Before entering the contract for our new Queensboro Theatre Beautiful, I believe we made one of the most thorough investigations of pipe organs ever undertaken by any prospective purchaser. The fact that you secured the contract in spite of the pressure brought upon us by the many other companies who are desirous of business in New York City speaks volumes for the outstanding features of your Organ in comparison with others.

We can only add that since installation, our highest expectations have been exceeded and from an enthusiastic standpoint of our friends and patrons. We also wish to add that the personal service and cooperation you have given us in this installation has been very much appreciated. We believe that in the installation of a pipe organ, such service is highly important and that wherever the Organ Company today, we can or do give the personal attention you gave us in this installation.

With best wishes for your continued success, we are Yours sincerely,

The Hollywood, Dormont, Pa.—a modern theater, serving a medium sized neighborhood—in which C-H Lighting Control has proved a profitable investment

The maker's experience is your best guarantee

QUANTITY is seldom visible to the naked eye—but you can depend on the serviceability of products with a long, untarnished reputation.

C-H Simplicity Dimmers are accepted as standard by leading showmen everywhere—have been for over a quarter century.

Every desired lighting effect can be achieved with C-H Dimmers—always with velvet-smooth changes from full brilliancy to black out. And as to durability, many installations of C-H Dimmers have served for over 20 years with negligible maintenance.

Too, C-H Dimmers are installed, economically—are adaptable to all theaters—and can be easily enlarged to meet your future needs.

Discuss the many advantages of C-H Simplicity Dimmers for your house with your architect or electrical contractor. But also, be sure to get the full story of C-H superior features by writing for the booklet "Illumination Control for the Modern Theater".

ANOTHER PAGE IN HISTORY

"In every instance they have given PERFECT SATISFACTION "

THE Young and Wolf Corporation, owners of a chain of theatres in Ohio and Indiana, has recently installed its third Page Unit Organ. This organ was installed in the Palace Theatre at Marion, Ohio—a new link in its chain. Thus, Messrs. Young and Wolf have expressed in the only real substantial way, the satisfaction they have had with the first two installations.

Then, too, there is the word of Mr. John Eberson of Eberson & Eberson, well known theatre architects. Mr. Eberson designed the theatre and speaks very highly of the Page Unit Organ installation. He says, "I frankly admit that this is one of the slickest little installations I have seen, hence I shall have no hesitancy to call your product to the attention of my clients."

After all is said, nothing can take the place of pipe organ music in the theatre. It has won its way there to remain, due to a certain attractiveness and individuality that it alone can provide. So you need pipe organ music and you owe it to yourself to find out how well Page can serve you.

Exterior of the New Palace Theatre at Marion, Ohio. This theatre is one of a chain in Ohio and Indiana owned by the Young-Wolf Corporation.

Interior of the beautiful Palace Theatre at Marion, Ohio, owned by Young-Wolf Corporation.

Mr. V. U. Young of the Young-Wolf Corporation, owners of the Palace Theatre at Marion, Ohio, and several others in Ohio and Indiana. Mr. Young is a well-known Shriner. His temple is Orak located at Hammond, Indiana, and his Consistory is Fort Wayne.

Mr. Young says in writing to a Page prospect, "I have repeatedly told Mr. Williams that I would be glad to recommend the Page Organ at any time. We have a number of Page Organs in our theatres and in every instance they have given perfect satisfaction. We are especially pleased with the Page Organ that was recently installed in our new Palace Theatre, Marion, Ohio."

The Heart of Sound Reproduction

If you have or contemplate installing any electrical reproducing device for furnishing music as an accompaniment for motion pictures, you should be vitally interested in what amplifier is used.

The amplifier is the heart of any such equipment

Not only is quality of reproduction, and by "quality" we mean reproduction like the original, important, but freedom from breakdowns with the attendant interruption of programs is paramount.

Most manufacturers of such equipment use SAMSON "PAM" amplifiers, although they cost more, because back of each "PAM" amplifier is a manufacturing organization of 46 years' experience, of which the last 30 years have been devoted to the design and manufacture of electrical sound transmitting and reproducing equipment. Theatre Managers who now own equipment (and there are hundreds of them) using "PAM" amplifiers will confirm these statements.

As an assurance of uninterrupted performances and quality of reproduction such that your patrons wish to come and listen again, be sure when you make your purchase that the names "PAM" and SAMSON appear on the amplifier.

For special amplifier problems of all kinds our engineering laboratories are available and will apply to your particular requirements the results of varied amplifier experience.

Our illustrated bulletin TBG-1, descriptive of the different amplifiers we manufacture is yours for the asking Five Scene Multi-Pre-Set Theater Switchboard Installed in the Oakland Theater, Oakland, California. Architects, Weeks and Day. Contractor, H. S. Tittle Co.

the Multi-Pre-Set Switchboard

a Westinghouse Achievement

NOW--more than ever, modern theater design demands adequate switching facilities for changing the multiplicity of lighting effects quickly and with absolute accuracy.

The development, by Westinghouse, of the multi-pre-set theater switchboard definitely solved this problem.

The design of this board is such that changes in lighting effects can be accurately set up in advance. After once being set, rapid changes can be made from one scene to another simply by the operation of a single switch for each change.

Wherever lighting effects are to be set in advance, such as in theaters, lodges, schools, auditoriums, etc., Westinghouse multi-pre-set switchboards will apply.

75% of the Nation's Largest Theatres Are Equipped With "American" Chairs

THE country over . . . in 20 of America's largest cities . . . an official census discloses that 75% of all theatres are "American" equipped. And a roll call of the acknowledged large-scale exhibitors would show an even higher percentage. For it never has been disputed that the preeminent operators . . . those at the very top in the field are exclusive users of "American" chairs. These figures speak for themselves. They tell a story of built-in quality, beauty and comfort that theatre owners and managers are daily turning into a profit.

Illustrated above is Chair No. 6146, of which 2610 were installed in the Universal Theatre, Brooklyn, John Eberson, Architect. A KIMBALL ORGAN is a permanent musical investment. In the final test of time and use it is the most economical. Despite our long history in building theatre organs, there have been fewer replacements of Kimball organs than any other make, proving that they are reliable and always in advance of the times.

We have been in the development of the theatre organ from its beginning and have pioneered in bringing it to its present state of perfection. The Kimball organ has always been the most advanced in design.

Equally important to the reliability of the Kimball organ is the reliability and permanence of the Kimball organization which has a continuous history in the musical industry extending over seventy years. This is an assurance of its permanence to serve you both now and in the future.

EARLE THEATRE,	Philadelphia, Pa.
ERLANGER THEATRE,	Philadelphia, Pa.
FOX-LOCUST THEATRE,	Phila., Pa.
ENRIGHT THEATRE,	East Liberty, Pa.
STANLEY THEATRE,	Pittsburgh, Pa.

The audiences in these theatres are protected by the highest grade asbestos cloth, specially designed for theatre curtains. The theatre owners are protected, too. It pays to specify the best: just one catastrophe would be enough to write "finis" to any theatre owner's career. Don't take chances with cheap curtains but insist on those made by the Pioneer Producers of the Best in Asbestos.

Every builder of fine theatres today knows that air cooling and air conditioning equipment is an absolute essential. Theatres so equipped certainly make a stronger bid for patronage. In the final analysis an air cooling and air conditioning system is a matter of good business.

No greater evidence is to be had of the confidence leading theatre operators place in York equipment and engineering services than that gained from the York installations featured in this advertisement.

Congratulations

NOT only on a marvelous record of beautiful buildings, conceived with artistry of design and beauty of form, and executed with skill and precision, but congratulations also on the creation of an eager and willing spirit, one of loyalty and co-operation that is as much a part of their buildings as the steel and stone of which they are built.

THEIR growth owes much of its splendid progress to that indefinable something of earnest endeavor and sincere effort without which no great structure can be reared.

THE wonderful spirit that has been so large a factor in the growth of the Hoffman-Henon Company, we have absorbed and we thank them for creating it, a spirit so potent, so real that not only the executives of this Company but our men in the field have caught the romance of it, the glorious effort to achieve a satisfactory result within a given time, that co-operative spirit which makes no note of wearing toil or difficult conditions and has only one goal in mind—satisfactory completion on time.

WE hope to always form a small part of that great comprehensive organization that Hoffman-Henon Company have built; an organization that transcends individuals, materials and finances, containing those priceless factors of co-operation and loyalty that reach the highest standards of the building industry.

HOFFMAN-HENON'S greatest contribution to the profession of Architecture and the business of Building has been their steadfast adherence to enobling principles, and the creation of a spirit that seeks to achieve rather than to profit and the splendid record of monumental results their organization has attained.

MAY their sphere of usefulness and service ever widen and increase, and their works add an ever increasing luster to a bright and illustrious name.

Spencer-Equipped Theatres

Two important-every day operations of theatres are the cleaning and reliable power for the organ. Spencer Equipment was selected for these services for the two modern theatres illustrated above. The cleaning system keeps the theatre as good as new every day by removing all dirt and dust. The organ loft, back stage, properties and side rooms are also cleaned quickly and at low cost.

The Spencer Orgoblo serves the majority of American organs and is ideal for theatre conditions.

SPENCER VACUUM CLEANERS

Spencer Vacuum Cleaning Systems are flexible, which enables the operator to clean aisles, underneath seats, the stage, wall furnishings, and the most inaccessible places with equal ease.

This dustless cleaning materially helps the ventilating problem and prolongs the life of the fabrics.

THE SPENCER STEEL "ORGOBLO"

Regardless of size—whether the world's largest organ or a small instrument, there is a Spencer "Orgoblo" to furnish the proper wind supply. "Orgoblos" range in size from small 1-6 H. P. units suitable for student reed organs to mammoth 100 H. P. multi-stage, multi-pressure machines. For years the Spencer "Orgoblo" has proved the most popular installation of its kind.

The Designer of 100 Theatres Discusses

The Architect's Service to the Industry

An Interview with Paul J. Henon

President Hoffman-Henon Company

A DISCUSSION of theatre architecture and construction as an important development of the film industry in the United States, I believe, should be prefaced by a consideration of the demands which are placed upon the individual or the organization to whom is entrusted the responsibility for planning such an enterprise. The planning of a theatre that will be successful from the standpoint of the party or parties making the large investments the project requires presents a complex problem to the architect. So much so, in fact, that the reward of success in this field of architecture has fallen almost without exception only upon the efforts of the specialist.

As one whose organization is responsible for the design of one hundred theatres, I am keenly alive to the highly specialized knowledge and experience demanded of the architect in the field of motion picture theatre planning. And I am urged, therefore, to dwell awhile upon the subject of the special requirements which the architect is called upon to meet when he undertakes the responsibility of planning a theatre.

Of the many problems, undoubtedly the most pressing is a demand for the proper evaluation of the special needs of the showman. It is not so long since the picture showman required only a relatively small amount of added facilities, aside from his program. But the expansion of the picture industry and the swelling ranks of the devotees of this form of entertainment naturally have brought a keener form of competition, and showmen were forced to look further than the show itself for features to attract patronage.

Showmanship itself has become much more complex within the past few years, and there is no doubt but that the showman has delegated to the theatre architect a considerable share of his added responsibilities. He has required the architect to merge beauty, utility, safety and economy of operation in the theatre plant.

Now it happens that each of those terms is used with a special significance peculiar to the craft of showmanship. Beauty, for example, means beauty not in the classic sense. It is here used not in the abstract—but specifically to mean that which shall be held beautiful by the particular type of people upon whom the particular theatre will be dependent for its patronage. Here, then does showmanship—in so far as that term applies to the interpretation of public taste in matters of entertainment—enter into the work of the architect who designs a theatre. In the same way, utility, in its application to the showman's formula, means not merely a building erected to withstand the rigors of weather, the efficiency of the facilities for handling large crowds, or the provision for all strain and wear upon the structure, but all those and as well special features of design which will enable the operator to provide lobby and foyer space proportionate to the number of seats, equipment that will be adequate to every necessity for a popular type of presentation, proper handling of acoustics, sight lines, stage and auditorium lighting.

Indeed, the theatre architect is required to assume responsibility for the success of the theatre he designs for all time after he has turned the completed plant over to the builder or operator for its conduct as an amusement center. For that very reason it has long been my contention that the connection of the architect with the project properly should begin long before pencil touches the drawing board. For if his is to be the responsibility, his should be the opportunity to bring into the consideration of the full plan his specialized knowledge of the factors of location, type of structure, size of the building and the scope of the plant.

The progress made in the field of theatre architecture matches strides with the growth and upbuilding of the motion picture as an art and amusement form as well as the increase of resourcefulness in theatre presentations and what we know as showmanship.

Indeed, as the mind wanders back over the years, and notes the progress which has been made, it becomes more and more apparent that a comparison of the development of the theatres themselves supplies the historian the most graphic medium for telling the story of the growth of motion pictures.

Reflect Growth of Industry

I recall the first of the theatres erected for the sole purpose of exhibiting movies. These buildings with their few hundred seats, a small organ and no orchestra or surrounding program, were the fore-runners of a series of increasingly important enterprises.

Even as the theatres became more elaborate, so did also the productions and the themes presented on the silver sheet. While Hollywood and other centers for the construction and preparation of photoplays sprang up with what seemed almost a mushroom growth, the one and two reel slap-stick comedy and action thriller gave way to the more elaborate spectacle of wide popular appeal and became too great a drawing card for the small movie.

It became necessary to add orchestra pits to the movie theatre. Full stages became part of their equipment. Larger capacity naturally became a necessity. The movies were here to stay and they began to make an impression on the legitimate stage. Then the temple of the cinema began to rival in beauty, solidity, utility and capacity the home of drama, the scene of the light opera and musical comedy, the setting of the extravaganza and the home of the melodrama.

The elaborate stages presented specialties, vaudeville acts and other attractions to surround the motion picture and lay the foundation for what has since become a distinct and distinctive type of entertainment.

Theatre construction about this time emphasized the tendency to combine elements of stage and screen entertainments. With the installation of orchestras under the direction of skilled and highly paid musicians, the movies took on a new dignity and a greater hold on the patrons of the theatre. Inroads began to be made on the legitimate stage. This elaboration of the presentations requiring large casts of singers and dancers and costly scenic investiture meant that the patrons of the pictures were steadily increasing.

It was in this phase of their development that the motion picture theatres took a further step forward and astonished the entire world by the elaborate construction and the great lengths to which their builders went to produce auditoriums that set new standards for the comfort and health of patrons, and which rose to new heights of splendor.

While these developments were taking place in what might be termed the theatrical centers, smaller theatres were being erected in the neighborhoods and the smaller towns. These, on a reduced scale, emulated the palatial cinemas of the metropolises in so far as luxury and completeness of detail are concerned.

Regardless of what may be said in critical estimates of this form of entertainment as an art, the theatres in which motion pictures are presented have had an elevating effect upon the patrons attending them. Great masses of the people have been educated through the medium of picture theatres to seek only clean, well-ventilated and beautifully decorated halls of assembly.

Naturally with the improvement of the theatres, theatre patrons have become more critical of the houses they patronize, and the demand now exists for only the theatre that provides the utmost in comfort and well-being. They insist upon the greatest safety factors, surroundings of refinement, luxury and charm. In consequence the architect now must combine all these elements in a practical business project, blending elements of popular appeal, a romantic atmosphere, engineering features developed by scientists to a high degree of efficiency—as in the modern ventilating systems—economy of operation, and a plant so located and so constructed as to pay a profit on the investment.

It could hardly be expected of an individual architect that he should develop within himself the grasp and knowledge, experience and practice, to carry on, unaided by associated specialists, the complex work of achieving success in that undertaking. Therefore, one of the most important qualifications for success is an organization built up with the utmost care to bring thereto the services and talents of specialists in the various and varied fields of applied art and engineering.

I am certain that the success that has rewarded the Hoffman-Henon Company in the field of theatre design and construction has come to it because of the complete, rounded organization which it has perfected. Each of the many features of design or equipment here is in the hands of specialists, all working, under an experienced supervisor, toward one end—the creation of a structure in which every factor harmonizes, and which is both beautiful and practical.

The Practical Side of Beauty

Indeed, it is doubtful if anything can be beautiful that is not practical. Too often, in designing theatres as well as other buildings, there is a strained effort for beauty while practical results in operation are side-tracked. More than one costly experience has proved that this too often means expensive changes. And in certain instances, too, it has meant loss in operation until this sometimes disastrous expense of alteration has been effected.

Though, as I have already said, we have designed one hundred theatres, I am proud to say that we learn daily more about theatres and theatre design. Do you think we knew as much when we designed the first theatre as we do today? No, indeed! If that were so, this business would not be growing. Every one of the hundred theatres we built has taught us something, and zealously we have sought to learn more and retain all we did learn with the object in view of developing a reservoir of special knowledge of what makes the motion picture beautiful as well as practical.

Find it Difficult to Determine Factors That Deflect Patronage

It has been said in retail selling that a single step at the front entrance is a handicap to trade. So firmly has this become fixed as a creed of that business that you will find it difficult today to locate a single prosperous store that is not flush with the pavement.

A theatre proprietor often finds that there is something that deflects trade from his house, but not always is he able to determine exactly what that something is. The fact that the specialist in theatre architecture is in most cases better able to diagnose the ailment seems rather conclusively proved by the number of instances wherein the architect has successfully analyzed the situation when called in for consultation.

It is the aim of our organization to take a vacant piece of ground and produce for the owner, our client, a building which will be marked by economy in design and construction, strength and permanency, beauty and usefulness. To achieve that ideal it is my belief, as I have mentioned earlier in this discussion, that the connection of the architect with the project should begin long before such an important consideration as the site has been decided upon. I would urge that the architect be consulted before negotiations are completed for plot.

The architect, by advising what kind of building can be erected on the particular site often can save a great amount of trouble even before the project is started. He oftentimes, when called upon to take over a plot of ground, finds himself hampered to such a degree that the utmost satisfaction becomes an impossibility. The question of suitability of the plot to the theatre desired, or the desired theatre to the site, is better decided before the start of any detail of the project.

Pitfalls Avoided when Possibilities of Site are Carefully Analyzed

Many theatres which have become unpopular and which have failed to come up to the expectations of the owner who has anticipated what he should be able to obtain in the way of patronage, would never have been erected had the matter of site first been taken into consideration.

The prime factor in the construction of a theatre from the standpoint of the owner is to place every seat just as close as possible to the stage. That means lower ceilings, lower balconies, no special construction, such as loge balconies, which force the balcony proper higher and therefore move the balcony seats further from the stage.

In the design of a theatre consideration must be given to proper proportions. The lobbies, foyers and other space which cannot be used for seats must be scaled in proper proportion to the seating capacity. Larger lobbies than necessary are merely wasteful, increasing overhead and bringing in no additional revenue to the owner. A theatre may make money even in spite of its extended lobbies and foyers, but it would make more money if this added expense was not saddled upon the enterprise.

Costly added Construction Entailed Main Objecton to Loge Balcony

This is the principal reason for my strong opposition to the loge balcony type of construction. It entails great expense in construction, will hold only a comparatively few extra seats, and compels a higher balcony. As I conceive it, and as I have said before, the architect must erect his structure with the matter of economy in keeping with usefulness, durability and lasting qualities always in view. I feel that it is the duty of the architect to protect his client in every detail and therefore, unless it is positively insisted upon, I will not countenance the expenditure necessary for a loge balcony.

I have built theatres that were virtually all seats with little lobby or foyer space and they have been wonderful money-makers. I have built others with almost as much foyer and lobby space as seating space and while they have made money, the overhead and upkeep has been a handicap. Finally, on this subject, I give it as my profound conviction that a theatre with a moderate and properly proportioned lobby and foyer is the right and economical thing to build today.

A word as to equipment, stage fitting and kindred departments! Many times the building program is left to a subordinate official in some of the bigger companies. In dealing with them I find that there is a tendency to over-equip and furnish, to over-light—in other words to try to follow Roxy when it is entirely unnecessary to do so—the location often does not warrant this unusual expense.

I have in mind one theatre where the representative of the owner insisted on having road show equipment. This was installed, under protest, at a cost of $12,000. That was two years ago, and the expensive installation has never been used and probably never will be. Road shows must carry their own equipment, because not all the theatres they may play can afford the expense of such equipment as a permanent feature. A road show must carry its own lights and switchboards and other special mechanics because those charged with the presentation usually prefer to use their own equipment, with which they are familiar, even though the house itself is fully supplied.

Showmanship Reveals itself with Greatest Force in Decoration

In the decoration of the theatre showmanship reveals itself with greater force than in any other department of the plant. The artistic and tasteful theatre really indicates good showmanship because that quality requires that the appreciation and approval of the public shall be continuous. Some years ago there was a trend on the part of some constructors of theatres to the use of large plaster figures—elaborate affairs which lacked lasting appeal. They palled on the public. Then followed the more modern system of decoration and one which, I feel, will be lasting. In this method effects are obtained by the use of color. Recently there has been evident an attempt to revive the plaster mode, but I do not think it will be important.

It is preferable to get the decorative effects from the use of simple materials which will be pleasing always. Everything about the theatre must be beautiful and restful and tend to put the playgoer in a frame of mind in which relaxation plays a large part. If the theatre-goer is to be shocked at the outset, by some outré or grotesque ornamentation he will never be in the proper frame of mind to enjoy what is to be presented to him in the way of entertainment. He will not have a good time and while he may never trace the cause, he does know the effect and unconsciously will develop an aversion to that particular playhouse. It will never know him more as a patron.

One of the most important factors in theatre construction is, of course, acoustics. More and more have scientific ways been adapted to improve the tonal quality of the voice or music, and the advent of the sound pictures has made this of increasing importance. By building the theatre just as condensed as possible without ceilings of vast height and bringing every seat as near as possible to the stage, it is easier for the speaker or the amplified sound system to fill the house.

Economy and Acoustics Both Served By Seating to Greatest Capacity

It is natural that the greater the house and the space to be filled, the more the volume of sound that must be used. That is one of the big reasons why, outside of the economy of the matter, I want to make the auditorium as full of seats as possible and put them as close to the stage as can be achieved. Such an arrangement leaves less space to be filled. By padded walls, hangings and other devices which enhance the beauty of the auditorium, perfect acoustic properties can be obtained and a whisper on the stage heard throughout the house.

I would like to cite the East Liberty Theatre, in Pittsburgh, as probably one of the most technically correct theatres in the world. It has wonderful acoustic properties and a large seating capacity with a very low balcony and ceiling.

What we might term the Theatre Modernistic is a new type which is now with us, as can be seen by the new Boyd Theatre in Philadelphia. It is the newest thing, and is very refreshing in contrast with the heavier style of theatre which we find in many cities in this country. The modernistic style brings a much lighter touch, a gayer note harking back to the French again—the originators of the best taste in theatres and theatrical life.

Modernistic Style Opens New Fields to the Theatre Architect

The modernistic style is here to stay in theatres and theatrical life. It sparkles with life and color. In France at the present they are doing great things in this style. Everyone speaks of this modern era and it devolves upon the motion picture theatre to keep pace with the times by reflecting it in its architecture and decoration.

Certainly this new idea offers the architect and the decorator a fresh and fertile field for the play of imagination. Likewise the modernistic style gives us another avenue of approach to variety. This is most important, because more and more is it becoming apparent that the success of a new theatre is importantly connected with that theatre's contrast, especially in its atmosphere, to the other cinemas in its locality.

Being "different" merely for the sake of difference seems an unsound policy, particularly in architecture. However, the architect is faced with the problem of being different when called upon to design a theatre for a locality which is already equipped with two or more theatres. In this case there is sound reason, based on experience, for the builder of another playhouse to bring into the scheme of his theatre something which is fresh and new—different—in that particular locality. In consequence the theatre architect is gratified when there is introduced a newer style with inherent qualities for successful theatrical treatment. Such, I believe, are the qualities which the modernistic style possesses.

Through the efforts of designers of home furnishings and particularly through the splendid work of advertising artists, the public is being educated to an appreciation of the modernistic style of art. The popularity of a certain type of design or color scheme, provided it is a popularity based on something more substantial than mere passing fad or fancy, is an important factor to be considered by the theatre architect before he attempts to adapt a new style to a theatre building.

Great as have been the accomplishments, particularly in the immediate past, in the future the motion picture theatre and theatre architecture will produce even greater achievements. Motion pictures have a fascination and an appeal which are interesting so many minds that it is only natural that astonishing new inventions develop rapidly. New ideas, whether the invention of the scientist and engineer, or the creation of an artist, bring new problems to the theatre architect and result in some entirely new feature of theatre architecture or merely refinement and elaboration.

A new and greater future lies ahead, of that we are certain. The motion picture industry and its theatres still are growing and the future cannot be precisely chartered, but the changing scene that lies ahead though it be productive of greater upheavals in a single development than were the result of several new movements introduced in the past will be one to which every branch of the industry will address itself with a sound understanding based upon the experience which has been gained during a past which has been vibrant with life, strife and heroic endeavor.

Every show a de luxe performance with the RCA Photophone

THERE are no "supper shows" when your house is equipped with an RCA Photophone. Inbuilt reasons make possible outstanding performance all the time.

In the operation of today's theatre, it is impossible to separate the sound laboratory from the motion picture studio.

RCA Photophone is the embodiment of the knowledge of the world's largest laboratories, devoted to the transmission and reproduction of sound—the Radio Corporation of America, General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

Giving the complete illusion of realism, the RCA Photophone represents a basic and fundamental advance in the acoustic art.

In addition to the equipment for the projection of synchronized sound picture film, a special apparatus reproducing from disc records and embodying all the acoustic advances of the RCA Photophone film reproducing system, for houses of limited seating capacity will be a part of RCA Photophone's 1929 program.

A consistent production schedule to meet exhibitor demand now permits of prompt installations.

RCA PHOTOPHONE INC.

1st IN EQUIPMENT '28 ADVERTISING FOR

The vote's in—and counted. It's the vote cast by all the equipment advertisers in the theatre field. And it's a vote that permits no vestige of a doubt concerning its sincerity—for every voter paid to cast his ballot.

Here's the result.

Motion Picture News leads all other motion picture trade journals in total number of equipment advertising pages carried during 1928. Motion Picture News also carried advertising from a greater number of equipment manufacturers than any of its competitors. Motion Picture News equipment advertising for 1928 showed a gain over its 1927 volume. Its closest competitor showed a loss in volume of equipment advertising carried for 1928 as compared to 1927.

In the final analysis only results count. Motion Picture News places these plain indisputable facts before every advertiser and lets the advertiser judge.

The leading equipment paper fifteen years ago, the leading equipment paper today—and tomorrow!

MOTION PICTURE

... and HERE'S WHY

For fifteen years, Motion Picture News has covered all the buyers in the theatre field.

Not a forced circulation, but one acquired and retained thru the strength, character and service that theatre owners recognize in the News.

Further, Motion Picture News equipment editions have gained full recognition from theatre architects of consequence. Architects are a mighty important factor in the sale of theatre equipment.

When advertisers buy Motion Picture News circulation, they are not paying for any "waste". They pay only for the placing of their sales messages before readers that actually buy.

It is because manufacturers of theatre equipment are familiar with the complexities of the structure of the theatre field that they recognize that Motion Picture News circulation represents the individuals and organizations they must sell.

The largest as well as the longest established equipment manufacturers in the theatre industry advertise in Motion Picture News—some with campaigns that have extended over fifteen years.

The true test of advertising value of a Motion Picture Trade Paper is the amount of equipment advertising it carries.

Motion Picture Theatres and Studios Are Saving Money and Time with the Cutawl

Motion Picture Theatres all over the country are using the Cutawl daily to get Action—Variety—Sensations, with surprising success, in their exterior displays and stage presentations. Motion Picture Studios are creating settings that would be practically impossible to create without the Cutawl.

The new model Cutawl is entirely portable. It is not attached in any way except by electric cord, and can be operated in any plane horizontal, vertical or oblique.

It is POWERFUL having a two-speed motor, allowing the operator to use low speed on fine and intricate work and high speed where rapid cutting is practicable and desirable.

It has a variable cutting stroke up to $\frac{3}{4}$ inch and is convertible for sawing by substituting saw-blade for the chisel. Thus it is possible to cut several thicknesses of cardboard or wallboard at one cutting. Note example in soldiers shown above.

There is practically no limit to the range of its usefulness, other than the ingenuity and ability of its user.

Send for detailed information about our FREE 10 day Trial Offer, also list of Theatre and Studio users and complete catalog describing the new and improved Cutawl.

WITHIN 3%

The Type C. P. Transverter delivers within 3 per cent of the rated voltage under all conditions and loads within the rating of the generator.

That means more nearly constant voltage than is obtained from the average D. C. power line.

The Transverter assures you of the proper light control—economical operation and perfect automatic performance.

If you show Pictures—and especially if you run Talkies—you need the Transverter.

Sold in the U. S. A. by

YOU CAN REDUCE OPERATING COSTS WITH HOTCHKISS SILENT FLASHERS ON YOUR ELECTRIC SIGNS AND MARQUEES

Their contacts do not wear or burn and nothing needs oiling or adjusting. Ask your electrician how much time he spends in a year on your open contact sign flashers and check up your bills for replacement parts. Then you will be ready to ask us for further details.

EVENHEETERS IN YOUR PIPE ORGAN CHAMBERS

They are thermostatically controlled electric heating systems that keep the actions in smooth operating condition and keep all stops at proper pitch. They cut down your organ repair bills, increase the life of the instrument, and insure beautiful music regardless of the weather. Full information will be sent on request.

Cinephor Lenses

What to Expect from a Projection Lens

A lens can only reproduce on the screen, that which is registered on the film.

These are the four qualities, and the only four, that a projection lens can give to the projected image. They are identical with the characteristics of the

CINEPHOR LENS

1. Flatness of field
2. Maximum illumination
3. Clear definition
4. Contrast between black and white

When you have a CINEPHOR you have a lens that possesses these qualities and that will faithfully reproduce the film.

We will gladly send you further information on projection lenses. Just send your name and address.

A suitable setting for the average motion picture house. The fabrics used are radiant silks, safe in texture and extremely susceptible to lighting variations. Steps and balustrades and transparent screen windows contribute greatly in beautifying the stage. The side curtains also are made to drape open and add additional color to the setting.

Stage Settings and Draperies recognized by all theatre owners for their originality of design and workmanship

Novelty Scenic Studios have executed stage settings and draperies for leading theatre owners and theatre architects in all parts of this country. For years our installations have been recognized for their originality of design and superior quality of workmanship.

To employ a concern that has, for years, maintained the confidence of this industry's leading showmen, is an absolute guarantee of complete satisfaction.

Novelty Scenic Studios consider it a privilege to cooperate with their clients in giving their expert ideas in layout and design. We suggest you get in touch with us now and let us give you the benefit by our experience in decorating and equipping your theatre.

The Stage is the Real Focal Point

When all is said and done, every theatre, regardless of its beauty and wealth in appointments, must rely on its stage for its center of attraction.

Stage decorations and sets form an important part of the very focal point of the theatre. And it is for this reason that America's foremost exhibitors are particular in the selection of the company to execute their stage drapes, sets and decorations.

Indicative of the standing of Volland Scenic Studios, Inc., with leading exhibitors and architects, is the imposing list of stage installations executed for fine theatres. In part they are:

Stanley—Baltimore, Md.
Manor—Norwood, Pa.
Waverly—Drexel Hill, Pa.
Stanley Clarke—Pittsburgh, Pa.
Bala Cynwyd—Bala Cynwyd, Pa.
Virginia—Atlantic City, N. J.

Stanley Theatre, Pittsburgh—Hoffman-Henon, Architects

Theatres of Distinction

THEATRE architects and owners appreciate the fact that stage control and light equipment occupy an important position in embellishing not only the stage, but the artistic design of the interior; without light the effect is lost. The value of such effect is dependent upon the flexibility, as well as the stability of such apparatus. These features are embodied in Hub products.

The Hub Electric Company appreciates the opportunity of having worked with Hoffman-Henon, architects, in building stage switch-boards and lighting equipment for the above theatre.

1 manufacturer 11 producers 1000 exhibitors

making Sound Pictures a success

WORKING shoulder to shoulder they have pioneered a new art to its present position as an outstanding box-office success.

Western Electric, the manufacturer who developed the only Sound Picture equipment in considerable use today, pledges a continuance of high electrical and mechanical standards and announces a rapid stepping-up of output to meet the pressing demand.

The Producer, naturally jealous of the quality of his Sound Picture releases, and the Exhibitor, who knows the popularity of his house is closely linked with a Sound Picture installation of high quality, will continue to look to the experience, the reputation and the organization of Western Electric.

Western Electric

made the first successful Sound Picture recording and reproducing equipment.

Exhibitors

in a thousand theatres all over the land, have brought Sound Pictures to the people.

Gentlemen:-

The Robert Morton Unit Organs which you recently installed for us in our new deluxe houses, have proven entirely satisfactory, tonally, mechanically and otherwise.

We thought you would be glad to know this, and we take this opportunity of congratulating you on building an outstandingly successful theatre organ.

Yours very truly
